U.S. REPORT QUOTES BOB WILLIAMS

CIA Trying to Wreck NDP?

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

U.S. Central Intelligence Agency money is being pumped into B.C. to disrupt the NDP government, according to an American newspaper report quoting Resources Minister Bob Williams.

The June 20 edition of the University of Wisconsin student newspaper The Daily Cardinal quotes Williams as saying in an interview he has "documentary evidence that they (the CIA) have filtered money into right wing opposition groups and the right-wing press in order to de-stabilize our government."

Williams is also quoted as saying that CIA agents have infiltrated the NDP party and tried to bribe party members.

"After what happened in Chile, we are the only socialist government left in the Americas and feel that we are the next target of the CIA," said Williams.

Cardinal staff reporter Edward Handell said today he taped most of the interview with Williams after the B.C. minister spoke to a conference on "state and local alternative policies" in Madison, Wisconsin.

Williams, who is on a business trip in Belgium and could not be reached for confirmation of the statements, attended the June conference alone and members of his staff said today they could not confirm the details of the interview.

Premier Barrett, now vacationing in California, sent word to members of the press that he would not comment on the story which was made public is B.C. today by Social Credit MLA Bob McClelland (Langley).

Provincial secretary Ernie Hall said he would not be surprised if the CIA had infiltrated the province but he did not know anything about the article.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald sounded surprised when he read the statements attributed to Williams, but said he could not comment until he had further information about the article.

Jerry Ambelang, state-news editor of the 43,000-circulation daily Wisconsin State Capital Times, said in a telephone interview today his newspaper covered the alternative policies conference attended by Williams but that the New Democrat minister was not interviewed or quoted.

Ambelang, a U of W graduate who worked on the student paper "a way back," said the campus paper tends to be "quite radical."

"They might be willing to take things out of context and piece them together to get a good story," he said. "I would be cautious . . . students put in what they want to put in."

According to the interview, Williams said the NDP has "discovered infiltrators in our party who have admitted working for American intelligence and our own party members report on being offered bribes to disrupt our meetings and party functions.

"We have presented our evidence to Trudeau and he has agreed to do what he could about it because the Canadian people are a very chauvinist people and any attempt by the CIA or the American imperialist corporations to interfere with any Canadian government will hurt Prime Minister Trudeau."

But NDP president Yvonne Cocke said she knows nothing about CIA infiltration of the

Quebec Grits Facing Charges

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec member of parliament and a member of the Quebec national assembly, both Liberals, have been charged along with six municipal officials following an inquiry last September into municipal corruption.

Antonio Yanakis, 53, MP for the central Quebec riding of Berthier, was charged in sessions court Tuesday with three counts of perjury, corruption, breach of trust and conspiring to defraud the public of $5,990.

Gerard Shanks, 51, member in the national assembly for the Montreal district of St. Henri, was charged with one count of breach of trust and one count of corruption involving payments totalling $1,750 from former town planner Roger Gagnon.

The charges follow a report of a closed-door inquiry at which Gagnon was accused of having offered almost $100,000 in bribes to the two politicians and six town officials of East Angus, in the Eastern Townships, and Gatineau, near Hull.

At the time of the alleged offences, Gagnon was employed as an urban planner for the two communities.

Charged with breach of trust in Gatineau, formerly Pointe Gatineau, are town councillors Jean-Marc Cloutier and Jean-Paul Osborne, court clerk Louis Lamarche, assistant treasurer Andre Leblanc and former councillor Jean-Louis Villeneuve.

The accused are to appear before Hull provincial court Judge Jerome Somers Sept. 18.

Alphonse Godbout, mayor of East Angus, was charged July 28 with one count of corruption and one of breach of trust. He is accused of having received $11,700 in alleged bribes from Gagnon.

Godbout was summoned to appear in Sherbrooke sessions court Sept. 17.

Gagnon faces 11 charges of political corruption and fraud and is also accused of defrauding the towns of more than $38,000.

Charges against Yanakis resulted from his testimony at the inquiry, during which he said he was not aware his secretary had cashed and deposited cheques from Gagnon.

He also denied having received money and gifts from the former town planner.

Meanwhile, Premier Robert Bourassa announced in Quebec City Tuesday the suspension of Shanks from the Liberal party and party caucus. The premier said all party privileges would be restored if Shanks is cleared of the charges.

In Ottawa, Health Minister Marc Lalonde, the Quebec lieutenant of the federal Liberal caucus, said Tuesday night any decision of the suspension of Yanakis would be taken by the federal caucus.

Yanakis said Tuesday night Bourassa is behind criminal accusations against him.

Yanakis said in an interview there is no proof against him and suggested Bourassa "is against the wall."

New Probe Set On Quang Affair

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen Tuesday agreed to investigate what was described in the Commons as "the startling revelation" that immigration officials knew of South Vietnamese General Dang Van Quang's background and alleged criminal activites when he entered Canada.

MP Derek Blackburn (NDP-Brant) pressed MacEachen for answers after the Ottawa Journal carried a copyright story Tuesday quoting a United States government official as telling immigration officials Quang was waiting to enter Canada last May.

Jack Luehrs, a U.S. Health, education and welfare official, told the newspaper he advised Canada's New Orleans vice-consul Albert Morin of Quang's background 10 days before he was interviewed by Morin at Fort Chaffee.

Morin had informed the press and Canadian officials he was not aware of Quang's criminal background.

Blackburn asked the external affairs minister whether anybody in Ottawa was told to let Quang in regardless of his criminal background.

Meanwhile Quang, says he is the victim of a "political campaign" to smear him.

He said in a CBC interview Tuesday night he cannot get "very fair justice" in this country.

He said he has sent a request to the United States government for political asylum in that country but so far has had no answer.

"I think there is a very well-manipulated . . . political campaign against me from some organizations and from some individuals sympathetic to those organizations.

"They found in me a very ready scapegoat . . . because they could not capture me alive in Saigon. They are pursuing me wherever they can."

Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Quang was ordered deported July 7 after an investigation of his past in Vietnam showed he was "guilty of nefarious activities in the drug trade" and that other allegations against him were "well founded."

Immigration officials said last week the immigration appeal board rejected his application to appeal the deportation order because he made the application too late.

Trudeau Cautions Summit On 'Shortlived' Gains

HELSINKI (UPI)—Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau told the European Security Conference summit today any stability it produces will be "short-lived" unless action is taken in other parts of the world.

Trudeau addressed the leaders of the other 34 participating states on the first day of the three-day summit.

He said the final agreement is important because strife in Europe has all too often spread rapidly to other areas.

"Yet in a sense such a belief is arrogant," Trudeau said, speaking in French. "Europe is not the world.

"Whatever stability this conference anticipates in Europe will be short-lived if we do not seize the opportunity now offered to us to create elsewhere the conditions necessary to permit standards of living to be raised, to permit the economies of tropical countries to be improved, stabilized and made sufficient, to ensure that rural development is encouraged and food production is increased, to provide hope for a better future to the hundreds of millions of people outside Europe now existing at the subsistence level."

Trudeau said a major task facing the world is to allow all to share the benefits of nuclear energy, while "eliminating the likelihood of nuclear proliferation."

Trudeau's speech followed a warning to the Soviet Union from British Prime Minister Harold Wilson who stressed that no European nation will have an excuse in the future to intervene in the internal affairs of others.

His statement appeared to be a direct challenge to Moscow's so-called "Brezhnev Doctrine" which claims the right for the Soviet Union to intervene in any east European country — a policy propounded seven years ago by Soviet Communist party general Secretary Leonid Brezhnev after the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The Wilson statement was particularly significant since the security conference is Brezhnev's brain child. He has urged such a conference for years to put the world's stamp of approval on the postwar boundaries that put half of Europe in the Soviet bloc. He has been said to regard the controversial meeting as the crowning achievement of his career.

Pierre Disputes $8 Over-tax

ST. ADOLPHE d'HAWORD, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is disputing what he claims was an overpayment of $8 in taxes last year on his 632-acre wooded terrain near Seize-Iles lake in the Laurentians.

In a letter to the community's secretary-treasurer, dated March 27 and written on the prime minister's official stationery, Trudeau claimed he had been consistently over-taxed.

The prime minister said the Quebec department of municipal affairs had told him that taxes on his lot should not have exceeded the minimum rate of one per cent.

"Nonetheless, for several years past the tax rate imposed on me has been well in excess of one per cent," he said, adding that it reached the two-per-cent mark this year.

$2 Coffee Forecast Before Winter

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria coffee prices are expected to rise to $1.50 per pound in August from the present rate of about $1.25 and could hit $2 before winter, according to spokesmen for the coffee industry.

Victoria supermarkets are anticipating a run on their coffee shelves before the Canadian price takes off. Prices have already risen 20 cents a pound in New York.

Victoria restaurants will probably stop giving free refills and will raise their price to at least 30 cents, up from a standard price of 25 cents, said Gordon Schoor, president of the Victoria Restaurant Association.

The problem began July 18 when frost destroyed up to 75 per cent of the Brazil coffee crop. The coffee was to have been harvested next spring and come on market in the fall of 1976.

Because of the uncertainty of future supply, the Brazil government has halted all exports of coffee while it takes stock. This could take several weeks.

As a result of the Brazilian action, there will be an immediate shortage of coffee on the world market during August. Brazil produces 33 per cent of the total world supply.

George Beatty of Toronto, public relations manager for General Foods in Canada, told the Times that sharp price increases in coffee are inevitable in August as a result of the Brazil action. General Foods increased its wholesale prices 20 cents a pound in the United States Monday and Canadian increases are expected to be of a similar amount.

Victoria supermarket spokesmen said an increase of 20 cents a pound wholesale would push the retail price up 25 cents a pound to $1.50 a pound in August.

The price increases are expected to come in two stages: the first in August reacting to the move by the Brazil government and the second in autumn after Brazil decides upon its next move.

In Vancouver, spokesmen for two major coffee wholesalers said if the first estimate by Brazil proves accurate and 75 per cent of the coffee crop has been wiped out by frost, the total price increase would be in the order of 50 per cent by winter, pushing retail prices up near the $2 mark.

One official warned consumers against buying bag coffee for storage purposes, pointing out it has a storage life of only about 60 days. Vacuum tin coffee can be stored about 12 months as can instant coffee, provided the seal has not been broken.

Coffee trading on the world market is already at fever pitch as speculators try to corner supplies to take advantage of the shortage.

Wrong Germany On Mail List

BRUSSELS (Guardian) — The Norwegian Defence Ministry for the past eight months has been sending military information to the East German Embassy in Oslo instead the West German, a Ministry official admitted Tuesday.

According to NATO officials here — who confirmed the mistake — the correspondence dealt with NATO information as well as Norwegian defence affairs. The error was discovered when the East Germans returned a package "with regret," they said.

Officials here assume that the correspondence did not deal with highly sensitive material. This would have been sent through more guarded channels.

Castro Documents 24 CIA Plots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator George McGovern (Dem. S.D.) released today a summary of evidence compiled by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro purporting to outline 24 Central Intelligence Agency (CIA)-inspired plots on the lives of Castro and other Cuban leaders.

"I have no way to verify these allegations," McGovern said in a statement announcing that he was turning over the material furnished by Castro to the Senate intelligence committee.

If the allegations are true, McGovern said, "the CIA has engaged in the most shocking, murderous and un-American behavior against the leaders of a neighboring state."

The summary released by McGovern described 24 incidents from mid-1960 to March 1971. According to the information compiled by Castro, the 1971 incident involved a plan for an assassin to pose as a Venezuelan reporter covering Castro's 1971 visit to Chile.

However, the plan was called off, according to Castro's evidence. Prior to 1971, the most recent incident cited was in 1967.

McGovern said Castro's conclusions of CIA involvement in these plots "are apparently based on confessions and on circumstantial evidence."

However, McGovern said, "at the very least, Prime Minister Castro has supplied important leads which must be pursued."

McGovern said that U.S. public policy following the 1962 Cuban missile crisis was to discourage and prevent U.S.-based violence against the Castro regime. "We are forced to consider the possibility that those declarations mask the exact opposite," McGovern said.

CUBA SANCTIONS END

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (WP) — The United States joined 15 Latin American nations here Tuesday in putting an end to 11 years of formal diplomatic and economic isolation of Cuba.

The U.S., which began the push to cut Fidel Castro's government off from the rest of Latin America, was behind the diplomatic formula put together at a special meeting of the Organization of American States (OAS). The purpose of the meeting was to end collective sanctions forbidding diplomatic and trade relations with, and all shipping to, Cuba.

Affirmative votes of Argentina, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, El Salvador, Honduras, Mexico, Panama, Peru. The Dominican Republic, Trinidad-Tobago, Venezuela, Haiti, Bolivia and Guatemala were lined up here by Mexican delegates last week after American delegates to the OAS committed the U.S. vote earlier this month in Washington. Brazil and Nicaragua abstained frm voting. Chile, Paraguay and Uruguay voted no.

CIA Infiltrating B.C.?

party and has never heard the matter discussed by party members.

She said today she has never heard Williams or any of the cabinet members discuss CIA infiltration.

The student newspaper is "a pretty remote source of information" she said, and she would not comment any further until she had discussed the matter with Bob Williams.

Past party president Frank Murphy said he didn't know of any evidence of infiltration in the NDP but he "always figured there was infiltration and deliberate disruption."

It is difficult sometimes to distinguish between disrupters and dissenters, said Murphy, but it is evident that some people had ulterior motives for disrupting the party.

Contacted in Madison today, Handell said he had several calls from B.C. since his article came to light and he hoped he still had his tapes and notes from the interview.

The reporter said he edited the interview and his editors may also have cut the interview down before it appeared in the paper.

McClelland, who said Williams should be fired because of the "incredibly irresponsible statements and outright lies," received a copy of the article from a B.C. student attending the university.

"If Williams made the same statements here at home," said the MLA, "he would have been laughed right out of the province."

Williams is "either a common backyard liar or he has completely lost his senses" said McClelland.

"Can you imagine," he asked, "anyone from 'intelligence' offering Alf Nunweiler or Lorne Nicholson a bribe."

He said Williams should provide proof to the people of B.C. of any CIA interference and should provide documented evidence of correspondence sent to Trudeau detailing his charges."

Williams also referred to Trudeau in the interview when he discussed with Handell B.C.'s efforts to start a socialist program.

"We are attempting to nationalize as much industry as we possibly can under Canadian federal law and we have had very good success in that endeavor and I might add that Trudeau has personally attempted to stop this, mostly unsuccessfully," Williams said in the interview.

In describing B.C.'s socialist programs, Williams is quoted on the topic of Mincome, "farmers' co-operatives taking the place of corporate farms," "free drugs for the sick and free ambulance service for those who need it."

"We are working towards socialized medicine and health care and we now own 95 per cent of the public land in B.C. which will no longer be exploited by the multinational corporations of North America."

Police Seeking Suspect In Dual Hold-up Attempt

Victoria police are continuing their search today for a nervous, gun-toting young man who attempted hold up two Victoria drug stores in rapid succession early Tuesday afternoon.

Staff Sgt. Angus Stewart said police have a suspect in mind and are presently checking on "all possible leads."

The man, described as in his early 20s, over six feet tall, slim-built and wearing a faded denim jacket and blue jeans, entered the McCall-Davey Drugs at Hillside and Shelbourne at 12:50 p.m. and the McGill and Orme Drugs, 649 Fort, a half-hour later. In each case he presented a note demanding drugs, but in each case got nothing for his efforts.

Relief pharmacist Thamos Woolsey at McCall Davey said he recognized the man as a person who came into the store Friday to have a prescription filled.

Woolsey said the man told him he had a gun which he held Napolean-fashion in his right hand under his jacket and that he'd use it if anyone gave him trouble.

"He ordered me to hand over the drugs but I replied I'd have to go into a back room to get them and yet he didn't want me to move away as he could hear people talking in the back."

The stand-off lasted three or four minutes when another store employee, Dennis Jenkins, came on the scene.

Woolsey said the man became extremely nervous.

"I told him he'd have to kill both of us if he wanted the drugs," Woolsey said.

With that the man turned and fled, dropping his gun on the floor and reaching down to retrieve it as he stumbled out of the store.

Woolsey watched him run towards the Hillside Shopping Centre parking lot across the street and then disappear.

In the second incident a man matching the same description passed a similar note to counter clerk Mrs. Helen Silcox at McGill and Orme.

Wielding a small silver handgun he held 10 employees at bay as he demanded drugs from senior pharmacist Stuart Dunlap.

Dunlap told the man the narcotics drawer was empty, that it had been robbed a month ago and that the narcotics had been moved to another area.

The man wasn't satisfied and forced Dunlap to open the drawer nevertheless. When he saw it was empty he became "panicky," Dunlap said.

"I made a grab for him but he started swinging."

Dunlap received a blow on the temple which knocked him off balance and the man fled through the store, crowded with customers.

Dunlap called out asking people to stop the man but the would-be bandit escaped. Seconds later police arrived.

the weather

Cool moist unstable air continued to drift slowly eastward over the province last night resulting in cloud patches in most regions and periods of rain in the Kootenays.

Southwestern B.C. was mainly clear. Drier air will spread eastward over the interior today bringing warmer temperatures to most areas.

A Pacific disturbance in the Gulf of Alaska is heading for the Queen Charlottes. It will bring rain and drizzle to that region today and to northern Vancouver Island by Thursday morning. The disturbance is expected to track eastward into the central interior on Thursday.

Daytime temperatures will be a little warmer in southwestern B.C. today with further warming anticipated on Thursday.

Police Party Free-Wheeling

SEATTLE (CP) — A visiting scientist said Tuesday he was surprised—not to mention annoyed—when two members of Vancouver's police department came crashing through his hotel room door on a child's tricycle.

Scientist Ivan Sellin of Oakridge, Tenn., said in an interview the door was double-locked and the night latch was on, but it was struck with such force that the door jamb was torn out.

Sellin said he was present later when Sergeant V. J. Jones, in charge of the police department's motorcycle drill team, gave a local police officer the names of two members of the team, constables Larry Dryden and William Wellman, as the persons he believed responsible.

Jones refused Tuesday to discuss the incident and Deputy Chief Constable Tom Stokes said in Vancouver he is aware of an incident Sunday night in Seattle.

"We are looking into just what happened," he said in an interview. "We are very concerned about the public image our officers present and will do our best to resolve the issue."

The team was here during the weekend for the annual Seattle Seafair parade and Sellin, with his wife and child, was attending a conference at the University of Washington.

Sellin said his door was broken after a noisy party in a hospitality suite along the hall from his room, adding he saw a keg of beer enter the suite about 10 p.m. Sunday.

About 30 minutes later as the family was sleeping, the door was broken down and two men on the "big wheel," as the tricycle was called, came crashing through.

"I woke up to see a hall full of people, some woman trying to make off with a tricycle with a broken wheel and these two guys trying to scramble up," said Sellin.

A hotel spokesman confirmed there was an incident Sunday, but said the officer in charge had paid for the damage, estimated at $25 on a Seattle police damage report.

Sellin said his five-year-old son was badly frightened.

"Personally, I just found it alarming and annoying," he said. "But the thing that makes me maddest is that it's hard to calm a child of that age awakened by a crash in the night."

Pen. Inquiry to Hear Convict's Testimony

VANCOUVER (CP) — Andy Bruce, the prisoner injured in the June hostage ordeal at the British Columbia penitentiary, will give the Farris inquiry his version of events which led to the death of classification officer Mary Steinhauser.

Bruce's lawyer, Terrance Robertson, announced Tuesday his clinet's agreement to tesifty after visiting him at the penitentiary hospital where he is recovering from gunshot wounds to the chest and spleen.

The inquiry was adjourned indefinitely Tuesday after Chief Justic John Farris, who heads the three-member commission, said he would accept testimony from Bruce. Mr. Robertson estimated Bruce would be able to appear at the inquiry in three weeks.

Bruce, 26, was injured and Steinhauser, 32, was killed when a six-man tactical squad stormed the vault where 15 hostages were held for 41 hours. The guards made their move after some of the hostages tried to overwhelm their three knife-wielding captors.

Robertson said he is not at liberty to discuss specifics of his client's testimony, beyond saying it will "include the actual incident itself, and the shooting, and what he saw and heard."

Bruce is to testify under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act, which means his testimony cannot be used against him when he, Claire Wilson, 26, and Dwight Lucas, 20, face the 18 charges laid against each of them after the hostage ordeal.

John Rowan, inquiry counsel, said Bruce's testimony probably will be public. Much of the testimony at the inquiry has been given in camera because prison officials said the security of the institution and of individuals would be compromised if details of the final minutes of the siege were made public.

Gowon Pledges Loyalty

LAGOS, (AP)—Deposed Nigerian leader Gen. Yakubu Gowon said today he accepted the army coup against him and pledges his loyalty to the new government.

Gowon, speaking to reporters in Kampala, the capital of Uganda, appealed to Nigerians to co-operate with the new government "to ensure the preservation of peace, stability and unity" in his country.

He said he remained ready to serve his country "in any capacity."

Gowon was in Kampala attending a summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity (OAY) when he was deposed Tuesday.

He gave no hint of his personal plans — whether he intended to leave Kampala shortly and where he would go. He declined to answer any questions.

Nigerian broadcasts say the government and army of black Africa's largest and richest country are headed by Brig. Muritala Rufai Mohammed, 38, one-time ally of Gen. Gowon.

London newspapers say there are no major political differences between Gowon and the new ruler of Nigeria, third-largest supplier of oil to the United States, after Canada and Venezuela.

The oil industry is worth $11 billion a year to Nigeria.

Nigeria was sealed off from the outside world and radio broadcasts were virtually the only source of news after the takeover.

Gowon was in Kampala, Uganda, attending a summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity when the coup was announced over Lagos radio by his friend, Col. Joseph Garba, commander of Gowon's elite guard.

The radio announced a dusk-to-dawn curfew in Lagos. The capital's airport was closed by troops, most communications were terminated and borders were closed.

No violence was reported. Diplomats in Kampala said Lagos and surrounding areas were "surprisingly calm" late Tuesday.

Workers in non-essential jobs were told to stay home Tuesday "in view of the traffic situation in Lagos."

Lagos radio said Gowon's successor is a moslem of the large northern Hausa tribe.

The Hausas are one of three dominant tribes — with the Ibos and Yorubas — which evenly shared representation in Gowon's bureaucracy.

Hausas and other northern tribes make up more than half the population and have demanded more representation and a larger slice of Nigeria's booming oil economy.

Gowon, a Christian, also is a northerner but a member of the small Anga ethnic group. He symbolized a unified Nigeria after the bloody, 30-month Biafran civil war with Ibo secessionists.

PORNOGRAPHY SENT DOWN THE DANUBE

VIENNA (UPI) — A 40-year-old former postal clerk who threw out mail containing pornography said she was overpowered by moral indignation.

"I threw them into the Danube," the woman, identified only as Edith G., testified in court Tuesday. "I acted out of moral indignation against such things and against the people who order such things.

"Men begin by ordering things like that and end up by being unfaithful to their wives," she said.

Edith, a red-haired divorcee who is planning a second marriage, was given a five-month suspended sentence.

The court ruled she had been punished enough by being fired from her job at the post office. She was caught when 22 customers of a Vienna pornographic mailing house complained they never got their shipments.

Restaurant Staff Stage Walkout

Staff of the White Spot restaurant in the Town and Country shopping centre staged a one-day walkout today, protesting what they called the lack of union representation.

The 25 staff members, of the Canadian Food and Associated Services Union, set up a picket line outside the restaurant early today, closing down the operation.

A spokesman for the workers said they would be back at work Thursday morning.

In a statement by Dan Fidler, shop steward of the local union, the members claimed they were not getting proper representation from the union.

The union served 72-hour strike notice on White Spot Monday and the Town and Country members said the first they heard of the action was on a radio news program.

They said they did participate in a secret ballot strike vote on June 11, but said they felt the union was asking "for just too much all around."

The Western Gamble

Looking back in time we see Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin bundled up against a Crimean wind, posing for a picture during the 1945 Yalta conference where the postwar European future was decided. Thirty years later, 34 heads of state gather in Helsinki, Finland today to legitimize the reality of a Europe divided between Eastern and Western influences. The fact that 35 nations are taking part rather than three is a tacit indication of how much more complicated the world has become since the allies of old sat down to divide the spoils as they emerged victorious from the Second World War.

In the west everybody from Nobel prize-winning author Alexander Solzhenitsyn to the smallest East European ethnic organization warns against giving the Soviet Union's European incursions a western stamp of approval. Even some U.S. politicians express grave doubts about the glittering conclave that will legitimize the status quo. But President Ford, along with Prime Minister Trudeau, will sign on the dotted line in the hope that this declaration will further east-west detente. The Helsinki European Security Conference is the realization of a 20-year Soviet dream. As the cold war thawed, the old objections melted away. A prosperous Europe and a resigned United States want to further any course that will lower east-west tensions in a world where two opposing economic systems have been eyeball to eyeball for 30 years.

Yet this declaration of good intentions — it is not a treaty by any stretch of the imagination — conjures a good deal of cynicism in its wording. Besides legitimizing Soviet control of Eastern Europe it states that boundaries can be changed by peaceful agreement. This open-ended phrasing allows for anything from the reunification of Germany to the annexation of Finland by the Soviet Union. There is also a promise to respect the right of every European nation to freely choose and develop its political, social, economic and cultural systems. Such an ironic clause won't cause rejoicing in Hungarian or Czechoslovakian streets. Inclusion by the western powers of a codicil calling for troop cuts in Europe has resulted in two years of vain negotiations. It is this tangible kind of evidence that the Soviets are willing to compromise which is missing from the declaration.

In essence, this large concession to the Soviet Union is a gamble on the west's part. Our allies hope that it will result in equal Russian compromises in the Middle East and the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, to name only two areas where negotiations have been moving at a disappointing pace. Whether the conference will be the beginning of real detente or simply a sour historical footnote to a never ending struggle remains to be seen. But it is hard for any Western European or North American to rejoice at legitimizing brutal Soviet aggression in Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

Ten Weeks of Stupidity

If automobile insurance was declared null and void for 10 weeks in any other Canadian province the public hullaballo and resulting litigation would rectify the situation. In British Columbia, where an inured public doesn't even blink when prisoners try to form a union, the two-month-plus Insurance Corporation of British Columbia strike hardly causes a whimper. Just as Greater Victoria residents anted up their property taxes for services not rendered during the 13-week municipal strike lockout.

Since automobile insurance is a government monopoly, an argument could be made that it is an essential service. In any accident throughout the province over the last 10 weeks the car owner has had to pay for repairs if he needed the vehicle.

Without the alternative of another insurance company every driver in this province is at the mercy of a seemingly indifferent government. No doubt the Barrett regime is trying to effect an equitable settlement, despite charges that a long strike will only lessen the deficit-ridden corporation's red ink. Still, in the absence of heavy public criticism it is certainly in the government's interest to wait out the strike with all kinds of public headshaking. For the usual obvious political reasons the NDP regime is not going to legislate a crown corporation back to work. The party would end up biting itself if that ever happened.

Ideological considerations about interfering with the collective bargaining process, not to mention money saved, puts the government in an untenable position. It legislates monopoly car insurance. When the crown corporation dispensing same strikes all we hear is lofty talk about the collective bargaining process. If we only have government car insurance, then it is the responsibility of government to see that it functions. In a sense, the car-driving public of B.C. is ransomed to the governing party's political ideology, that is, party dictum is infecting the government process. While this is not unique in B.C., it is still reprehensible when an example emerges in any jurisdiction.

Car insurance is an essential service, so essential that the government thinks it is the only institution capable of running such an enterprise fairly. Considering the lower rates in the three provinces boasting government insurance, the Barrett government is probably correct in its assumption. But in shouldering this responsibility it must ensure that the company operates at all time or the concept becomes fatuous. Talks are said to be progressing on non-economic matters in the dispute. But if a settlement is not forthcoming soon, ICBC employees should be forced back to work under an arbitrary settlement. A union spokesman claims outstanding claims have reached 80,000 in number. Ten weeks of this stupidity is enough.

". . . it's a good thing for you and about three million other taxpayers that he isn't suing for all the nasty things said about his budget . . ."

DAVID MACDONALD

Sliding Down at Alarming Pace

LONDON — Particularly bleak support for the government's counter-inflation policy has come in the shape of a steep rise in unemployment and financially disastrous news from the nationalized British Steel Corporation.

If any British union needed convincing that the country is sliding into slump at alarming speed, it got it from what Employment Minister Michael Foot called the "tragic figure," on the numbers of out of work.

Unemployed: 4.2%

Urgent measures are now regarded as vital by the government to ease the pace of unemployment. They are most likely to take the form of increasing payments for training schemes and extending the system of temporarily subsidizing employers so they keep on workers who would be laid off or fired because of a business downturn.

The figure for England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland has now reached 976,500 unemployed on a seasonally-adjusted basis, or 4.2 per cent of the work force.

This is the worst figure since the war. It comes on top of the most recent figures of 26.1 per cent for price inflation, 32.2 per cent for basic weekly rates and 32.3 per cent for basic hourly rates, all reflecting the increase over the position one year ago.

The British Steel Corporation reports it is losing $11.5 million a week and will need immediate loans of up to $350 million to pay its wage bill and keep up with urgently-required capital modernization schemes.

A major parliamentary row is likely

because such a loan will send up government borrowing and expenditures at the very time when it has promised to hold the line to help the inflation battle.

BSC had already been marked down as needing loans of $1 billion, $265 million for the current financial year.

But, if the government were to deny the steel corporation the new extra loan it would mean serious redundancies and a cutback in the investment program, two items the Trades Union Congress would bitterly oppose.

The government is already reeling from the report of the $318 million loss by the state-owned British Rail, triple the deficit in the previous financial year.

The jump is blamed on inflation and price restraint, something passengers will find hard to swallow in view of three recent price increases and yet another one promised for this fall.

NCB Broke Even

Small cheer was provided by the report that the state-owned National Coal Board broke even, despite the huge settlement given to the coal miners after the ruinous strike of early 1974.

But, in order to break even the board had to sell some assets because the tiny profit was wiped out by interest charges and taxation.

Even the break-even claim is illusory, however, because the government had to pump in grants worth $150 million.

In direct political terms and most dangerous trend for the government is the increase in unemployment of 15,000 a week and it is to slowing this that all efforts will be bent in the coming weeks.

Chance for Canada

I have just completed reading a book entitled Portrait of Canada. This is a 400-page, hard-cover book written by Jay and Audrey Walz (U.S. citizens) and published by The New York Times. I picked it up on a recent visit to Ottawa at the astounding price of $1.98. Sales must have been awful, which is a great pity, for it could be read most usefully by both Americans and Canadians — for different reasons, of course.

Its usefulness to Americans is that it really does paint a most adequate picture of our country and if read by them would dispel the fact which seems to be fixed in many American minds that Canada is a form of Lower Slobbovia. Oh, there are inaccuracies and a little naive treatment here and there, but which of us could write a completely accurate book about the U.S.?

The authors explain and praise our "cultural mosaic" as opposed to the melting pot concept of the USA. But they also look very closely at our dreadful parochialism and put-down of each other — Newfie jokes, herring-chokers, Hogtown, squarefeads, western hick, savages — all those endearing terms we use in speaking of our brother Canadians, depending upon which part of our vast country we are privileged to inhabit. Mustn't forget the "maudit Anglais" — the Quebecois are as bad as the rest of us when it comes to put-downs.

They say: "It is for Canadians, by joining finally and determinedly behind a common purpose, to develop earth's last great frontier into a country that will endure and could become one of man's finest achievements. There is still time for that."

Is there? That, of course, is up to us. — Frederick O. Brown, 1029 Belmont Avenue.

Musical Treat

Through the courtesy of your newspaper I wish to express my thanks to and admiration for the Four Seasons Musical Theatre Society in conjunction with the Victoria Summer Festival, who last week presented excerpts from four Gilbert and Sullivan operas in our Newcombe auditorium.

The performance was outstanding. The voice quality of every member of the cast was superb; the dramatization excellent and the enunciation of words in the singing and in the spoken roles just perfect.

The musician accompanying on the piano was also outstanding, in fact just glorious.

The unique design of the stage scenery, the varied lighting and the clever arrangments of costumes formed a perfect setting for each opera.

As a citizen of Victoria, I feel very grateful for the Four Seasons Musical Theatre Society and for the Victoria Summer Festival who have worked to give us all the privilege to enjoy such high class entertainment.

Many thanks for this musical treat. — Miss Barbara E. Mather, 1069 Southgate Street.

Education Pendulum

I recognize the pendulum in education is swinging back but Susan Ruttan's article in the Times of July 19 makes the extent of the backlash horribly apparent.

Ms. Brice condemns a course as Mickey Mouse though she knows nothing about its content or value, on the grounds that the schools should concentrate on "reading and writing." Perhaps her education would have been improved if such courses had been introduced earlier. Peter Bunn apparently believes Victoria has spent wildly on school buildings. Has he ever looked at some of them? In comparison to any other area in British Columbia, disregarding other provinces, Victoria's schools are old and cheaply-equipped. The Spectrum school has been needed in that area for at least 10 years and, if earlier school boards had done their job, it would not now be costing so much.

Dr. Fisher should realize that education is not a business. Schools deal with people, not statistics. The costs of cheap education in the long run are greater than our cheese-paring board members can count. Believe it or not I almost miss Phil Ney. At least, he knew how far behind Victoria is. — Ian D. Parker, 2146 Windsor Road.

Sunday Exploitation

With the Lord's Day Act of 1906, the Laurier government filled a vacuum in our Sunday laws that overcame the incongruities and inapplicability of British Sunday legislation, and really superseded provincial acts based on it. This response was due to the appeal of labor, particularly railwaymen, for relief from seven-day-a-week duty. This largely explains the ban on Sunday railway excursions.

Contrary to what many think, due to mistaken remarks such as your editorial of July 17 (A Legislative Antiquity) makes, the Lord's Day Act has nothing to do with church attendance or worship. It does not force anybody to "observe" Sunday in a Christian way, but rather seeks to ensure freedom from commercial and industrial obligation for as many as possible, and to guarantee their right and need of a weekly day of rest.

Attention has long ago been called to the fact that Article 427.5 of the Treaty of Versailles, in setting up the covenant of the League of Nations sought to extend this freedom by recommending a weekly day of rest, preferably Sunday, wherever possible. This became a convention of the International Labor Office (now Organization), and was widely used in both pre- and post-Second World War periods.

The most sweeping extension of the principle has been under China's present regime in the 1950s. Previously Soviet Russia had first abandoned, then restored the weekly day of rest.

In Canada, the act has been sustained as human rights legislation by a supreme court judgment.

Restaurants are open legally on Sunday by virtue of that section on work of necessity and mercy, and most, if not all provinces have used the relevant permissive clauses for admission to be paid for Sunday sports and certain other entertainment events.

Millions of Canadians have their Sunday freedom legally due to the Lord's Day Act, which legislates this freedom. The ban on Sunday foreign newspapers was established to protect newsmen from pressures of competition forcing them into Sunday work.

Not every act can be perfect, but the Lord's Day Act is not hypocritical. It badly needs revision, or recasting as labor law. It would be both a loss and a mistake to abolish its provisions for a ILO convention named above. It assists weekly day of rest; also contrary to the family association, and the opportunity and right to religious liberty and association. — Harold T. Allen, 2140 Kings Road.

The Last Word

My apologies to M. P. B. Wrixon in being so tardy in replying to his letter of July 3, in which he tried to prove that 16 early CCF "members" of the House of Commons forced the issue for establishing old age pensions in Canada during 1925-27.

This old CCF-NDP fairy tale was debunked (for the third or fourth time in the Victoria area) in my previous letter of May 3, but for historical accuracy it seems I have to repeat what should be generally known: that the CCF did not exist at that time. It emerged from its idealistic womb in 1933, six years after the O. A. P. act was passed and contested its first federal election in 1935, eight years after the fact that it erroneously claims total or part credit for.

Secondly, what is not so generally known, is that the impetus for bringing in the act was provided by A. W. Neill, an independent representing Alberni, whose 1921 election platform and speech in parliament involved a plea for the O. A. P. — 14 years before the CCF contested an election.

In reply to your correspondent's "evidence" I would note that he is not the first NDP-CCF type to trot out the letter from Mackenzie King to J. S. Woodsworth, and Heaps, thanking them for their parliamentary support, and promising the pension legislation in return. Others have used it in an attempt to support their unsupportable claim.

But the issue boils down to one point — did the CCF predecessors (there were only two, Woodsworth and Heaps) have to be talked into supporting this legislation by Neill (to help save the King government)? Your correspondent says this "is just so much nonsense," but he provides no evidence. Neill on the other hand, in his letter to the Victoria local of the Socialist party of Canada of Oct. 1, 1956 and statement which he circulated among other people, was very emphatic on this point of behind-the-scenes activity. (Secrecy in government is not new.) Heaps apparently was easily won over but Neill puts it, ". . . it was a joke if or when Woodsworth claimed any credit. Woodsworth was an idealist and did not want to have any truck or trade with the enemy. He wanted to stand aloof . . . Heaps and I had a hard time getting Woodsworth to agree to the deal . . ."

Finally, it was not a CCF MP who had the "honor" of having the first O. A. P. cheque issued to one of his constituents, but A. W. Neill, without asking for it. A man of centre-to-right-wing sentiments to which reforms to capitalism, belong as much as to the left. — J. G. Jenkins, 959 Darwin Avenue.

Crushed by Jaws Of Soviet Shark

By JAMES EAYRS

"We must never — in any statement, declaration, treaty or other manner — recognize Soviet domination of Eastern Europe as permanent." So President John F. Kennedy declared on October 14, 1962 — taking time out from his missile crisis to do so.

A cynic would be quick to note that Kennedy — a politician to his fingertips — uttered his declaration in a Pulaski Day speech in Buffalo, N.Y. on the eve of congressional elections — a pitch aimed clearly at voters of Polish, Ukrainian and Baltic background. So it may have been.

But it was also the bedrock of United States foreign policy. Now that bedrock has disappeared. The document signed by the leaders of 35 European and North American countries (including Canada) at Helsinki this week proclaims the "inviolability" of existing European frontiers.

It is a sad day for exiles from nations crushed by the jaws of the Soviet shark. Saddest of all for those exiles from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania whose homelands — territorially tiny but free and thriving democracies with vibrant cultures of their own — were grabbed by the Red Army 35 years ago.

It may be too much to expect the delegates in Finlandia Hall to take time out from their self-congratulatory speeches to observe one minute's silence in memory of these victims of an act of realpolitik as callous as any in this terrible twentieth century. But perhaps they may find the grace within themselves to mute their rhetoric a bit.

Two Nobel Laureates have been contesting the significance of detente and how this Conference on Security and Co-operation may be expected to promote it. One is American, the other Russian. Gourmets with a taste for irony will savour appreciatively the way each seems to have gone over to the other's side.

For Laureate Henry Kissinger, the Conference is a consolidation of past efforts at Soviet-American detente, provides the basis for further progress towards an era of good feeling.

There is, of course, a price for this, which Kissinger thinks is worth it. "Where the age-old antagonism between freedom and tyranny is concerned," the U.S. Secretary of State declared in his major address on detente of September 19, 1974, "we are not neutral. But other imperatives impose limits on our ability to produce internal changes in foreign countries. Consciousness of our limits is recognition of the necessity of peace — not moral callousness. The preservation of human life and human societies are moral values too."

More specifically: "We must know what can and cannot be achieved in changing human conditions in the East ... Some argue that ... demands for internal changes must be the precondition for the pursuit of a relaxation of tensions with the Soviet Union ... Our view is different."

It is a far cry from the rhetoric of Patrick Henry to the rhetoric of Henry Kissinger.

For Laureate Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn, the change has not been for the better. Like some ancient mariner disturbing guests at a celebration by his harrowing tale of the extremities to which humans may be driven, Solzhenitsyn is not permitting Western statesmen to forget the price they are willing to pay for the promise of detente. To him it seems much too high.

The landscape of detente, from Solzhenitsyn's angle of vision, is infested by three different types of demons.

One is the demon of danger — detente is injurious to our health.

"Soon the Soviets will be twice as powerful as you," Solzhenitsyn told an audience in New York City three weeks ago, "and then five times and ten times. And some day they will say to you, 'We are marching our troops into Western Europe, and if you act, we shall annihilate you'. And the troops will move, and you will not act."

And again: "Is it ever possible to warn anyone of oncoming danger? How many witnesses have come to your country, how many waves of immigration, all warning you of the same experiences and the same dangers? Yet these proud skyscrapers still stand, and you go on believing that it will not happen here. Only when it happens to you will you know it is true."

A second is the demon of illusion — detente is an exercise in self-deception.

How can the Soviet leaders be expected to live up to the letter — let alone the spirit — of that part of the Helsinki declaration that enjoins the free expression of ideas upon its signatories? The free expression of ideas is anathema to a society whose ruling class treats dissent either as a crime to be punished by imprisonment or as a disease to be treated by thought-destroying drugs? Haloperidol and trifazen have replaced the rack and the bamboo splint as instruments of coercion; and this is called progress.

The third is the demon of immorality — detente is wicked.

Helsinki, says Solzhenitsyn, will with Munich and with Yalta become one of those sites of history where weaker peoples are sacrificed in the interests of the strong. The document produced by so much arduous diplomacy he regards as "the betrayal of Eastern Europe." To sign it is "to acknowledge officially its slavery forever."

Which of the two Laureates will history judge to have been most finely attuned to the significance of these events? I do not share Solzhenitsyn's sabre-rattling asseverations of Soviet armies poised to strike at Western Europe. There is little evidence that this has ever been their goal.

Nor do I admire Kissinger's readiness to leave captive nations in the lurch, abandoning their gallant governments-in-exile.

It is not the first time that it has happened. In 1942, a Canadian diplomat told a shocked American colleague in Ottawa that, in his view, "Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania was a small price to pay to convince Russia of (allied) trust and earnestness."

Commenting on that unfeeling remark many years later, I'd written that a fitting act of restitution for it, "solacing those exiled men and women who have made Canada their home and native land," would be for the head of our delegation at some future European security conference to place on its agenda the question of "the future independence of these captive countries whose only fault was to possess more geopolitical significance than was good for them to have."

The Conference has come and gone, our opportunity missed, our worth as a people concerned with freedom to some degree diminished. Is anyone ashamed?

Cambodia: Returning to the Past

By HENRY KAMM

BANGKOK — Dozens of recent Cambodian refugees, some of whom escaped from the country as late as July 8, are telling of a nation in a state of total revolutionary upheaval that is rapidly returning to its undeveloped past of a century ago.

Relief at the end of the war was the initial reaction of most Cambodians to the Communist victory, according to the refugees. But that relief yielded to terror when the forced exodus of all the population from most inhabited places was announced. This was done in some places, like Phnom Penh, the capital, immediately after the victory, in others within a few days.

Only villages long held by the Communists appear to have been exempt. The only accounts of villages still populated by their original inhabitants came from refugees who fled through regions of Kompong Thom and Siem Reap provinces occupied by the Communists since 1970.

Cambodia's towns now are said to be empty except for small groups of Communist soldiers planting banana trees around palaces, public buildings and monuments and any arable urban space. Paved roads are nearly deserted, as are most of the villages along them.

Most of the country's population, about seven million, apparently is engaged in clearing the jungles, forests and shrub-studded plains for the planting of rice, while many fields long under cultivation lie fallow because they are situated near once-inhabited palaces or important roads.

Money is no longer used, according to the refugees, nor are medicines, because what little stocks existed remained in the towns. Children are said to supervise the work of their elders and report their failings to the Communist authorities for punishment.

Cambodians are told that the past is finished and all habits of the past must be cast off; that all people are equal and everyone is master of his destiny; that Cambodia has defeated all foreign enemies, notably the Americans, but the internal enemy remains to be vanquished.

Rebuilding in the countryside

Those who resist are warned they will be crushed by "the revolutionary wheel," a phrase often repeated. Cambodians must address each other as Samak Mit for men and Mit Neary for women. Those are new terms roughly equivalent to comrade. Subtleties of the Khmer language, which has different vocabularies and forms of address indicating social relationships, are forbidden.

All Cambodia works under the direction of a remote and nameless entity commonly referred to as Angka, the Cambodian word for organization. Angka is said to be the Communist Party of Kampucher—the Cambodian name of the nation. This is the political organization that directs the revolutionary army.

Angka remains as anonymous as the word, according to the refugees' accounts. None of the many people interviewed had ever seen any official higher than a local chief or knew the name and whereabouts of any higher leader. It is not known whether Cambodia has a functioning capital or any bodies of government.

There is, however, a central directing body, since accounts from various parts of Cambodia show that a uniform policy is being applied. But co-ordination and direction take pace at a level far removed from the people. They are the tasks of people neither seen nor named, in a place that is not known.

The people see only the black-uniformed, very young Communist soldiers who supervise their work, whose names they rarely know and who are taciturn, or the nameless men who come to tell them what the new Cambodia expects from its citizens.

All the refugees speak of killings by Communist soldiers, often arbitrary.

All accounts of the exodus contain common characteristics. From Phonom Penh as well as from smaller towns and villages, people reported that the exodus from centres of population had been total. Am Lavuth, 22, a high school student, said he had marched in a mass that left the capital on the highway leading north in which patients were being pushed in their hospital beds while others held intravenous bottles over their heads.

He said that he had seen the first arbitrary killings when two women soldiers asked the men in a group of families in front of him whether they were soldiers. He said he had seen five stepping to the side of the road, being told to put their hands behind their backs and being shot one by one by the women.

The populations of Battambang and Pailin, two provincial capitals about 50 miles apart and linked by a dirt road, were driven along that road from opposite ends until tens of thousands gathered at a roadblock near the village of Khum Sneng, nearer to Battambang.

Soeng Boun Loeum, 25, of Pailin, who had made his living by digging gems, said the people were told to move into the dense forest on both sides of the road. Three hills were designated as centres of areas in which groups that he estimated at perhaps 20,000 each were told to settle.

His group reached an area in the forest about 20 miles from the road. The people were told to build shelters in a large ring around the hill. They were divided into groups of 10 young men or 10 young women, or family groups containing 10 adults plus their dependents.

Each group was assigned about five acres of scrub land or jungle to clear and prepare for rice planting. The emphasis throughout was on the self-sufficiency that is a principal theme of the new Cambodia. The people were instructed to find their materials and fashion their tools. Many had to work with their bare hands.

Each person received a milk tin of rice daily and a small quantity of salt. All were told to supplement this with whatever edible roots they could find.

The Voice of the Turtle

By ANTHONY LEWIS

We saw the snapping turtle at the beginning of summer. It would appear toward evening, its head sticking out of the water just below the house: a menacing sight, after all we had heard about snapping turtles.

They ate baby ducks and were a general menace to wildlife; they could shoot their head out and snap a man's toe in their powerful jaws.

"Make a trap," a friend said when we told her about the turtle. "You've got to get rid of it. And if you do catch it, I want it for snapper soup. They're wonderful eating."

There was a lot of talk about traps. You had to build one that lay under the water, with a float on top to mark it. Old-timers said the bait should be meat that had gone off, good and smelly.

Then one morning we saw a strange object in the pond, like an animal rolling in the water. We went out to have a look, and it was two huge turtles, one on top of the other—mating, presumably. When we came alongside in a canoe, they paid no attention.

It was our chance to rid the cove of the menace. We went out with a four-pronged garden cultivator, an old crab net and paddles. When we poked awkwardly at the turtles, one scuttled away. But David hooked the cultivator under the second one's shell and managed to drag it on to the beach. We turned it over and tied some line around it, avoiding teeth and claws.

What a repellent creature: two feet long, its scaly neck five inches thick, the feet with long claws, the skin of the underbelly tough, reptilian, the thick pointed tail ridged like a dinosaur's. The whole thing seemed an atavism, a throwback to something prehistoric.

Feeling accomplished, we telephoned the friend who wanted to make snapper soup and said we had a turtle for her. That was fine, she said: Just kill it and bring it along.

Kill it? How? "Wave a stick near its head, and when it puts its neck out and bites the stick, chop the head off with an axe. You do have an axe?" Yes, we had an axe. But the act of killing was hard to face. I remembered the chapter in Lillian Hellman's "Pentimento" where a snapping turtle that Dashiell Hammett has supposedly killed crawls away ...

Back for another look at the captured turtle. It looked monstrous. But as it lay on its back, trussed, you could hear it breathing — heavily, like a person exhausted. Suddenly the fable of Beauty and the Beast came to mind. We had taken the turtle in the act of love.

Mal, our neighbor who lives on the pond year-round, came down to see. He knows a lot about turtles, as he does about everything on the pond. He caught a snapper once and kept it in his greenhouse for three months, till it escaped. It left dozens of eggs, and he kept them in sand until about 20 of them hatched and he let the baby snappers go.

"One animal that will not be a pet," Mal said, "that will not conform, is a snapping turtle."

What about killing it? we asked. We didn't want to do it, but we could find somebody who would take the turtle to eat.

"Oh they're good to eat," Mal said. "The Indians ate them here 4,000 years ago; you find turtle bones and shells in their mounds. The eggs are good, too. I've eaten them; they look like ping pong balls. But it's a question of your philosophy about killing creatures. I'm against it."

But snapping turtles are a menace, we said. They've eaten your ducks. The children are afraid to swim here now.

"It's easy to kill things because they're ugly and dangerous," Mal said, "but they have a purpose, too. The world is not meant to be all tame and safe. It's like sharks; they tell us that the sea is not all ours, that we can't have everything our own way. There have always been snapping turtles in this pond, and they probably won't attack you unless you attack them."

We tried the wildlife preserve, but they did not want a snapping turtle. We were about ready to put it back in the pond when a friend said he would take it the next day and release it a few miles away.

That night we could hear the turtle scraping around, trying to get out of its cage. Someone asked, "Do you think the other turtle is out there looking for its mate? Will it be angry at us now?"

Pulp, Newsprint Markets' Slump Seen

By AL FORREST
Times News Services

The market for pulp will collapse like a waterfall during the last half of this year, says Kenneth P. Benson, senior executive vice-president of British Columbia Forest Products.

The market for newsprint will also be very weak, although relatively stronger than the pulp market, he said. There are no signs of price increases for either product. Production of pulp and paper has been halted by a strike since July 16.

Denis Timmis, president of MacMillan Bloedel, said his company also expects the markets for pulp and newsprint to be severely depressed during the last half of this year. He said there are huge inventories of both products in the storerooms of customers in both North America and Europe.

During the first half of this year, the market was strong for both products and prices were at historical highs at about $285 per ton for newsprint and $370 per ton for pulp.

Production has been strong and markets fairly good during the first six months but this was mainly due to high purchases by customers who were stocking up in anticipation of the present strike. Unless the strike is prolonged, there will be very little demand for either product once the strike is over.

The market for pulp and paper is expected to bottom out during the last half of this year.

By contrast, the market for lumber and plywood is believed to have already hit bottom and will be on its way up after the present summer curtailment is over.

Sawmills are producing at about 65 per cent capacity on the coast and at 70 per cent capacity in the interior and surpluses are being used up by American customers.

The price of lumber hit a peak in March of 1973 and then slid to a bottom in September of 1974. There has been some price recovery since that time and the outlook is for fairly strong prices in the fall, although still below the peak reached in 1973.

In March of 1973, prices of douglas fir two-by-fours, a standard construction item, hit $182 per thousand feet. The price fell to $145 at the end of June, 1974, and hit bottom at $95 at the end of September.

The price rose to $105 by year's end and hit $125 in March, 1975, and $142 in May before settling back to $125 in July. The present price is $57 below the peak reached in the 1973 boom. Adding to the recovery is an expected boom in U.S. housing construction by spring of 1976. A construction boom is normal during a presidential election year, although B.C. industry spokesmen had expected this incentive to have been under way by this time.

For example, a $20 billion housing program in the U.S. would result in $100 million worth of orders for B.C. lumber after a time lag of about four months.

Just how badly the lumber market has slumped in the first half is evident in production figures just released. After four months, total lumber production reached 2.6 billion board feet, down from 3.5 billion in the corresponding 1974 period and down from 3.6 billion during the boom of 1973.

Total 1974 production had been 8.8 billion board feet, down from 10.4 billion in 1973.

Plywood production was also down in the first quarter to 416 million square feet from 556 million a year earlier.

Demand for lumber is so low in the United States at this time that MacMillan Bloedel has halted all cargo shipments to the Atlantic coast.

Lumber exports by water during the first six months of this year hit 772 million board feet, down from 1.3 billion board feet in the first half of 1974. June exports totalled only 136.4 million board feet, compared with 422.3 million board feet the previous June.

The main collapse was in the U.S. market. June shipments to the U.S. totalled only 76.1 million board feet, down from 309.8 million, while shipments to the United Kingdom fell to 20.9 million from 40.7 million and shipments to Japan slipped to 15.6 million from 32.8 million board feet.

However, industry sources are convinced the worst is just about over in the lumber market and some minor boom may be under way before winter. It could be well into 1976, however, before the recovery has reached significant levels.

Westcoast Trans.

Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. reported net earnings of $14,396,000 for the first six months of 1975, compared with $12,637,000 in the corresponding period in 1974.

Earnings were $1.55 a share this year, compared with $1.46 a share last year.

Weighted average number of common shares outstanding during the period was 9,274,184 compared with 8,672,800 last year. The increase resulted from conversions of the company's convertible debentures.

Cash flow for the period totalled $26,991,000 or $2.91 a share compared with $22,751,000 or $2.62 a share for the first half of 1974.

45 cents a share on Westcoast's issued and outstanding common shares, payable September 29, 1975, to shareholders of record August 29, 1975.

Shell Canada

Shell Canada Ltd. reports earnings for the first half of 1975 of $70.3 million or 70 cents a share, the same as for the first six months of 1974.

Second-quarter earnings were $34.2 million against $36.1 million for the corresponding period last year.

Shell said the decline in second-quarter earnings reflected the impact of inflationary pressures on operating costs, soft demand for petroleum products and chemicals and higher royalties and income taxes.

The adverse effect of these factors was partially offset by increased revenue from natural gas sales due to price and volume improvements, the company said.

Grt. Cdn. Oil Sands

A loss of $10.1 million has been reported by Great Canadian Oil Sands for the first six months of 1975, compared with a profit of $2.1 million in the first half of 1974.

Company president Kenneth F. Heddon said first-quarter production was hampered by cold weather and mechanical and electrical problems and a scheduled biennial maintenance shutdown had reduced production in the second quarter.

As a result, production of 6.1 million barrels for the six months was down 1.3 million barrels from the comparable 1974 period.

The company reported that the latest loss brought its deficit to $88 million since it started operations in 1968.

Husky Oil

Husky Oil Ltd. has announced plans to drill 58 wells in the Lloydminster area this year. The wells are part of an $8.5 million development drilling program involving drilling in California, Colorado and the Lloydminster area, the company said in a statement.

The 58 wells around Lloydminster are in addition to 67 wells already in the firm's 1975 program. Twenty-six wells have been completed to date in Saskatchewan and 25 In Alberta under the original program.

Fourteen wells are to be drilled in the Santa Maria basin in California and five wells are planned for Colorado.

The development drilling is a step in Husky's program to expand crude oil production capacity in areas of both heavy and light crude oil supplies, company president James Nielson said.

'Luxury' Air Conditioning Nearing Necessity Status

TORONTO (CP) — Air conditioning, once a luxury only for the rich, is fast becoming a way of life for Canadians, says executive Graham Whidden.

"Air conditioning is now so widely accepted as part of our way of life that thousands of Canadian motorists, who would have sneered a tthe idea a few years ago or laughed it off as a frivolous luxury, now are demanding it in their cars," he says.

Whidden, general manager of the York division, Borg-Warner Canada Ltd. that makes air conditioners, says the last major holdout against central cooling systems — the homeowner — has "apparently capitualted."

The use of central air conditioning for homes is growing at the rate of 83 per cent a year, he says. The percentage comes fom industry figures based on research into unit shipments by Canadian manufacturers in 1973 and 1974.

"The growth rate, impressive in any circumstances, is particularly interesting in view of the fact that residential centralized air conditioning has been around for decades, although not widely utilized."

Widden says continued affluence is one reason why air conditioning has come to be regarded as a convenience rather than an unnecessary frill or luxury.

A central cooling system represents about 2.5 per cent of the cost of an average house, a marginal amount considering the high cost of homes today.

Urban sprawl is another factor, says Whidden, who serves on a committee of the Heating and Air Conditioning Association dealing with noise legislation.

As cities and towns grow in size, more houses and factories are being built on the fringes which are served by more and more expressways.

"As a result," he said, "there is a growing desire to seal up houses in order to lessen the noise and eliminate dust and dirt."

Many builders are putting up houses with air conditioning already installed, both as a selling technique and to meet demand.

Whidden says this means that many lower-income families moving into new homes have the benefit of air conditioning.

"So, while the recent growth has been centred in the middle class, it still covers the whole social spectrum of high, medium and lower income groups."

The widespread incidence of allergies in polluted cities was another reason why people turned to air conditioning. Cleaner, cooler air brings relief from allergies in many cases.

Easy and low-cost installation was another factor, he said. Central systems use the same ducts for both heating and cooling, although modifications may be required in some instances.

Ont. Outlook Good For 3.9% Beer

TORONTO (CP) — A new, low-alcohol beer may prove to be more popular in Ontario than i nAlberta and British Columbia where it has been on the market for three years, a Labatts Ltd. spokesman said.

Labatts recently introduced the new light beer, Cool Spring, to the Ontario market. It is brewed with 3.9 per cent alcohol by volume, compared to about 5.0 per cent for most other Canadian beers.

Bruce Elliot, vice president and general manager of Labatts Ontario breweries, says there appears to be a small but definite market for the light beer.

"In Ontario, we are just getting started. I think in time our share in Ontario will be ever bigger than in the Western provinces — even without the price advantage."

A similar, low-alcohol beer sells in Alberta and B.C. for about 60 cents less than the regular brands. Elliot says this is because beer distribution in those provinces is controlled by the provincial governments which accept a lesser mark-up on the lighter beer brands.

In Ontario, distribution is handled by Brewers' Warehousing Co. Ltd., wholly-owned by the industry.

Elliot says the lighter beer is just as expensive to produce as the regular brands.

So far, Elliot says Cool Spring has about one per cent of the Ontario market, compared to two to three per cent in the West.

Manitoba is expected to be the next province to be tested for the new beer.

Tory MP Feels Threatened About Phone Log Equipment

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—A new electronic system to log long-distance calls made on government telephones may threaten the right to privacy of parliamentarians, an opposition MP said Tuesday.

Perrin Beatty (PC—Wellington - Grey - Dufferin - Waterloo) raised the matter in the Commons saying that in a democracy "citizens should be able to talk freely with their representative about confidential matters."

He noted that the equipment, installed last June in the capital area, could not monitor the content of calls but would note the telephones from which calls were made and those to which they were places.

House Speaker James Jerome said he had had the matter investigated and that preliminary reports "are reassuring in respect to the nature of this equipment."

However, he said the investigation would continue and that he would rule on the matter after Parliament's summer recess.

Beatty had raised a question of privilege asking the government to make sure the new logging equipment was not used on MPs' telephones.

He told the House the logging system on long-distance calls was designed to "provide departments with information they can use to prevent improper use of the leased lines by government employees."

The department of communications had signed a five-year $1.5 million contract with Bell Canada for "traffic data service for the 35,0000 line government telephone system in the national capital region," he said.

Such systems were already in effect in Vancouver and Edmonton, he added, and other centres were being considered.

He was later asked by reporters what his concern was if the logging system could not monitor the content of telephone calls.

Communications Minister Gerard Palletier told the House that Beatty might "creating a public commotion for nothing."

Beatty told the press that the system would give the government to check up on who is called whom; and sometimes people did not want it known that they called a member of parliament.

He gave the example of members of the armed forces who might register complaints with MPs even though the government "discouraged" such practices.

FIRST WITNESS AUG. 11 ON 'LEAK'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons committee investigating a newspaper's charges that a government MP leaked confidential tax information to boat and motor dealers will hear its first witnesses Monday, Aug. 11.

Rod Blaker, privileges and elections committee chairman, said Tuesday the plan is to sit for four consecutive days to discuss the allegations against John Reid (L — Kenaora-Rainy River).

The accusations that Reid, parliamentary secretary to Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp, leaked information on proposed tax changes, came last week in a story in Montreal Gazette.

Export Charge On Fuel Drops

OTTAWA (FP)—The federal export charge on motor gasoline and middle distillates, such as heating oil, is being lowered by 75 cents a barrel, effective Aug. 1.

The export charge on heavy fuel oils is being dropped by $1.25 a barrel, also effective Aug. 1.

The two reductions only partially reflect the recent increase of $1.50 a barrel in the Canadian domestic wellhead price for crude oil which is expected to appear in refined product wholesale prices in most parts of Canada in mid-August, when the federal price freeze is lifted.

In Ontario, and possibly in Nova Scotia and British Columbia, the price of gasoline will stay frozen at the old price until the fall.

Another reduction in the export charge for refined products is expected in September. For gasolines and heating oils, it will likely be similar to the August reduction.

The larger reduction in the charge for heavy fuel oil exports is the result of lower competitive prices for the products in the U.S.

As a result of the reductions, the export charge in August for motor gasoline exports will be $3.50 a barrel, compared to $4.25 a barrel in July.

Meanwhile, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday the federal government plans to impose export controls and an export levy on a number of partially-processed oils made from domestic crude oil, including naphtha.

He said that the new controls will come into effect as soon as the necessary regulations are put in place.

Forces Band To Perform In Park

Victorians who enjoy the tradition of summer Sunday afternoon concerts in Beacon Hill Park, next month will hear the Canadian Forces Naden Band perform under their new director, Capt. Con Furey, CD, FCBA.

Capt. Furey, who plans to program many of his own arrangements for the concert to take place Aug. 31, assumed the Naden appointment this month.

Born and educated in Ireland and at the Army School of Music in Dublin, Furey came to Canada in 1956 to become trumpeter and staff arranger for the Central Band of the Royal Canadian Air Force in Ottawa.

He attended the Canadian Forces School of Music in Victoria in 1963. After graduating top of his class and winning a fellowship of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association he was commissioned and became the first Canadian officer assigned as assistant to the director of NORAD Command Band.

He came to his new appointment from his position in Ottawa as associate director of music to the Canadian Forces Central Band.

Benefit Recital For Singer

A benefit recital has been arranged for Victoria soprano Pierann Moon, whose difficulties in obtaining funds to finance 10 months' advanced study in Germany were made known in a Times story Saturday.

Miss Moon, assisted at the piano by Jocelyn Abbott, will give the recital at First United Church, Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The program she has chosen is a comprehensive one, including songs by Handel, Bach and Mozart; a group by English composer Michael Head, some French art songs by Debussy and Messiaen, and a group of folk songs.

From the works of the Canadian composer Robert Fleming, Miss Moon has chosen a cycle entitled The Confession.

Proceeds of a collection will initiate a bursary fund for the gifted singer.

It's tough going keeping her afloat!

—Max Low photos

Leisure, Fun Mark Tsartlip Days

They paddled frantically, the two tykes.

They had their own ideas of what an Indian canoe race should be like.

The chants of 77 warriors (including a few warriorettes) echoing across the waters of beautiful Brentwood Bay didn't bother them. There were more vital matters close at hand. After all the tiny boat was sinking and it was already two feet from the shore!

And further along the sand, as Geronimo of the host Tsartlip Band flashed to victory just ahead of Cowichan's Sweet Daddy in the feature 11-man race over a gruelling five mile course, another small tot tried her best to get in the action on a waterlogged plank.

It was all part of the annual Tsartlip Indian Days last weekend, and the planks and the tiny tub boats had just as big a role as the massive 52-foot canoes. For it was a family affair.

While canoe-maker Manny Cooper of the Tsartlip band toiled barbecuing fresh salmon under the hot sun, jovial portly master-of-ceremonies Samuel Sam (doesn't matter which way you say it, my name's Sam) kept spectators up to date on how much there was available to eat and what was coming up on the program, although no one was quite sure when.

And Samuel's son Gregory Sam, who has been conducting a special summer youth program on the Tsartlip Reserve teaching youngsters swimming and safety in canoeing, kept the events going, whenever he was able to round up the contestants.

And I bumped into Joe Lawrence, who heads the housing program for the Neah Bay, Washington, Makah Tribe which had two canoes entered in the 11-man race.

"We try to make all the Indian celebrations in Canada, although it's a 600-mile round trip for us to come here," he said. "We have a big celebration ourselves on the 27,000-acre Makah Reservation Aug. 21, 22 and 23 and we try to encourage as many Canadian Indians as possible to come down for that."

The canoe racing—as well as the 11-man race there were a women's race, single paddle and double paddle events, and a buckskin (16-and-under boys' race—was the highlight of the Tsartlip Days.

"It's pretty tough, but it's a lot of fun," Greg Sam mused as he looked out over the water and listed to the chants. "I used to race a few years ago but you've got to be fit. It takes two to three hours training every night. As the saying goes 'you pull hard in the race, and you pull even harder the next day when you're practising.' "

There were other things too, like swimming races for the kids and traditional Indian bone games for the adults.

And there was a delightful kind of timelessness about the whole thing. I guess that today we all worry too much about the clock and precisely

max low

what time something is to be held. And I guess someone has to worry. But sometimes, it's nice not to be hurried.

Down on the beach, Greg Sam's all set to get the women's canoe race going, but they've lost Linda.

And Sam Sam calls for Linda over the public address system and no one seems quite sure where she's gone. But she'll be back, you know. And the race can wait. And you've been there almost three hours and have seen just one race.

Then you ask what time is the next match in the five-a-side soccer tournament and Sam Sam beams and says "Oh yes, that starts at four o'clock." But you look at your watch and it's 4:30 already and there's not even any sign of the ball, let alone anyone to kick it.

But then, if the contestants are having fun and if they're not worried about what's happened to Linda or the soccer ball, why should we be?

Indeed, they were having fun.

As Greg Sam put it:

"No matter what happens, we try to carry on with these days of fun."

And, when all around us we read only of the seriousness of land claims and roadblocks and of trouble . . . then it's kind of nice to relax, have fun.

Faculty Association Angry at Cutoff

By ELEANOR BOYLE
Times Staff

The University of Victoria Faculty Association—which protects the academic rights and freedoms of UVic professors—has had its funding cut out of the university's record $28.7 million budget and association president Dave Henn is upset.

"I'm sorry to see the university give us only $1,000 this year and none next year when it gives $6,000 per year to the Faculty Club to subsidize booze and food," Henn Said.

"It appears someone has their priorities wrong."

Last year's association budget was $1,700, said Henn, and that figure is being cut to zero over two years.

His comments came after a UVic board of governors meeting where details of the 1975-76 university budget were discussed.

Final figure for university expenses is $28,759,343, up $36,343 from the preliminary budget approved in April, according to bursar Bob McQueen.

Only one board member raised objections at the meeting to the Faculty Association's budget cut, at the same time protesting large increases to UVic's Alumni Association and University Relations department.

Economics professor Izzud-Din Pal cited jumps in the budget of $23,940 to $33,600 for the Alumni Association and of $83,050 to $101,828 for University Relations.

He got little response when he asked for reasons.

"UVic has traditionally considered the Alumni Association an important body," board chairman S. J. Cunliffe later told the Times.

Graduates automatically belong to the group which keeps alumni up to date on UVic affairs and raises money for research projects and scholarships.

The association has about 8,000 members most of whom are not active, and pays director Paul Sutherland $10,000 per year and one other person a full-time salary.

University Relations handles public relations for UVic and employs five persons including director Maurice Cownden whose salary for 1974-75 was $20,675.

Its budget jump will help pay for a tabloid-sized publication planned to replace Cownden's existing weekly newsletter and go to students as well as faculty and staff, he said Monday.

Job of the Faculty Association is protection of the rights and academic freedoms of UVic professors.

"It's not close to being a union, but it's concerned with the professional well-being of faculty," said Henn.

Association members represent professors when they sit with board of governors members and hammer out changes to the Tenure Document when the need arises.

The document lays down terms of professors' contracts with the university and ensures they can work without fear of being fired, said Henn.

Professors are not obliged to join but 70 per cent are signed up and meetings are well-attended, he said.

One association committee recently submitted a brief to the board of governors asking that UVic professors' salaries be brought to par with University of B.C. and Simon Fraser Uiversity salaries.

The request will be considered in next year's budget, the Times was told.

Henn said UVic salaries are below those at other B.C. universities in a substantial number of categories.

"On the raw basis we're the lowest (in the province), in all ranks." philosophy professor Charles Daniels said after the meeting which he also attended.

"You make more money (in a career) if you start out as a high school teacher than as a university teacher," said Daniels.

He said the situation would be slightly bettered if UVic salaries matched those at University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser University.

LIFEGUARD TEAMS PUT THROUGH PACES

Seven and possibly eight lifeguard teams will compete Friday evening and Saturday in the 4th annual Vancouver Island open Lifeguarding Championships.

Organizer Stan Anderson said Tuesday the public is welcome to view the contests, at UVic's McKinnon Pool from 7 p.m. to 10 pm. Friday, at Thetis Lake from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday and at Beaver Lake from 1 to 4 p.m.

Each three-member team will be judged on how it handles a series of simulated emergencies in the water.

Among teams competing will be two from Powell River which finished first and second in a provincial pool competition in Vancouver last weekend. There will be teams from Courtenay, Thetis Lake, two from Saanich and one from Esquimalt and there may be a team from Vancouver as well.

Judges will be Anderson, Jim Mitchell from Vancouver and Steve Beerman from Powell River. Anderson is the Vancouver Island representative for the National Lifeguard Service which trains and certifies lifeguards.

CRITICS GET THE BLAME

Mayor Peter Pollen and Ald. Alf Hood were critical of regional board spending Tuesday but board chairman Jim Campbell pointed out today both were in key board positions but failed to do anything about it.

The region's $7.5 million operating budget, up almost 50 per cent over last year, came under fire when Victoria city council in caucus learned its contribution is up almost 70 per cent.

Both Hood and Pollen, the city's representatives on the board, worried aloud about the board's growth. Pollen said the board is "wandering" and without "specific objectives."

Hood said he wasn't happy with the regional budget and he didn't know where the increases were going to end.

Campbell noted today that both Pollen and Hood are members of a budget committee and Hood is as well a member of an executive finance sub-committee. Both bodies are charged with overhauling the budget before it comes before the board.

Pollen and Hood, as the city's representatives, were deliberately placed by him in "most influential" positions relating to regional budget matters.

Neither made specific motions to ammend the board's budget although both made "wandering" objections to it, said Campbell.

He also noted that the largest increase in regional spending was in the budget for community health services ($2.7 million). Ald. Hood is chairman of the board's committee dealing with such services.

Seven-Year Sentence For Speed Trafficker

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Dennis Grant Laverty was sentenced today to seven years in penitentiary for possession of methamphetamine (speed) for the purpose of trafficking.

Laverty, 24, of 208-3150 Jutland, was convicted last week after a six-day trial on the charge which arose from a police raid June 6, 1974.

County Court Judge Montague Drake, in a brief comment before sentence, said Laverty was close "to this corrupt and nefarious trade."

Methamphetamine is controlled under the Food and Drug Act and the maximum sentence is 10 years. A synthetic white with brown fleck crystal, it is commonly known as speed, splash or crystal.

Laverty took his sentence quietly but outside court his three-year-old son, accompanied by Mrs. Marguerite Laverty, was crying for his father.

Prosecutor Mike Hutchison said speed is "extremely dangerous" and pointed to B.C. court of appeal decisions that sentencing for trafficking must give first consideration to deterrence of others.

"This is not a local cottage industry," he said referring to the speed deal in which five pounds of 74 per cent pure speed was brought to Victoria. Laverty was found to have been in possession of two pounds.

Hutchison said it was a carefully-contrived plan with close connections to the criminal underworld in the east.

He referred to a conviction against Laverty in 1971 for trafficking in LSD in which he was sentenced six months and added "he hasn't learned his lesson."

Defence lawyer Sid Simons of Vancouver said Laverty's father is willing to have his son return to Lloydminster, Sask., to work in the family business.

Laverty had become involved in a situation "that went over his head."

Sgt. George Hawkes of the RCMP told court that two pounds of speed mixed with 15 pounds of dextrose would enable the material to be sold in "papers" for an ultimate street value of $304,640.

Under cross-examination, he said "apparently" the price paid by Laverty to Robert Drainville of Montreal for two pounds was $7,000.

The key witness for the crown turned out to be Drainville, who told court the speed deal was between him and Laverty for delivery of five pounds in Victoria.

Drainville is facing two charges from the same incident but his case has been waived to Montreal.

Defence witness Gordon Harry Okell said the deal was between him and Drainville and Laverty wasn't involved. Judge Drake, in convicting Laverty last week, said he didn't believe Okell.

Western Lottery Draw Party Slated

A mammoth party is planned by the Western Canada Lottery when the preliminary draw is held for the first time in Victoria, Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The event will take place in the Heritage Court area of the Provincial Museum complex.

Bobby Herriot's eight-piece band will be in attendance from 7 p.m. on, there will be free coffee and donuts and the lottery draw will have its own off-shoot lottery when lucky winners will be awarded "door prizes."

Victorians themselves will be able to participate in the drawing of the final 1,900 tickets worth a total of $190,000 in consolation prizes.

Holders of the first eight tickets drawn will have won no immediate money but will participate in the Final Draw, Aug. 9 in Regina when they will share $525,000. The draw will be televised on CTV western network.

Holders of tickets nine through 16 drawn from the monster drum Thursday will not be identified until the final draw when they will be matched with on-air finalists during the telecast.

The mystery "homeviewer" matched with the quarter-millionaire will receive $50,000. Mystery winners matched with the second and third stage finalists will receive $20,000 and $10,000 respectively.

Remaining mystery winners will each receive $5,000.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you give me information on the military march, Colonel Bogey, which was composed in 1917? Did a British composer write it for an American and is this march now known as the Bridge Over the River Kwai and claimed to be by a U.S. citizen? P.W.T.

A. Colonel Bogey was written by Kenneth Alford which was the pen-name for British-er Major C. Ricketts, during the time he was director of the Band of the Royal Marines stationed at Plymouth, England. English composer Malcolm Arnold, who wrote the score for the film, Bridge On the River Kwai, incorporated a setting of the harmonies only of Colonel Bogey. Due to copyright conditions the melody was not played by any instrument but was only whistled by the marchers.

Pollen, Bawlf Clash Over Housing

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

An attempt Tuesday by Ald. Sam Bawlf to initiate city council discussion on the provision of new downtown housing for low-income people led to a lengthy and heated argument between himself and Mayor Peter Pollen.

During the angry series of exchanges at council's caucus meeting, the mayor accused the alderman of "spearheading a one-man crusade to destroy downtown housing," by raising unjustified fears about the fire safety of older hotels and apartments, and Bawlf threatened to resign from council.

The confrontation followed weeks of controversy over council's refusal to release a report from Fire Chief Eric Simmons, listing 25 buildings which would need upgrading to meet the fire safety requirements of the 1970 National Building Code.

Bawlf had consistently urged that the report be made public, specifically for the information of tenants in the buildings concerned. Pollen finally authorized the release of the document, to allay public concern caused by—in his words—the "sensationalism" and "emotionalism" surrounding the matter.

When Bawlf tried to reopen council discussion on the question of new downtown housing at Tuesday's caucus meeting, he noted that the need for a firm policy was becoming more and more apparent with the possibility that some older hotels, unable or unwilling to meet the higher fire standards, would be forced to close up.

Pollen immediately retorted that such comments were a "bunch of gibberish." Bawlf on the one hand was talking about the need for new downtown housing, and on the other creating "an emotional milieu" which would place present downtown housing in jeopardy, said the mayor.

"I am sick and tired of the current destruction of our old downtown housing, through emotionalism injected by thoughtless and insensitive people about the so-called fire traps," Pollen added.

He was backed up by housing committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier, who said Bawlf's attempt to get a housing debate going was "almost a cover-up" for his role in stirring up the firetrap controversy.

"It galls me that we have statements coming out about 1,000 rooms in this city being firetraps . . . then we get into this motherhood discussion about providing housing," said Glazier.

He warned that it would be impossible to replace the present downtown housing stock in its social setting and at the low rents that are now available to elderly bachelors and low-income tenants.

As the argument raged on, Pollen became more personal in his criticisms of Bawlf.

"What gets me is that you seem to be on the side of virginity and chastity in this affair, and I keep finding myself on the side of evil," he said.

"You are spearheading a one-man crusade to destroy old downtown housing. You have added as much emotionalism to this problem as anyone in this community and at the same time you have displaced more people—through your excellent work in restoring old buildings."

His voice raised in anger, Bawlf replied: "If you want to persist in your facetious remarks and in saying that I am misdirecting council perhaps I should resign.

"I brought this matter up out of goddam good concern and if you don't like it that's too bloody bad."

The mayor said he was merely trying to dispell the "prevailing myth" that simply because a building doesn't meet current building code standards it is therefore unsafe from the fire risk standpoint.

And he said he couldn't see what more the city could do to encourage either the provincial government or private developers to meet the shortage of low-cost accommodation in the downtown area.

Ald. Alf Hood suggested Glazier, as housing committee chairman, prepare an updated report on the whole subject for council to consider.

Riders Topple Als in Late-Game Thriller

MONTREAL (CP) — For a while Tuesday night, it looked as if Montreal Alouettes would be able to pull off one of those miracle comebacks.

The Alouettes, defending Grey Cup champions, entered the final quarter of their Canadian Football League game against Saskatchewan Roughriders trailing 14-0 and fell behind 17-0 after an early Brian Berg field goal.

Quarterback Sonny Wade, who sat on the bench in the first half, engineered a three-touchdown comeback in the last quarter which culminated with a 27-yard TD pass to Skip Eaman with 1:31 left to give Montreal a 20-17 lead.

But, 22 seconds later, veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster found Rhett Dawson open and the Saskatchewan back slipped away from defender Phil Price to score the game-winning touchdown as the Roughriders topped Montreal 24-20.

The Roughriders now are 2-0 while Montreal, who defeated Hamilton 33-23 last Wednesday, are 1-1. Tonight, Hamilton is at home against Ottawa in an Eastern Conference game.

Tom Campana got the other two Saskatchewan touchdowns in the first half as he snared passes from Lancaster. Berg converted all three Saskatchewan TDs.

Peter Dalla Riva caught two TD passes from Wade in the final 15 minutes and also grabbed a two-point conversion pass after Eaman's TD.

The crowd of 25,393 was quiet for most of the first three quarters, but came to life as Montreal rallied.

"One of the cardinal rules in football is that you don't beat yourself," offered Saskatchewan coach John Payne. "We almost did that tonight with those late fumbles and those penalties.

"It looked like we were losing the impetus."

But Lancaster, expecting Montreal to be in a prevent defence, found Dawson behind the linebackers and, after Price's miscue, Saskatchewan had its 14th win in 15 league games against Montreal.

"It's very seldom that a play like that goes for a touchdown," said Lancaster. "We knew they would be back in a prevent defence, so we sent three receivers down. Rhett ran it just right and came in just behind the linebackers."

It was Dawson's fumble that led to Eaman's lead touchdown and, ironically, it was Price, the man he beat for the game winner, who picked up the ball he dropped.

"We were in a prevent defence on that play," said Als coach Marv Levy. "Dawson caught the ball and slipped away from the defender. We knew they were going to throw the bomb, that was their only chance.

"It's inexcusable to let a thing like that happen, especially when you're expecting them to do it."

The Riders did more passing than some expected, completing 15 of 25 passes for 338 yards.

The Alouettes passed a good deal as well, particularly in the first half when starting quarterback Jimmy Jones seemed to have a particular liking for the long bomb.

The loss snapped Montreal's 16-game home-field winning streak. Their last loss was a 37-20 setback to Saskatchewan on Sept. 16, 1973.

The Roughriders conclude their Eastern swing in Toronto Friday night. Montreal's next contest is at home against Hamilton next Tuesday.

Celebrity Players Command Team Tennis

World Team Tennis has come and gone and may never return. At least it is likely it won't return on a regular schedule as promoter Edgar Rhomberg thought possible when he originally contracted to bring in the Hawaii Leis for three matches here this summer.

Despite the name players who make up many of the teams, it was a bad draw locally, only 1,300 fans showing up for the opener, which should have been the big night, and 1,400 plus for the second night. Tuesday was a similar disaster.

If the non-appearance of John Newcombe of Australia was the over-riding factor to blame for the falling off in ticket sales for the opening-night show, that is understandable, perhaps, but when Newcombe did show up for the second night's matches, the attendance jump wasn't that appreciable. Besides, it would be interesting to know just how many of Monday's fans were first-nighters from Thursday who took advantage of Rhomberg's generous offer of a $2 rebate because of Newcombe's default.

As it was, with Newcombe, Monday's performance was far more entertaining; and nobody can fault the tennis. These are touring pros on one-night stands and, naturally, they must show enough talent to survive in a competitive manner. That's basic.

Newcombe says he believes in the concept of team tennis, but thinks with 11 teams it may be overdone a bit, just as it was in the inaugural year of 1974 when 16 teams started play. And last year, it will be recalled, all 16 teams lost money but still finished the season which is more than can be said for some other professional teams.

Many bills undoubtedly were left unpaid, seven teams subsequently disbanded, others switched elsewhere, some of the big names such as Ken Rosewall, Jimmy Connors and John Alexander opted not to play WTT any more; and the league was off and bumping along on its second season.

Newcombe's Default Honest

If that's a capsule report, things really haven't changed much this season. Crowd totals are down, even in New York where Billie Jean King is the glamor coach. Only 1,200 turned out for a recent match. By comparison, this puts Victoria in the big time, but still won't pay expenses, which is what the game is all about.

Then, of course, who leads World Team Tennis? I can't recall that fact ever being mentioned during the matches here. So is there that much significance and does it really matter who wins? The players are under contract to their respective teams and if there is some sort of bonus arrangement for winning it hasn't been explained. Which, in this book, makes team tennis strictly an exhibition series featuring celebrity players, who naturally command the most respect, and the most money, with the others being on the way up or the way down. And there's nothing wrong with that either, but it must make it tough on the individual promoter trying to rekindle interest for each successive home match.

It was obviously an honest default by Newcombe here because he is suffering from a torn ligament and if it isn't that troublesome now, it is still touchy. "I haven't played since the injury," he admitted, "and I won't be playing singles until the U.S. nationals at Forest Hills (Aug. 27). "It's just too risky until then," Newcombe was alluding to the fact that the extra strain of singles might aggravate his injury and keep him out of the U.S. nationals as it had done at Wimbledon.

Still Not Enough Fans

If he was only playing at three-quarter output here, he still exhibited the class expected of him; and so did Clark Graebner, Margaret Court and the others. And for a booming serve has anyone seen one harder than that displayed by Bob Giltinan of the Cleveland Nets? Which is only of value, of course, when it finds the service court.

Meanwhile, Owen Davidson of the Leis indicated he would be pleased when his team commitment was completed. "I only have seven matches to go," he said here last Thursday, "and then I will be going home to Australia." Now his commitment is three.

"Yes, it is tiring," he added of the schedule which often calls for four or five matches a week.

So maybe Newcombe has a valid point. He would like to see the league reduced to eight teams with play obviously being in selected centres. This would appear to be more workable and perhaps cut down on a lot of unnecessary frills and expenses.

For if there was too much travel, too many teams, and not nearly enough tennis fans in the inaugural season of 1974, the problem hasn't exactly disappeared in this, the second season. And it isn't likely it will ever be solved in Victoria either. Even though right now we are running ahead of New York. How about that, Edgar?

It was a nice try.

Winners Can't Relax

Lanky Australian Steve Docherty is a guy who'd love to have a rest.

But if Steve keeps on winning at tennis, it doesn't look as though he'll ever get time to relax.

The men's singles favorite in the 78th B.C. Open Championships, being played at the Racquet Club of Victoria, recently ended an eight-month world tour playing in big tournaments in New Zealand, Australia, Africa, England and other European countries.

With fellow-Aussie Steve Myers he captured the New Zealand grass-courts doubles title and took the singles crown in the Mombassa International in Kenya.

Then Steve hopped on the six-city Pacific Satellite Circuit and arrived in Victoria the points leader with wins in both Portland and Tacoma.

Docherty remembers.

He came here last time in just about the same position—the tour leader and top seed—but went out in the first round.

"Ah, but that was because we had to play the final of the Vancouver tournament (he was runner-up to American Jerry Van Linge) late Sunday and I had to play a first-round match against a tough player at 8 Monday morning," he said Tuesday.

Vancouver has dropped out of the circuit this year and Docherty had a day's rest in between. He feels that breather makes all the difference.

It seemed to make a difference Tuesday as Docherty, stroking the ball confidently, cruised past American Jeff Smith 6-3, 6-2.

But back to that rest Jerry would love to take.

Well, the 25-year-old, six-foot, five-inch athlete from Newcastle in New South Wales won this tour last year (from American Steve Messmer) by clinching the last tournament in Spokane. And part of the prize is a berth in the main draw in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills for the top two on the Satellite Circuit.

At Forest Hills, Docherty played brilliantly, losing in four tough sets to Vijay Amritraj of India.

"I would just love to take about six weeks off to rest," he laments.

But next week it's the last tournament in Spokane and if Docherty wins the circuit again, then it's off to Forest Hills once more.

And once more he'll have to postpone that rest.

A Carefree Upset

Tennis·Stories By Max Low

Relaxed and stroking the ball beautifully with carefree abandon, Victoria's Brenda Cameron pulled off a big surprise Tuesday and became one of only two Canadians left in the 78th B.C. Open tennis tournament.

Brenda hung on through an exciting three-set battle for a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 victory over Connie Pearson of Tilburn, Calif., who is now in her second year on the six-city Pacific Satellite Circuit.

"I was really relaxed and didn't have any pressure on me," Brenda said when she came off.

She joins Lori Barlow of Victoria in the last 16 in the women's singles. Lori defeated Paula Coulter of Denver, Colo., 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 in the first round and then won her second-round match by default.

Sandra Moss of Victoria went out 6-0, 6-0 to American Mary Colville.

Roger Skillings went out 6-4, 6-4 to American Pat Kearney; Neill Coutts was nipped 7-5, 6-3 by American Mike Nissley; Glen Bradsha wwas beaten 6-3, 6-1 by another American, Steve Strasser, and Marty Taylor was put out 6-2, 6-4 by Australian Campbell Robertson.

Top-seeded Steve Docherty of Australia defeated American Jeff Smith 6-3, 6-2; second-ranked Doug King was the only one pushed hard, edging Brian Liebermann 6-2, 6-7, 6-3; third-seeded Jeff Cowan crushed Warren Farmer 6-0, 6-1, and fourth-ranked Mark Joffey downed Tod Cooper 6-3, 6-0.

In the women's singles, little Isa Ortiz the four-foot 10-inch bundle of dynamite from Colombia is going to take some stopping. She breezed past American Debrah Forbush 6-0, 6-0. Second-seeded Claire Schmoyer of Arizona State University beat Carol Coats 6-3, 6-3; third-ranked Molly Hannas blasted Cindy Frank 6-1, 6-0, and fourth-seeded Karen Kennington nipped Joyce Laughlin 7-5, 6-4.

And what of University of California player Eric Mann, who with Eric Larre recently set a world marathon tennis-playing record of 80 hours and five minutes and who was involved in two more marathon matches in Monday's qualifying rounds?

Well, Eric was at it again Tuesday — only this time he went out, losing to Shannon Blackwell of Houston Texas 6-3, 4-6, 6-7 after another desperate struggle lasting almost three hours.

Mousy Finale for Team Tennis

Well, World Team Tennis didn't exactly roar in like a lion last Thursday but it did creep out like a mouse Tuesday night.

The slick, heated-up version of pro tennis caused barely a ripple of interest when only about 1,300 fans turned up at the 5,400-seat Memorial Arena to watch Los Angeles Strings down Hawaii Leis 31-18 Thursday in the WTT debut here.

Australian star John Newcombe, who didn't make it the first night, helped pull in 1,400 Monday night, when the Leis defeated Cleveland Nets 29-20, in an excellent contest.

But even the great Newcombe couldn't help matters much Tuesday.

Still recovering from a knee injury that kept him out of this year's Wimbledon championships, Big John played only in one match and lost that when he and fellow-Aussie Owen Davidson were nipped 6-4 by Dennis Ralston and the almost-unknown John Andrews of the San Diego Friars.

And, although the matches were pretty close—there were two tiebreakers—and the result was in doubt until the final mixed doubles, few in the sparse crowd of just over 1,100 seemed to care when the Friars ended up winning 28-26.

In contrast to Monday night's games, the matches evoked very little response from the spectators, who quietly watched the proceedings in a rather bored fashion.

Just as on the other two nights, the best match of the evening was probably the men's doubles although Ralston, a verteran U.S. Davis Cup player and coach, gave a fine display of serving and neat half-volleying to edge Butch Bucholz of the Leis 7-6 on a tiebreaker in the singles.

Margaret Court of Australia overpowered countrywoman Lesley Hunt with some big serves and well-angled volleys, winning 6-2 in the singles, and Mrs. Court and Helen Gourlay were shaded by Miss Hunt and Janet Young 7-6 in the women's doubles.

And in that deciding mixed, Andrews and Bridget Cuypers of South Africa downed Davidson and Miss Gourlay 6-4.

The teams meet again tonight in the Leis' new "home" town—Edmonton.

Jauch Surprised By Blue Bombers But Eskimos Win

EDMONTON (CP) — Head coach Ray Jauch of Edmonton Eskimos said his club was lucky and offensive coach Vern Rapp was concerned for the future after the Western Football Conference defending champions escaped with a 28-22 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers Tuesday night.

A cowd of 23,926 watched the Eskimos overcome a dismal start and the loss of flanker-punter Garry Lefebvre in their first game of the season. Rapp said in the dressing room the team must conquer its habit of waiting until the last minute to pull out a victory.

The win came on a 29-yard touchdown pass from Tom Wilkinson to Larry Highbaugh with less than two minutes remaining.

Highbaugh, normally a cornerback, was in the game only because Lefebvre broke his leg about six inches above the ankle in the fourth quarter.

Winnipeg coach Bud Riley refused to criticize the officials, but it was obvious he was disturbed over a rough play penalty against centre John Bonk two plays before the winning score. The call erased an apparent interception by Gord Paterson on a pass to George McGowan and gave Wilkinson the extra chance he needed.

It was the third touchdown pass for the stumpy Wilkinson, player of the year in the Canadian Football League last season, who completed 16 of 23 passes for a whopping 350 yards. He found Lefebvre wih a perfect sideline pass for an 83-yard score and hit McGowan—his favorite target with six receptions for 105 yards—for a 39-yarder.

Dave Cutler completed Edmonton's scoring with three converts, two field goals and a single on one of the two field goal bids he missed.

All three Winnipeg touchdowns—by quarterback Chuck Ealey, running back Rich Crump and tight end Brian Jack—were long ones.

Crump connected on a 28-yard sweep to the left and Ealey on a 29-yarder that looked almost the same to the crowd. Jack, no speedster, was left alone on the last play of the first quarter and scored on a 51-yard pass-and-run play.

Bob Macoritti kicked three converts and produced a single on a 46-yard punt. All the Blue Bomber scoring except Macoritti's third-quarter punt came in the first quarter.

After that, the veteran Eskimo defence settled down and the offence found the consistency it had been lacking. Nine penalties were called against Edmonton, many to quell promising marches.

Optimists Gain Final

NORTH VANCOUVER — It could be a battle between Vancouver Island teams in Thursday's final of the provincial Babe Ruth all-star baseball tournament for 13-year-olds.

Saanich Evening Optimists wrapped up a berth in the final Tuesday at Mahon Park, squeezing past Kelowna 10-9 for their fourth straight triumph in the double-loss-elimination competition.

Duncan, beaten 6-0 Sunday by the undefeated Optimists, remained in contention by bouncing Coquitlam 11-3 in a loser's bracket game. Duncan and Kelowna were scheduled to clash today to decide which club will face the Optimists in the championship final.

Saanich and Kelowna staged a thrill-packed finish after the Optimists appeared on their way to an easy triumph when they ran up an 8-1 lead, helped by Mike Dean's two-run triple and Randy Wickware's two-run homer, his fourth home run of this year's playoffs.

Kelowna bounced back to score four times in the seventh to knot the count at 8-8 and send the game into an extra inhing.

Another run in the top of the eighth frame sent Kelowna out in front, but Saanich wiped out the deficit and grabbed the victory when catcher Darrel Richardson swatted a two-run double.

Mike Cathcart pitched all the way for the Saanich club, which collected nine hits and committed two errors while their rivals wre connecting for 10 hits and making five errors.

AWARDS NIGHT FOR SHAMROCKS

It's awards night for Victoria Shamrocks tonight at Memorial Arena when they meet Coquitlam Adanacs in the final Western Lacrosse Association regular-season game.

Several members of the Shamrocks will be honored for their part in leading the Irish to a second-place finish.

And while the contest won't change any of the standings, it is a preview of one semi-final playoff.

The fourth-place Adanacs and the Shamrocks will open their best-of-five series Aug. 9 in Victoria. The second game will be in Coquitlam Aug. 12 with the third back here Aug. 16. Should a fourth game be neccessary, it will be Aug. 18 in Coquitlam with fifth game here Aug. 20.

First-place New Westminster Salmonbellies and third-place Vancouver Burrards will clash in the other semi-final.

But before the playoffs start, the league will hold its all-star game next Wednesday at Memorial Arena. All proceeds from the contest will go to help players who have lost job pay because of injuries suffered in WLA action.

KEVIN MUST WAIT TO REACH PLATEAU

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

Kevin Alexander will have to wait at least one more game to become the first player in Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League history to score 100 goals in one season.

The 19-year-old Victoria forward pushed his total to 97 Tuesday night with two goals as the McDonalds downed Richmond Roadrunners 15-9 before a crowd of about 700 at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

He gets his next chance to reach the century mark on Sunday when the second-place Bakers take on leading Burnaby Cablevision on the mainland.

And if he misses then, it will be back to Victoria for another try next Tuesday against New Westminster Salmonbellies.

He had plenty of chances to reach the plateau against the Roadrunners Tuesday. However, he hurt himself with some erratic shooting and when he did hit the net, he had problems with Richmond goalie Brad Berrow.

He was still the McDonalds' top point-getter, though. He had four assists and his six-point output raised his league-leading total to 174 points.

And with four games remaining, he still has a good chance to reach the 200-point barrier.

However, he might not be Canada's highest scoring junior player should he reach 200 points. Dan Green, who spent two years with McDonalds before joining Peterborough of the Ontario "A" League, has more than 170 points with several games left in his club's schedule.

Alexander's success has not been an overnight thing. He has worked hard at the game since he took it up 14 years ago.

And if there is any one fact which demonstrates his diligence for lacrosse it is this: He has not missed one McDonalds' practice in the two years he has been with the team.

Despite his prolific scoring, he doesn't think much about records.

"I never gave much thought at the beginning of the season if I could score 100 goals this year," he said Monday. "I just like to go out and play the games one at a time."

He is emphatic about one thing. He wants to turn pro in the National Lacrosse League and he doesn't care for what team.

Should he join the NLL, he will be the second of his family to do so. Brother Ken, 28, plays for Quebec and according to Kevin is "having a great time."

"I'm not sure, though, what the pro game is all about," said Kevin. "You hear a lot about it but you can't be too sure about the style of play until you get in the league."

Still junior aged next year, Alexander intends to play for the McDonalds, although he doesn't know what he can do for an encore after this season.

As for the Bakers of this year, he thinks the team is much stronger than last year's edition.

McDonalds would have had trouble proving that in the first two periods Tuesday. Going in spurts, they led 6-4 after the first period and 10-8 after the second.

The third period was a different story as they completely controlled play and outscored the visitors 5-1 to take the win.

Besides Alexander, Victoria got two goals from Lorry Gloeckner, Norm Baker, Leigh Hegan and Dave Lowdon and singles from Dan Ranger, Ken King, Mike Bryson, Jamie Robertson and Kim Bowles.

Pirates Are Losing Their Grip

By The Associated Press

Pittsburgh Pirates aren't as tough as they look . . . at least the way Philadelphia Phillies see them.

The Phillies have an uncanny hold on Pittsburgh and because of it, the Pirates are losing their first-place grip in baseball's National League East.

Behind rookie Tom Underwood, the second-place Phillies defeated Pittsburgh 5-1 Tuesday night for their ninth win in a row over the Pirates and climbed to within 3½ games of first.

The Pirates haven't beaten the Phillies since April 16, when they finished a three-game sweep of their Pennsylvania neighbors.

"That's the only thing that can stop the Pirates—good pitching," said Philadelphia second baseman Dave Cash. "If you don't get good pitching, they'll kill you. They've got some ungodly bats."

Their domination over the Pirates has pumped optimism into the Phillies' camp.

"There's no pressure on us because nobody but ourselves believes we're going to win it," said Underwood. "I'm not saying we will win it—but we certainly believe we can."

In the other National League games, San Francisco Giants defeated Cincinnati Reds 4-2; Atlanta Braves shaded Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2; Houston Astros stopped San Diego Padres 6-2; Chicago Cubs nipped Montreal Expos 4-3; and St. Louis Cardinals defeated New York Mets 5-3 in the first game of a twinight doubleheader before losing the second game 11-6.

In the American League, Milwaukee Brewers defeated Boston Red Sox 4-0, Texas Rangers topped Oakland Athletics 6-1, Baltimore Orioles downed Cleveland Indians 7-1, New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 4-2, Kansas City Royals dumped Minnesota Twins 5-2 and Chicago White Sox defeated California Angels 7-4.

Underwood pitched a four-hitter and doubled in a pair of runs to help Philadelphia win.

Underwood, a 21-year-old southpaw, hit his double to left centre to key a four-run fourth-inning off losing pitcher Dock Ellis, 7-7.

Underwood, who walked one and struck out six, raised his record to 11-7 with his third victory in four decisions against Pittsburgh this season.

Bobby Murcer's two-run double in the ninth inning carried San Francisco past Cincinnati as the Reds failed for the 45th successive time to get a complete game from their pitching staff.

Fred Norman made a strong bid to become the first Cincinnati pitcher to complete a game since June 11, but left in the eighth in favor of Rawly Eastwick. Jim Barr, 9-8, got the victory.

Blue Moon Odom earned his first NL win and Darrell Evans hit his 13th home run as Atlanta beat Los Angeles. Odom, 1-4, who came to the Braves in early June in a trade with Cleveland Indians, entered the game with a 9.00 earned-run average. He left with two out in the ninth after the Dodgers loaded the bases and Ron Cey greeted reliever Elias Sosa with a two-run double.

Jose Cruz' run-scoring double highlighted a three-run Houston uprising in the fifth inning as the Astros defeated the Padres, ending a five-game losing streak. Dave Roberts, 6-11, allowed only four hits in winning his seventh game against the Padres in nine career decisions.

John Summers' bases-loaded pinch single in the eighth inning scored Jose Cardenal with the tie-breaking run and another run scored on a forceout, lifting Chicago over Montreal. The Expos managed a run in the ninth on singles by Pete Mackanin and Jose Morales and a sacrifice fly by Pepe Mangual before Oscar Zamora saved the game for Darold Knowles, 4-5.

LACROSSE SEMI-FINAL

Action in the Vancouver Island junior "B" lacrosse playoffs start tonight at Esquimalt Sports Centre with Saanich E. J. Hunter and Victoria Strathcona Stingers opening their semi-final series at 9 p.m.

Second contest in the best-of-three series is slated for Sunday.

Esquimalt will meet the series winner in the Island final, from which the Island champion will advance to the provincial playoff at New Westminster.

RETIRED HALL-OF-FAME JOCKEY WILL 'KEEP GETTING ON HORSES'

MIAMI (AP) — Hall of Fame jockey Eric Guerin, who rode 2,708 winners with earnings of more than $17 million, has ended his 34-year riding career.

"Not many owners want a 50-year-old rider on their horse," said Guerin, who guided Native Dancer to 21 victories in 22 lifetime starts.

Guerin took out an assistant-trainer's licence after making the decision to retire and accepted a job with owner Harry Mangurian Jr. and trainer Tommy Root Jr.

He said the job would "just let me keep getting on horses and working them in the mornings. I couldn't quit all at once."

Guerin's lone Kentucky Derby victory came in 1947 when he rode Jet Pilot to the Churchill Downs winner's circle.

He ended his career at Calder race course, a few miles from where it began, at old Tropical Park, where he rode his first race March 12, 1941.

Canadian Charged In Fire

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A 35-year-old Canadian was charged by state police Tuesday with setting a barn fire which killed 41 race horses Sunday night.

Donald R. Douglas of Otterville, Ont., waived a preliminary hearing for arson and was sent to the Dauphin County prison in lieu of $100,000 bail.

The fire broke out at nearby Penn National Race Course when a flammable substance was poured inside the 180-foot long barn, said Richard Guckelberger, a state police fire marshal.

A state police report at first indicated that Douglas was a track employee, but Guckelberger later emphasized that he was not.

Sox Shift Denied

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago White Sox owner John Allyn disputed reports Tuesday that plans are being made for a major shift of baseball franchises involving his team and the world champion Oakland A's.

The Chicago Tribune reported Monday that discussions are underway to move Charles O. Finley's Oakland team to Chicago and Allyn's franchise to Seattle.

"I don't think there's a chance that the White Sox will leave Chicago," Allyn said in an interview. "He (Finley) has commitments in Oakland that I don't think he can get out of."

But Allyn has said that he would sell the White Sox if he received an acceptable offer. Allyn's asking price is about $20 million, but he said he would settle for $14 million. Baseball observers said that $12 million would be more realistic.

If the White Sox were sold and the proposal realized, it would solve Allyn's financial needs and end the competition for attendance in the San Francisco Bay area between the A's and the Giants. It also would provide a team for Seattle, which lost its franchise to Milwaukee, and fulfill Finley's desire to have a team in Chicago, where his home and insurance operations are based.

But Allyn said he has not been involved in any discussions of the switch.

"I have no intention of moving the club to Seattle. I also don't know of anyone in Seattle who's interested in putting up the money for a baseball team."

The newspaper said that under the plan, Oakland would forfeit its storied Athletics nickname to play in White Sox uniforms and preserve the 75 years of tradition in Chicago and in the American League. The White Sox team would play under a different name in Seattle.

Hotelmen Pad Baseball Lead

Farmers didn't get the help they wanted Tuesday night and Gorge Hotel has acquired a more comfortable lead in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League.

Playing at Lambrick Park Tuesday, the Gorge crew picked on the league trailers, chalking up a 10-4 triumph to send Kubiceks down to an eighth straight defeat.

That result gave Gorge a two-game lead over second-place Farmer Construction with five league games remaining for each club.

Derek Drinkwater yielded only three hits as he pitched all the way for Gorge and Bob Mabee played his part in the victory by cracking a two-run double to boost his league-leading runs-batted-in total to 30.

League action will be halted on Thursday and Sunday since a league all-star team will be competing at Quesnel over the weekend in the provincial tournament.

Softball Pitchers Hot

Two-hit pitching performances produced a pair of shutouts at Central Park Tuesday night in the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League.

Mel Nelson had the toughest struggle to grab a pitching triumph as Ingraham went to the seventh inning for a 1-0 decision and its 14th straight win.

Glen Bullen was the author of the other two-hitter as Sooke Merchants trimmed Tony's Holdings 6-0.

Don Clarke served up a three-hitter in the Heywood Men's League as London Boxing Club kept playoff hopes with a 15-1 win over Molson's. Larry Brown had four hits for Boxers.

Esquimalt Combos clinched fourth place in the Senior Women's League with a 9-6 verdict over third-place Esquimalt Hygrade Radio at Hyacinth Park. Second-place Stockers won by default over last-place Seaboard Construction.

By FRED KARPIN

More often than not, the normal, natural play will be the winning one. But, on occasion, the post-mortem analysis will reveal that the natural play was the wrong one. Such was the case in today's deal, which came up in a team-of-four match.

North-South vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

On West's opening lead of the spade jack, dummy's queen was played, and East won the trick with his ace. East returned his singleton trump, South put up the jack, and West's queen took the trick. West continued with the trump ace, after which he led a third trump, removing the board's last trump.

It was now impossible for declarer to avoid losing a diamond trick, and a one-trick set was the result.

Declarer's play of covering West's jack of spades with dummy's queen was the natural play, but it was wrong. He should have played low from dummy, allowing West's jack of spades to win the first trick.

If West now lays down the ace of trumps, and then leads another trump, he will not make a trick with the queen of trumps. Moreover, South, in this case, will still be able to ruff one diamond with the board's remaining trump. Declarer will now have smooth sailing to the fulfillment of his contract.

And if West sits tight with his trumps, and leads some other suit, South will be able to ruff out both of his losing diamonds, with his only losers being two trump tricks and one spade.

If East, at trick one, makes the decision to overtake partner's jack of spades with the ace (assuming a low spade is played from dummy), and returns a trump, West will win two trump tricks and lead a third trump, removing the dummy's three trumps. But now dummy's king and queen of spades will both be winners; and on them South will get rid of his two losing diamonds.

Thus, as has been illustrated, by making the "natural" play of "covering an honor with an honor," declarer put himself in the position of having East obtain the lead to make the killing return of a trump.

So, once again, it is demonstrated that the most important trick in the game is trick one.

Romantic aura exists. Be sure you see as is, not through rose-colored glasses. Means avoid self-deception.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Practical matters dominate. Check details, be thorough, familiar with costs, lease requirements, renewals and the like. Consultation with accountant, business manager could be in order. Capicorn, Cancer persons figure in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Short trip may be on agenda — relative who wants to "close a deal" makes appeal to you. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. Key now is to be versatile, to show that you can utilize material at hand. Social affair will provide stimulation.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you were on your own early, rebellious, capable of being considered a "revolutionary." You generally rebuild, you love people and you want to be loved, more so than the average person. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. You were separated or lost one of your parents at relatively early age. November will be a key month for you this year, a year which features domestic adjustments and possible change of residence.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"How old is your sister, Dad?" asked Glen, looking at some photos that had come in the mail. "She's pretty."

"I guess she is," replied Sam. "But you figure it out. If you multiply the two figures of her age you'll get one more than two-thirds of her age."

Well?

Bogus Biography Cleared

NEW YORK — Clifford Irving has won permission to publish his fictional account of Howard Hughes' life story. Justice Andrew Tyler of New York State Supreme Court rejected a demand made by Rosemont Enterprises, which has permission to publish Hughes' biography, for modification of a 1972 order that barred publication of the bogus work.

Rosemont sought to prevent publication of the work as fiction.

Irving, a professional novelist, had won a huge advance from a publisher after claiming that he was co-author of the autobiography of world-famous millionaire recluse.

But his scheme came unstuck when Hughes held a press conference — via telephone — to denounce the work as a phony, which ultimately led to Irving and his wife Edith serving jail terms for fraud.

The 25-year-old Robertson, of Elyria, Ohio, was helped out of his wheelchair and into the chilly channel at 5:45 a.m. (12:45 a.m. EDT) on Shakespeare beach, traditional starting point for the 21-mile England-to-France swim.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Singer Engelbert Humperdinck lost the opening round of a paternity suit in a ruling Monday based on the rights of the child.

The suit was brought by Diane Marie Vincent, a model, asking Humperdinck be declared the father of her four-year-old daughter and required to support the child. Humperdinck, denying he fathered the child, asked the suit be dismissed on grounds too much time has passed for the case to proceed.

District judge Howard Babcock denied the singer's motion and ordered the case to trial, saying it would be wrong to discriminate against illegitimate children, "a class of individuals branded by what society deems to be immoral conduct of their parents, simply because actions were not brought on their behalf at a time when they were unable to act for themselves."

TORONTO — Former students of a Second World War Canadian internment camp honored Sunday night the nun who gave them their high school education.

Sister St. Rita, who taught nearly 100 Japanese Canadians in New Denver, B.C., was honored by 14 Toronto residents who attended a reunion here at the home of a former student, Mary Takayesu.

The New Denver students were among 22,000 Japanese Canadians who were stripped of their rights and property and interned after Canada entered the war against Japan.

Public Announcement

Ottawa, July 23, 1975

Documentation Required with Applications Proposing Use of Microwave in Conjunction with Cable Television Broadcasting Undertakings.

For some time the Commission has permitted applicants to submit cable television applications proposing use of microwave without documentation on the proposed microwave costs.

Microwave routes were being evolved during this time and this procedure provided the Commission with considerable flexibility in determining the most desirable routes.

However, this procedure has at times led to uncertainty and a lack of precision in arriving at not only the most desirable routes but also the true costs associated with microwave delivery to specific areas. As a result, there have been considerable delays subsequent to licensing in the development of microwave agreements and in the provision of cable television service to the public.

Furthermore it has been difficult for the Commission to properly analyze applications of this nature and assess their viability. In addition, the actual monthly fees which the licensees propose to charge subscribers have not been clearly indicated.

In view of the foregoing, the Commission has decided that, effective immediately, certain documentation will be required with cable television applications proposing use of microwave as follows:

a) Where microwave is to be provided by a common carrier, a copy of an agreement in principle between the common carrier and the applicant should be submitted. Details of any proposals by common carriers for the use of microwave, the cost of the service and charges levied by the common carrier should also be included. In the event that the application pertains to an existing or proposed microwave network all details relating to cost sharing arrangements with other applicants or licensees which are, or are proposing to, participate in the network must be provided.

b) Where microwave is to be provided by an applicant, or the applicant proposes the use of privately owned non-common carrier microwave facilities, the application must include detailed information on all microwave costs. In the event that such a proposal involves more than one cable television undertaking or proposed undertaking all details relating to cost sharing arrangements with other applicants or licensees which are, or proposing to, participate in the arrangement must be provided.

c) The application must include full details as to the site of the distant head-end and the proposed microwave routing. Detailed costs relating to the establishment and/or use of the distant head-end facility, as well as any agreements pertaining to the establishment and/or use of the facility must be provided.

d) All applications must indicate the monthly subscriber fee including the cost of microwave service.

The Commission will consider applications for cable television licences in areas that meet the criteria for such service based on the detailed information as outlined in the foregoing as well as any other criteria as the Commission has established or may establish from time to time. Such consideration will be predicated on the accuracy of cost analysis and the ability of the applicant to provide and sustain service at the indicated cost.

Applicants who currently have on file with the Commission cable television applications proposing use of microwave should file the foregoing documentation as soon as possible in order that their applications may be considered at a Public Hearing.

Little Lawyer Thrown Out

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Joan Little defence team is regrouping after one of her seven lawyers was thrown off the case and charged with a felony for allegedly attempting to influence the testimony of a witness.

Morris Dees was ordered out of the courtroom Tuesday by Judge Hamilton Hobgood after Beverly King accused him of pressuring her to change her testimony.

Dees, with the Southern Poverty Law Centre in Montgomery, Ala., was later charged with attempted subornation of perjury and released in a $2,000 bond. A preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 15.

Mrs. King, a black radio dispatcher at the Beaufort County jail in Washington, N.C., said Dees approached her in the courtroom during the noon recess and asked her to tell an untruth.

She was on duty in the radio room at the jail last Aug. 27 when the night jailer, Clarence Alligood, 62, was stabbed to death. Miss Little, 21, a black who was a prisoner, is charged with first-degree murder in the slaying.

She fled the jail, leaving Alligood's body, naked from the waist down, slumped on a cot in her cell. Miss Little claims the white jailer was trying to rape her and that she stabbed him with an ice pick in self defence. The prosecution claims Miss Little killed Alligood during an escape.

Mrs. King testified that Alligood went to the radio room at 2:55 a.m. Aug. 27 and asked her if all of the deputies had gone off duty. She testified that the question was not unusual.

Dees said he later confronted her with a statement she made in an interview with him last month. In that statement she said Alligood's question was "abnormal conduct on his part and it was unusual," Dees said.

After the jury was sent from the courtroom, Mrs. King told the court: "He told me to go ahead and say it and it would help Joan and wouldn't hurt the state."

Dees said he only told Mrs. King to tell the truth.

Chief defence lawyer Jerry Paul later charged that the prosecution had pressured Mrs. King into amending her story because the white leadership in Washington "will do anything to convict Joan Little."

The prosecution is seeking to establish that there was nothing unusual about Alligood's conduct the night he was killed.

Dr. Harry Carpenter, Beaufort County medical examiner, testified that he found seminal fluid on Alligood's body. He said it had apparently been ejaculated just prior to or at the time of death.

"I assumed it indicated sexual activity," Carpenter said.

He said he had performed more than 1,000 autopsies and had never encountered a case where ejaculation resulted from a traumatic death.

Carpenter also testified that he found 11 puncture wounds on Alligood's body—one on the scalp, seven in the chest, two on the upper part of the right thigh and one on the side of the stomach.

Doctors Clear Astronauts

HONOLULU (UPI) — The last three Apollo astronauts had a clean bill of health today and were leaving history-making to others when they frolicked on the beach in a reunion with their families.

Doctors at Tripler Army Hospital told Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton x-rays had shown "a resolution of all previous abnormalities caused by the irritant."

National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Larry King said this meant they had fully recovered from the effects of rocket propellant gas which seeped into their spacecraft during re-entry Thursday and detoured them to Tripler instead of home to Houston.

BURNS

GRAIN SALES PUSH PRICES?

WASHINGTON (WP) — U.S. Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur F. Burns said Tuesday that U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union this year may lead to a sharp rise in food prices similar to the increase that occured after the controversial 1972 sales to the Russians.

"There already has been a significant increase in grain prices," Burns told the congressional joint economic committee. "They've already run-up very sharply."

Burns in his testimony put himself at odds with claims by U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other administration officials that this year's sales to the Soviets would have only minimal effects on domestic prices because of the anticipated bumper harvests of wheat and corn.

The subject of the grain sales came up in response to wide-ranging questioning of the Fed chairman in his appearance before the joint economic committee which is conducting a review of this country's economy.

Asked by Sen. Edward Kennedy whether grain sales to the Soviets and grain price rises could set off another food price surge, Burns said he "wouldn't rule out that possibility."

"We don't have anything approaching precise information on the amount the Russians will be importing," the Fed chairman complained. He said he had seen government and trade estimates and "some of them frighten me."

Ford Still Pays After Warranty

OTTAWA (CP) — Confidential documents show Ford Motor Co. authorized payment of millions of dollars to correct problems in its 1967 to 1973 models — mainly for engine repairs and body rust — after the basic warranty had expired.

The repairs were made under secret programs through the Ford dealer network. Ford owners were not individually notified that repairs for certain problems were available free or on a part-payment basis.

All the Canadian car manufacturers have admitted they operate similar secret plans under which thousands of cars are eligible for free repairs. However, the service generally is given only to car owners who ask for them or complain loudly.

Information on Ford's "extended policy payments" is contained in a document sent to the U.S. Centre for Auto Safety. It reports on a meeting of Ford's "North American automotive operations" on Oct. 19, 1973.

The Automobile Protection Association (APA) a Montreal-based consumer protection group, and a rising chorus of consumer critics in Parliament have demanded the consumer affairs department act to force manufacturers to disclose repairs available after the basic 12 months-12,000 miles warranty expires.

Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet has promised to make a statement this week on the secret programs. The department was informed of them in April.

The Ford extended policy payments through June, 1973, covered cars, light and heavy trucks. A total of $22.4 million was paid out by the company for repairs.

A Ford of Canada spokesman says it generally is company policy that repairs made for U.S. owners also are available to Canadian owners.

The documents show that for 1969-72, extended policy programs for body rust repairs up to 36 months were provided for, at a cost of $1.3 million. Ford recently confirmed that it had repaired 69,000 U.S.-owned cars and 8,000 Canadian Fords made between 1969 and 1972 that had suffered early rusting. The repairs were free or on a part-payment basis, but only if owners asked for the service.

Former consumer affairs minister Herb Gray last week called for an investigation into the secret programs run by the auto companies to determine if there may have been violations of federal combines law or other regulations. He also urged Ouellet, in a letter, to make public the information the department already has about the programs.

The APA claims that thousands of car owners, unaware that secret programs were in effect to fix certain defects, were bilked of thousands of dollars.

Ouellet claims the APA has been attempting to create an issue over the matter when it could have got the information it needed directly from the minister.

None of the manufacturers have revealed the specific repairs they are prepared to make.

A Ford spokesman said the documents sent to the U.S. Centre for Auto Safety that outline its programs were "something of a bombshell" and said they should not be "in the hands of the media and the public."

Helsinki Police Much Too Busy to Chase Speeders

By DAVID MACDONALD
Special to The Times

HELSINKI—The Mercedes-Benz taxi roaring down the highway from the airport to downtown Helsinki was touching 140 kilometres an hour when a passenger asked what the speed limit is on Finland's superb highways.

In this area, said the driver, it's 80 kilometres an hour but nobody's paying any attention to speed limits this week. All the police are at the Finlandia.

He was referring to the Finlandia Hall, a low, white-walled building on the edge of a small lake in the centre of the city that is the hub of the 35-country conference on security and co-operation in Europe all this week.

All police and army leave has been cancelled in the Helsinki region and the security precautions around the Finlandia Hall are heavy indeed.

Journalists must go to a special office in the city to be photographed for an identification card and to have a thorough identity check.

At the edge of the Finlandia hall's spacious, tree-lined grounds, journalists go through two police checkpoints then into a building in which they must hand over any bags or attache cases to be searched while they walk through an airport-style metal-detecting door-frame.

Any photographic equipment is taken apart and closely searched and this process takes so long that photographers are told to come well ahead of the time they want to enter the centre.

After passing through the security zone journalists must wear their identity cards, which are checked at a series of points inside the Finlandia Hall on the way to the conference room.

In the railroad shunting yard at the back of the Hall police untis are housed in temporary huts and in railroad cars.

At the airport, where most leaders are arriving and departing, a battery of anti-aircraft guns covers the runway approaches, while armored personnel carriers full of soldiers in battle fatigues are drawn up all round the airport area.

Armed policemen stand in the customs hall and the passport control while soldiers with sub-machineguns patrol the exterior of the airport buildings.

When one flight arrived from London there was one young man from an Arab country aboard. At the customs he was taken out of the nothing-to-be-declared line and his luggage searched slowly and carefully, even to the extent of testing his shaving cream aerosol can and dismantling his shaving razor.

When Leonid Brezhnev arrived by train from Leningrad, army helicopters hovered overhead along the track from the Soviet border to Helsinki. Jittery KGB men punched a photographer who stepped out of the pack covering the arrival. The train stopped short of the platform.

The humid, 80-degree heat of Helsinki brought out a new fashion style among teenagers, dark green tee-shirts bearing the conference initials, CSCE, the date of the conference, and Finnish initials for the conference, ETYK.

Also popular are tee-shirts bearing the Canadian maple leaf, for no reason anyone can supply.

The pressure on Helsinki hotel accommodation posed by the conference is tremendous. There are 3,500 rooms in the city and the government has taken over all booking and allocation.

The mammoth press contingent, 1,700 including technicians, forced the government to supply a large ship, on which many of the press and some delegations, are housed.

The Polish delegation is living on its own ship, the Ilmatar, while the 300-strong Soviet delegation is aboard the sparkling, white liner Mikhail Kalinin. Brezhnev, though, is staying at the Soviet embassy.

Helsinki's well-disciplined pedestrians, who rarely cross a street until the lights or a policeman say go, are faintly amused by the convoys of dignitaries with their howling siren escorts.

The high prices of taxis have encouraged several attending the conference to use the excellent and cheap streetcars. But pedestrians crossing streetcar rails do so at their peril since the streetcar drivers tend to treat their trips between stops on Helsiski's hilly streets as training for the Indianapolis 500.

The eve of the conference featured a first-class row between the television crews of the 35 countries. the Finns had rather naively allocated only two small balconies for all the TV cameras and the Soviets, Bulgarians and East Germans got there first.

Feelings ran high when latecomers found no room for their tripods. The East Germans had written in English on their camera: "Anyone who touches this camera will be shot." Beside this was written: "Don't forget you lost the war. Watch out."

The Soviets learned of the hostility being aimed at their camera setups and prudently stationed a man by their cameras at all times. He was promptly dubbed "comrade KGB" by the other TV men.

Further complications set in when the still photographers arrived to find no room for them to set up tripods. Conference officials confided that dealing with prickly delegations is less wearing than separating warring cameramen.

Review Of Court Plans Urged

Public Works Minister Bill Hartley has been asked to reconsider plans for the two floors being added to the top of the Law Courts Building.

Construction began earlier this month and superior courts have been moved to temporary accommodation at the former St. Ann's Academy, now owned by the government.

The government has said the two new floors will be used for "office administration" but in the future could augment court space.

Since then, however, it has been reported that the office space would be permanent and couldn't be used by the courts.

Judges, lawyers and representatives of the public works department and attorney-general's department met earlier this week as a users' committee, chaired by deputy attorney-general David Vickers.

Lawyers and judges favor using the main and lower main floors subsstantially for provincial courts (now on Fisgard Street) and supporting services with additional courtroom space on the fourth floor and the fifth floor to be used as a judges and law society library and barristers rooms.

Victoria Bar Association president Dr. J. J. Gow said today the deputy public works minister, G. L. J. Giles, undertook at the meeting to review all aspects of courthouse use and go back to Hartley on the issue of whether any of the space on the two additional floors might be used as courtrooms.

The sub-committee is to meet again next month.

VETERAN Saanich alderman Les Passmore, who retired in December, Tuesday was recognized by the provincial government for his tireless efforts to provide homes for those who need them. In a dedication ceremony, attended by Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson and other officials, the government's massive housing project on Interurban was named Passmore Place.

Tape Ruling Tuesday

A crucial ruling in the first court test of Canada's 1974 eavesdropping law will be handed down next Tuesday.

Judge William Ostler set that date in Victoria provincial court Tuesday after defence and prosecution lawyers closed their arguments on evidence given during a seven-day voire dire in the trial of James Hancock, 33, and Gilles Proulx, 30.

The pair was charged April 26 with conspiring between April 1 and 25 to rob the government liquor store at 1310 Esquimalt, and Mac's Milk Convenience Store, 265 Menzies.

The key issue in the trial has been the admissibility of the contents of tape recordings of conversations intercepted by wiretaps installed on two Victoria telephones and a car.

As the trial has been conducted in a voire dire (or trial within a trial) details of the tapes and other evidence cannot be made public and perhaps never will.

Defence lawyer Cecil Branson argued Monday that the law prescribes "absolutely" against making public any intercepted conversation.

Speaking to reporters Branson pointed to a section of the criminal code on invasion of privacy which says that anyone who "uses or discloses" a private communication intercepted by a device without the consent of both parties involved "is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for two years."

During the trial six wiretap tapes were played to the court and 20 witnesses for the Crown gave evidence.

In a 45-minute argument Tuesday Branson told Ostler the evidence should not be admitted on six main grounds.

He said there was insufficient identification of voices in five telephone tapes between April 13 and 24 and no identification of voices taped on the evening of April 25 when the two men were arrested.

Branson also attacked the quality of the intercepted communications, omissions in a typed transcript of the tapes and the crown's failure to take three paperwork steps required by the 1974 law.

The three steps involve notice to the accused of intent to use intercepted communications in court, a report to a higher court judge about such notice, and a required statement of times and dates of intercepts.

All evidence in the Crown case has been presented by J. W. Anderson, senior member of the Victoria regional prosecution office, and by Victoria lawyer Gordon Macdonald.

Before the Judge

Two more Americans were sentenced in Victoria provincial court Tuesday after pleading guilty to fishing in Canadian waters, making it a total of three in two consecutive days and four in the past month.

Harold Pedersen, 37, of Seattle, Wash., was fined $500 while Anthony Mardesich, 22, of Everett, Wash., received a fine of $350. Pedersen's catch of 164 fish valued at $720.51 over to the federal fisheries department, as was Mardesich's $119.02 catch of 54 fish.

Prosecutor Nicholas Lang told the court Pedersen's 36-foot gillnetter the Jackie P, was 1.5 miles inside the Canadian boundary when stopped by a fisheries patrol vessel early Tuesday. Mardesich's 28-foot gillnetter, the Moonlighter, was stopped Monday night 1.75 miles inside the Canadian boundary.

Both Pedersen and Mardesich said their boats had no radar and the current "which generally runs in an east-west direction, was running directly north."

Pedersen added that only the fish he had caught in Canadian waters, which amounted to 40 of the 164, should be confiscated, but Judge William Ostler referred to a B.C. Appeal Court ruling in April that all fish found on such vessels can be confiscated and it is not necessary to measure with nicety where they were caught.

Ostler gave Mardesich a $150 cut from the normal fine of $500 because he felt Mardesich "had made a case for some reduction." Mardesich had earlier urged Ostler to confine penalty to lost catch, time and fuel.

The other two Americans who have been convicted of violating the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act by fishing in Canadian waters are Washington men Daniel Joseph Stephan, who was fined $500 last Monday, and Dean Parker, who received a similar fine July 14. Both men also had their catch confiscated.

A preliminary hearing of a robbery charge laid in connection with a $19,000 holdup April 12 ran past its scheduled two days and has been set for completion Oct. 23 and 24.

Gordon Norman Comley, 22, and Robert Joseph Gelineau, 21, are charged with robbing two clerks from the government liquor store at 2055 Tillicum as they approached the night deposit chute of a nearby bank.

Fines totalling $325 and a six-month probation term were set by Judge Fred Green for a 20-year-old man.

Tyler John Sloan, 830 Craigflower, pleaded guilty to charges of trespassing in CFB Esquimalt July 1, careless driving and driving without a licence June 17 and failure to report to the probation office June 23.

Wheelchair Donations Sought

Wheelchairs, crutches, canes and other equipment for the disabled are being sought by a group of Vancouver students.

The students are running a project called Equipithon to collect donations of equipment for the handicapped and put it back into working order.

The equipment will be used for the free loan service operated by the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation.

The students have already collected more than 20 wheelchairs, 11 walkers, 22 pairs of crutches and canes, hospital beds and other aids on the Lower Mainland, and are now appealing to Vancouver Island residents for donations.

Any local resident wishing to donate can call Mrs. Jean Curry at Arbutus Crafts, 4353 West Saanich Road, at 479-1665.

The project, which began May 15 and ends in September, is federally funded.

BRIDLE BITS
with phil merrick

The two-day horse show at Hunt Valley Farm in Saanich, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Mearnes and the now famous jumping mare, The Flying Nun, drew a large number of entries from the Mainland. The weather was perfect, perhaps a little too warm, but the show ran smoothly and quickly.

Many of the competitors that came from the Vancouver area are staying over to compete next weekend at the three-day show at Broadmead Equestrian Centre, Central Saanich Road. Should the weather not co-operate the events will be held in the large covered arena at Broadmead.

A few years ago one of the New England states instituted a new department of recreation. The first effort of this new body was to find out the number of people, amount of money and available areas involved in a list of recreatioal pursuits.

Almost forgotten when the list was assembled, horseback riding was included. Much to the surprise of the government body that received the survey report, this form of recreation was well up to the top of the list with such as golf and boating, both power and sailing. With such information at hand it was obvious that horseback riding should be considered when funds were allocated to improve the availability of suitable riding areas.

A legal battle that lasted nearly five years ended recently in Great Britain when the court of appeal granted the British Horse Society its appeal over a decision of the secretary of state for the environment which upheld a claim by the Kent County Council to the right to close a pathway being used by horseback riders, cyclists, and w alkers to a "footpath" for walkers only. The result of this court battle is that over one thousand miles of paths are saved for "cyclists, riders and ramblers." The British Horse Society concerns itself with all matters pertaining to horses and their users. In Canada we have the Canadian Horse Council, only a few years old, but already making its presence felt by its willingness to champion the rights of horse-people in their efforts to improve their position in Canada.

While on the subject of riding trails and the environment, it was noticed that in a recent report filed following a study of Elk and Beaver Lakes that one recommendation was that all power boats be banned from the Lakes. No mention was made of the sea planes kept on the lakes adjacent to the area from which Central Saanich takes its water.

On a recent hot Sunday when the number of people swimming or boating on the lakes was so great it was impossible to find one more parking space anywhere, the sea planes were taking off and landing as though on an airport runway. Homeowners around the lake should be somewhat apprehensive.

'Slopping Wine Into Recipes'

By MARY MOORE

An amusing letter came from one of our male readers. "Mary, I like slopping wine into recipes. Sometimes (not often) I have wine leftover from one of my famous dinners and don't want to waste it so I use it on my next cooking spree." The letter was signed "Al." So today's Burgundy Beef will start his saliva flowing.

BURGUNDY BEEF
(serves 6)

1¾ to 2 lbs. boneless sirloin steak
½ cup red wine
½ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. thyme
⅛ tsp. pepper
4 tbsp. margarine
1 tbsp. beef bouillon cordial (see note below)

(Note: An alternative to the flour, salt, thyme and pepper for dredging the meat could be one package brown gravy mix PLUS ¼ cup flour.)

On board pound meat with meat pounder or edge of saucer on both sides in all directions to break fibres.

Stretch the meat out on a kitchen platter and pour the wine all over. Marinate in refrigerator, covered, 24 hours, turning once. Slip a rack under the meat and let it drain being sure not to waste any of the wine that drips down.

Cut meat into serving pieces. Mix flour, salt, thyme and pepper in bag. (OR use brown gravy mix and flour — see note above.) Shake meat pieces in it. Heat margarine in large frying pan and brown meat on both sides, adding any remaining flour mixture. Pour leftover wine into a measuring cup. Add beef bouillon cordial (IF brown gravy mix is not used) and fill cup to 1 cup mark with hot water. Pour over meat and simmer 2 hours.

Serve on top of ¼" noodles: measure 4 cups noodles (packed) and cook in 6 cups salted water until tender. Drain. Turn onto preheated platter. Arrange meat pieces on top, pour brown gravy over all. Garnish lavishly with parsley.

NOTE: Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10c for each specified recipe.

Nothing Is Simple About Vitamins

By DR. JEAN MAYER

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

When vitamins were first recognized as essential nutrients, it was thought there was only one — vitamin A. Then, a second one was discovered that was shown to have different properties. So this one was logically named vitamin B.

Things are by no means as simple today, and we now know that there are 13 vitamins needed for good health. Last week we quizzed you on vitamins A, D, E and K. What do you know about the Bs and C? Take the following test to find out (the answers are at the end of the column):

1) In which category are the C and B vitamins: a) fat soluble or b) water soluble?

2) How is the fate of C and the B vitamins in the body different from that of A, D, E and K?

3) True or false: It necessarily follows that a daily intake of the Bs and vitamin C far in excess of the recommended dietary allowance will eventually result in high toxicity.

4) You are standing in the supermarket reading a nutrition label on a box of fortified cereal. The manufacturer has listed a series of vitamins by name rather than numbers (such as B-6). Can you identify the numbers of the following vitamins: ascorbic acid, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, pyridoxine, cyanocobalamin, pantothenic acid, biotin and folacin?

5) Which foods are good sources of niacin, thiamine, folacin, vitamin C and vitamin B-12? What is the name of the corresponding deficiency disease?

6) The processing of foods can remove many nutrients, which is illustrated by the milling necessary to achieve our whiter-than-white flour. The normal 70 per cent extraction rate during processing removes substantial amounts of vitamins. Do you think the average loss of B vitamins from milling is a) 25 per cent b) 50 per cent or c) 75 per cent?

7) Breakfast orange juice is probably the most popular food source of vitamin C. But if you were deprived of orange juice, which of these foods would you choose to get 45 milligrams in one average serving, at least half of your daily requirement: Baked potato; calves liver; steamed broccoli; coleslaw; strawberries; stuffed green pepper; a boiled egg?

Here are the answers:

1) Vitamin C and the B vitamins are water-soluble. We obtain all of them from the watery components of our foods.

2) A, D, E and K are fat-soluble and so can be stored in our fatty tissues for future use. But C and the Bs are either utilized soon after they are ingested, or eliminated, mostly in the urine.

3) False. Because the Bs and C cannot be stored in the body, high doses of any of them are unlikely to become toxic over a period of time (although if the doses are ridiculously high, all bets are off).

4) Ascorbic acid is vitamin C; thiamine is vitamin B-1; riboflavin, vitamin B-2; niacin, vitamin B-3. Pyrodoxine is also known as vitamin B-6; cyanocobalamin is B-12. Pantothenic acid, biotin and folacin are also B vitamins, although they have no corresponding numbers.

5) Niacin is in whole wheat and rice, yeast, and fruits and vegetables. But B-3 can also be derived from milk or other animal products that contain the amino acid, tryptophan, from which the body is able to make niacin. (A deficiency of niacin produces pellagra.)

Thiamine is in whole grains, organ meat, pork, dried beans and peas, and fruits and vegetables. (Without thiamine, you develop beriberi, a deficiency still seen among very poor people in the Orient whose diet consists mainly of polished, unenriched rice.)

Folacin is present in many foods, but especially in green, leafy vegetables. (Folacin deficiency results in large, malformed and fewer red blood cells.)

Vitamin C is amply supplied by eating citrus fruits. (Without vitamin C, you can develop scurvy.)

B-12 is the only B vitamin not found in plant products. It is only in animal foods, and liver is a particularly good source. (B-12 deficiency produces pernicious anemia, which affects the nervous system and the red blood cells).

6) A whopping average of 75 per cent of all the B vitamins is lost in milling. Only thiamine, niacin and riboflavin are added to "enriched" white flour to restore these vitamins to their original levels.

7) Surprisingly, each of these foods except a boiled egg contains vitamin C. A small potato contains 20 mg; a 3½ ounce serving of calves' liver, 35 mg; a large stalk of broccoli, 90 mg; one-half cup of coleslaw, about 30 mg; one-half cup of strawberries, 44 mg; one-quarter of a large green pepper, about 30 mg.

Unaccompanied Soviet Women Refused Service

MOSCOW (UPI) — Some Soviet restaurants are beginning to refuse service to unaccompanied women, the newspaper Sovietskaya Torgovlya said.

The newspaper said it had received numerous complaints from different towns that women — who are supposed to have equal status with men in the Soviet system — were not even let in restaurant doors if they were not with men.

"The creative fantasy of some restaurant workers is too great," the newspaper said. "What will happen next with such innovators if we don't stop them in time?"

FOOD and nutrition

Ratatouille

4 large eggplant, scrubbed, trimmed, but not peeled
6 medium zucchini, scrubbed and trimmed
6 medium onions, cut in ¼-inch thick slices
6 green peppers, seeded and cut in 1-inch pieces
5 cloves garlic, finely minced
15 sprigs fresh dill or 2½ teaspoons dried dill weed
12 sprigs fresh parsley, tough ends trimmed off
2 teaspoons dried oregano or 2 tablespoons fresh
1 (2-pound, 3-ounce) can peeled Italian tomatoes or an equivalent amount of fresh tomatoes, peeled and seeds removed
3 tablespoons salt or to taste
½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
¼ cup salad oil

Combine all of these ingredients in large pot. With large wooden spoon mix the contents of the pot until all is coated with oil and seasonings. Cover and bake at 350 degrees, stirring fairly frequently in the beginning until vegetables soften and juices begin to flow.

After that stir occasionally and bake 3 hours. For the last ½ hour of cooking, leave cover off. Serve hot or cold.

Common Sense to Vary Flours

HILDA BEASTALL

Warnings of certain basic food shortages contained in reports from the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization usually pass average consumers without comment. Some who do notice and comment, use the phrase "scaremongers"; others say "perhaps, but not in Canada."

A few take notice and feel that since one country's shortage reflects in another country as a greater demand for the produce of the supplying country, every one of us in Canada is likely to be affected by say, a rice crop failure in China or spoilage of a wheat crop at the docks of a South American country.

Plain common sense suggests that we become used to other grains than wheat; and use other types of flour than wheat flour.

As a beginning, substitute dark rye flour, available on most grocery shelves, for part of the total flour used in making bread, rolls, buns and various cookie types of fruit slices. Be prepared to enjoy a new taste, with a new flavor, wholly delicious and satisfying.

As you continue to use these substitutes for refined all-white flour, you find them economical since the food does not "melt in the mouth" making you want great quantities before feeling satisfied. Rye flour (and wholewheat flour) gives a texture that you enjoy chewing becaus of its flavor. Chewing not only makwes food more digestible but has the side effect of its being more completely utilized therefore more nutritious.

When whole grain flours and grains are used in all baking at home, it soon becomes noticeable that less quantity is being consumed. Another example of quality rating above quantity.

A fruit slice resembling the old date square serves as an example of successful substitution. The recipe contains no commercial sugar, relying for sweetness on the grains and on the date and currant filling, plus a little blackstrap molasses in the cake batter on top. The recipe is in three parts, but is not complicated; the filling can be made in advance and stored in a glass jar in refrigerator.

RYE FLOUR FRUIT SQUARES

Lower Crust:
1 cup dark rye flour
½ cup unbleached flour
½ tsp salt
½ tsp baking powder
2 Tbsp skim milk powder
one-third cup soft margarine
¼ cup water

Mix all together, and spread in a greased baking dish 12x7x2 inches or similar size. Bring the mixture part way up the side of the dish, patting into place with fingers and knife.

Filling:
1 cup chopped dates
½ cup water
1 tsp lemon juice
1 tsp soft margarine

Simmer fruit and water together for 5 minutes or until it begins to thicken. Remove from heat, stir in lemon and margarine.

Cool to thicken more.

Cake Batter for Top:
1 cup dark rye flour
¼ cup unbleached flour
1½ tsp baking powder
½ tsp salt
2 tsp brewer's yeast
1 Tbsp wheat germ
¼ cup soft margarine
2 tsp blackstrap molasses
½ cup liquid skim milk from powder
1 small egg

Measure and sift first five ingredients into bowl. Add wheat germ and margarine, mixing with fork until crumbly.

Measure liquid skim milk in cup, add egg and beat slightly. Mix in the molasses.

Add to dry ingredients stirring only until mixed.

Spread cooled fruit mixture over bottom crust in baking dish, Spread Cake Batter evenly over the fruit, bringing it well to the sides to cover fruit.

Bake in moderate oven 177 deg. C. until browned, but do not scorch top. Don't hurry it as bottom crust must be cooked too. Allow 30 to 35 minutes. Cut into 24 squares while warm. Leave in dish.

Now for an Oat-Wheat Fruit Loaf, using large Oat Flakes (a shorter texture and more flavor than fine rolled oats), and wholewheat flour. The fruit is adjustable to what you have. Use either raisins or currants, and either fresh apple or canned pineapple chunks (unsweetened) cut small with scissors.

Since this is a yeast recipe, it is a good plan to make it up before starting the Fruit Squares (above) then while the yeast loaf is rising and the oven is heating, there is just the time to put the Squares together and into the oven.

When the loaf has risen enough, it goes into the same oven — thus full use is made of the oven heat. We can save in so many ways.

CAT WHEAT FRUIT LOAF CAKE

½ cup orange juice from frozen concentrate (or apple juice)
1 Tbsp granular yeast (1 pkt)
3 Tbsp brown sugar
3 Tbsp soft margarine
½ tsp salt
1 small egg
1¼ cups wholewheat flour
1 cup oat flakes
1 cup chopped raisins (or currants)
½ cup coarse ground raw peanuts
½ cup cut up canned pineapple (or fresh apple)

Measure orange juice in to large warm mixing bowl. Add a little hot water to juice when measuring to bring to warm. Sprinkle yeast over surface. Put in warm place for 10 minutes to work yeast.

When bubbly to top, add sugar, margarine and salt, and stir with wooden spoon to dissolve. Add egg, and beat lightly to mix.

Add wholewheat flour and beat with spoon for 2 minutes.

Add oat flakes, fruit and nuts. Stir to blend all together. Spoon into greased and lightly floured 9x5x3 loaf pan.

Cover with greased paper and let rise in warm place out of draft until pan is filled, about 45 to 55 minutes.

Bake in modern oven 177 deg. C. for 1 hour. Watch last 15 minutes so that loaf does not get too dark in color.

Set pan on wire rack to cool for 30 minutes before removing loaf from pan.

This is a lovely light textured fruit loaf cake, just right for slicing as dessert for holiday lunches. It his fruit and grains, and a minimum of sugar and fat.

Make it part of a meal, perhaps following a large green salad with cottage cheese, or something similar. You will like it.

If baking for one or two people, cut the loaf in half when thoroughly cooled. Wrap, label, and put into top of refrigerator freezer. If no freezer, it keeps for 2 weeks wrapped on fridg shelf.

Elkridge Tomatoes

Makes 8 servings
⅓ cup cornmeal
⅓ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup bacon fat or oil
6 firm medium tomatoes
2 tablespoons brown sugar

Combine cornmeal, flour, salt and pepper. Slice tomatoes 1 inch thick. Dip slices in cornmeal mixture and saute quickly on both sides in hot bacon fat in heavy skillet. Use more fat, if necessary. Sprinkle slices on both sides with sugar. Drain tomatbes and layer in shallow greased casserole with slices overlapping. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes, or until bubbly.

Vegetable consumption keeps rising

Short Cooking Time For Fresh Vegetables

WASHINGTON (WP) — Do people like vegetables?

Despite an apparent decline in the consumption of fresh vegetables since The Second World War, it seems that they do. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, USDA total consumption, including frozen and canned vegetables, has increased from 278.5 pounds per person in 1959 to 285.5 in 1972. The figure is arrived at each year after dividing the vegetable tonnage sold through commercial channels by population figures.

What are not included in these statistics are the vegetables grown in private gardens or sold at small roadside stands. There are no reliable figures for these although a USDA official spoke of a 50-pound-per-person consumption rate for home-grown vegetables in the 1960s. In the same breath, he said he thought that the figure was probably too high.

The figure probably is not too high for 1975. The vegetable seed business is booming; where petunias and marigolds once grew, tomatoes and zucchini have taken over. There are more roadside trucks parked on urban streets and roadsides stands in the suburbs this year than in recent memory.

The cooking of home-grown vegetables is an essential ingredient of the taste. It's quite different from cooking what passes for "fresh vegetables in the stores. The former are much younger, requiring less cooking time. And for those who have never "cooked" anything but frozen or canned vegetables, new cooking techniques must be learned.

While the standard method is to put the vegetables in a pot with a lot of water, the usual result is to throw out the baby with the bath water. Not only are many vitamins and minerals leached into the water, but the best flavor of the food seems to disappear into the liquid as well.

The best method for cooking vegetables to maintain their texture, flavor, and not so incidentally their nutritional value, is to steam them. Baking and stir frying, a Chinese technique, are also valuable for the same reasons though baking takes a long time and stir frying, done in oil, adds some calories.

These are general rules for steaming, baking and stir frying vegetables along with some recipes using these techniques.

STEAMING

If you do not have a steamer, you can improvise one by placing a colander in any pot with a tight-fitting lid.

Bring about an inch of salted water to boil in the bottom of the steamer. Set rack in pot; add vegetables, salt, cover and cook vegetables about 3 to 5 minutes longer than when they are cooked in boiling water.

STIR FRY

This method is particularly suited to tender young vegetables: They must be cut in uniform slices. Either a Chinese wok or a heavy skillet may be used. Heat about 2 tablespoons oil until very hot. Add about a pound of vegetables and stir well over high heat, being sure vegetables are coated evenly with oil. Cook, stirring for 3 to 5 minutes, until vegetables are crisp-tender.

BAKING

This method is most appropriate for vegetable casseroles and for potatoes, white and sweet. Squash with thick rinds such as acorn squash takes about 45 minutes at 375 degrees. Potatoes take about 45 minutes to 1 hour at 400 degrees.

From Orchid Seven restaurant in Bethesda, Md.:
1 pound eggplant
2 tablespoons salad or peanut oil
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons dry sherry
6 tablespoons chicken broth
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate (optional)
1 teaspoon oyster sauce
1 teaspoon dark soy sauce
Few drops sesame oil

Remove skin from eggplant and cut into 2-by-1 inch cubes, discarding heavily seeded part.

Heat salad oil in wok or heavy skillet. Add garlic and 1 teaspoon salt, stir. Add eggplant and stir to coat. Add sherry, chicken broth and cover. Cook one minute. Add msg, oyster sauce, soy sauce and sesame oil. Cover and cook 30 to 60 seconds, until eggplant is soft. Makes three servings.

DRY SAUTEED STRING BEANS

1½ to 2 pounds fresh beans, trimmed
Peanut or soy oil for deep frying
2 to 3 tablespoons ground pork
2 teaspoons Szechuan pickle (Szechuan preserved vegetables, finely chopped)
2 tablespoons soy oil
2 tablespoons chicken broth or water
2 tablespoons dry sherry
½ teaspoon minced garlic
2 tablespoons hoisin sauce
1 tablespoon dark soy sauce
¼ teaspoon white pepper
2½ teaspoons oyster sauce
¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate (optional)
1 to 1½ teaspoons red chili paste or sauce
1 tablespoon spring onions
1 teaspoon sesame oil

Deep fry green beans at 325 degrees for one minute in peanut or soy oil. When skins of beans get wrinkled, but before they burst, the beans are ready; drain thoroughly.

Heat 2 tablespoons soy oil in wok or heavy skillet until very hot. Add pork and pickle and stir to coat meat with oil. Add chicken broth and cook until pork browns, then add sherry, ginger, garlic, hoisin sauce, soy, pepper, oyster sauce, msg and chili paste. Stir well. Add green beans and stir. Add spring onions and sesame oil, just before serving. Makes four servings.

From Cookies and Candies to Full-Course Meals

By TINY BENNETT

My teenage daughter Tracy has taken up cooking with great zest recently and has moved out of the cookie and candy stage into the preparation of full-course meals.

Naturally I fully approve, because I believe everyone should be well trained in cooking — boys as well.

The really interesting thing about Tracy's summer cooking project is that she has been turning out excellent dinners at quite low cost and with modest calorie counts.

Last week she cooked dinner every night and each included a special main course, a fine salad and with maybe a home-made strawberry tartlet as a sweetener to follow. She did all the planning, wouldn't allow me in the kitchen and followed the basic rule of first thoroughly reading a recipe and assembling all incredients before she started. Since I own more than 100 cookbooks, there was no lack of research gear and she used it well.

Tracy made a few minor mistakes such as finding too late the fish she planned to cook was in a solid frozen block. These little goofs were invaluable lessons and she quickly whipped up omelets instead and did the fish the next day when it was thawed.

Two entrees of quite low cost were attractive and very tasty and I believe well worth passing on, not just as a cooking project for teenagers, but because I know most homemakers will enjoy making them. And there is no argument the whole family will enjoy them.

TRACY'S SHEPHERD'S PIE'

This is a fine way to use up left-over roasts of lamb or beef but Tracy elected to use fresh ground beef.

In a big skillet, heat two tablespoons light cooking oil and carefully brown a large Spanish onion sliced razor-thin.

When nicely colored, add the ground meat, mixing well and seasoning with salt, pepper, dash of thyme and sprinkle of dried parsley. Cook until meat is at the rare stage and from time to time, tilt the skillet and spoon away fat but NOT the delicious meat juices.

Peel and cook a pot of potatoes, drain off the water and shake on medium heat to dry them out. Add a dab of butter and a little milk and mash and beat until thick and creamy.

Grease an oven dish lightly, pour in the rare-cooked meat with onions and all juices — there won't be much, just enough to make moist — and cover the meat with the potato. The potato should seal in the meat to retain moisture and flavor. Dot all over with little dabs of butter and place under the broiler, fairly close, till the potato covering is beautifully browned and crisp.

It is a very quick dish even with raw ground meat. With ground left-over roast beef or lamb, it is even quicker to cook but the meat will need the addition of half a cup of boiling stock.

A further touch is to dust the potato crust with grated cheese before broiling.

With a side salad plate and a green vegetable that's a good cheap meal.

The masterpiece of the week was a dandy and Tracy locked herself in the kitchen with strict instruction not to be disturbed at any cost. A few muffled juvenile yelps drifted through the closed door from time to time but at last Joy and I sat at a carefully spread dinner table and viewed with delight a lovely golden batter with big beef sausages peeking out here and there.

"Oh boy," I rejoiced, "Toad in the Hole."

"No, said Tracy, "this is a Canadian dish and it's called Huskies in a Drift." Whatever the name, it was great and she made it this way.

HUSKIES IN A DRIFT

Pre-heat the oven to 400 degrees and partially cook a pound of lean sausages and lay them out carefully in a shallow eight-inch square baking dish.

Beat together two eggs and one cup milk and then thoroughly beat in ½ cup of all purpose flour, pour over the sausages and bake in a 400 degree oven for 25 minutes.

I'd warned Tracy that ovens vary in heat and that recipe times must be regarded as guides, rather than exact instructions.

I always set my oven 25 degrees higher, because it is that much out, so Tracy set at 425 and when the centre of the batter was still too light at the end of the given cooking time, she sat in front of the oven window and just waited until the centre rose golden brown — it took almost 40 minutes.

It was great.

This can be made with grilled pork chops instead of sausages or even wieners.

You know what though, while I love cooking, it is so nice now and then to sit down to a meal someone else has prepared. If you feel that way, turn the kids on to cooking, it is good training for them and a rest for you.

Nutritious Diet Costing More

OTTAWA (CP) — The average cost of a nutritious diet for a family of four has increased by about 40 cents so far this month to $42.50 a week, a jump of nine-tenths of one per cent from June, according to the food prices review board.

The board said the July cost, computed from a 12-city survey in the first three weeks of the month, was up $1 or 2.4 per cent from the average cost of $41.50 during the three months April-June.

There have been substantial increases in the prices of eggs, fresh vegetables and pork in recent weeks although the rapid rate of beef price increases in May and June slowed in July, the board said.

Food prices were responsible for 60 per cent of the 1.5-per-cent jump in the consumer price index in June from the previous month.

Among the 12 cities, Vancouver had the highest weekly cost of the nutritious diet at $47.20. The lowest cost of the diet was $39.70 in Quebec city.

The highest jump from the April-June average occurred in Edmnton, where cost of the diet rose $1.90 to $43.50 in July. The lowest increase of 70 cents was registered in Quebec City and in Ottawa-Hull, where the diet now costs $41.50.

The nutritious diet is what the board says would be adequate for a family of two parents, a teen-age son and a young daughter. Actually, Canadians spend an average of about 43 per cent more than necessary primarily because of greater emphasis on meat, prepared foods and sweets.

The board's diet places more emphasis on fruit and vegetables and less on meat. For example, Canadians last year spent 38 per cent of their food budget on meat while the board says 24 per cent would be adequate for proper nutrition.

The average consumer spends only 18 per cent of the food budget on fruit and vegetables. The board recommends 29 per cent.

Cost of the diet has risen steadily since the board began taking the survey last fall. The average national cost in the three months October-December, 1974, was $39.60 a week and the January-March cost was $40.70.

The average July weekly cost of the diet in the other cities: St. John's, Nfld., $44.40; Charlottetown, $43.90; Halifax, $42.90; Saint John, N.B., $43.80; Montreal $40.70; Toronto, $42.70; Winnipeg, $43.50; Regina, $42.80.

Pork Prices Highest in History

TORONTO (CP) — Pork prices have increased about 33 per cent during the last 12 months to their highest level in history, an industry spokesman said Tuesday.

And the price of bacon, ham, chops, roasts and other pork products is expected to remain high for at least another year because of a continent-wide shortage of hogs, says Keith Leckie, general manager of the Meat Packers Council.

In a little more than a year, the price paid producers for a carcass doubled to a record $81.50 a hundredweight from $40.35.

Pork carcasses sold for the all-time high of $81.50-a-hundredweight about two weeks ago. Since then, prices have eased somewhat to an average of $73.35 for meat sold Monday by the Ontario Pork Producers Marketing Board.

An industry official said hog slaughterings in Canada are running 13 per cent behind the rate a year ago. In Saskatchewan, slaughtering is down 40 per cent.

In Ontario, slaughtering is down 9½ per cent, and a marketing board official said this year's sales might decrease to 2.5 million from 2.75 million last year.

dear abby

Industrial Safety

DEAR ABBY: I am the plant manager of a large industrial company employing over 3,000 men, and their safety is my concern.

Enclosed is a letter that, I am told, appeared in your column about 10 years ago.

How much would you charge us to reprint this letter in our company paper? It could prevent accidents and perhaps save lives. Respectfully. — Chicagoan.

The column:

"DEAR ABBY: I am one of those foolish wives who insisted that my husband wear his wedding ring at all times. My husband is a maintenance mechanic, and this is what happened. Yesterday, I received a call informing me that my husband was at the hospital! While jumping off a construction truck, he caught his ring on a piece of metal, and his finger was practically torn off. I was told he was lucky he wasn't killed since he lost his balance and fell under the wheels of the truck.

"Abby, please print this in your column as a warning to other women who want their husbands to wear their wedding rings to work. — Al's Wife.

DEAR WIFE: Thank you for your letter. And while we're on the subject, read this one:

"DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married we had a double-ring ceremony, and he promised he would never take his wedding ring off. And he never did. After a few years he gained a little weight and couldn't get it off. My husband was an electrician.

"Well, to make a long and very tragedy short, his wedding ring wore a tiny hole through his insulated glove and a fatal contact was made. He died instantly. When his lifeless body was examined, the only sign of injury was a small burn where his wedding ring encircled his finger. — Electrician's Widow."

"So . . . dear wife, if your husband works around machines or electricity, tell him to leave ALL RINGS AT HOME — if you really love him, that is.

"Rings and other types of jewelry for women and men working with machinery and electricity are a major problem, in industry. Sentiment is a poor excuse for wearing a ring when it can cause the loss of a finger, hand, arm or even a life."

DEAR CHICAGOAN: Be my guest. No charge. (P.S. And the same goes for any other company that would find it useful.)

Canned Summer Bounty Blessing in Winter

LEMONY LEMONADE SYRUP BASE

1 tablespoon fresh grated lemon peel
1½ cups sugar
½ cup boiling water
1½ cups fresh squeezed lemon juice

In covered jar, combine lemon peel, sugar and boiling water; cover and shake until sugar dissolves. Add lemon juice. Store tightly covered in refrigerator until ready to use. Makes 2⅜ cups syrup base.

Lemonade by the glass: Pour ⅜ to ½ cup syrup base into tall glass; add ¾ cup cold water and ice cubes. Stir briskly.

Lemonade by the pitcher: Combine full recipe of syrup base with about 5 cups cold water in large pitcher. Add ice cubes and stir.

The height of the canning season is fast approaching and more Canadians than ever are trying their hand at preserving high quality fruit and vegetables. The resulting rows upon rows of jars or cans filled with the summer's bounty can be a blessing during the winter months ahead, but only if safety procedures are closely followed. From Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada, come these questions that are frequently asked about canning.

Q. Why are open-kettle and oven methods of canning not recommended?

A. In the open-kettle method, sterilized fruit is poured into sterilized containers and sealed. There is far too much chance of contamination when the jars are being filled to make this a safe method.

In the oven method, processing is carried out in the oven. This is not safe because oven thermostats are not always accurate. The temperature fluctuates widely and one cannot be sure that the food is hot enough for a long enough time to ensure destruction of spoilage bacteria. Furthermore, jars may explode during processing, possibly injuring someone.

Q. Why do jars sometimes break in processing in boiling water bath?

A. Sometimes a jar has a slight crack from a severe knock in handling. If a rack is not used, a jar resting directly on the bottom of the kettle may break. Also, a jar not designed for canning such as those used for coffee and salad dressing, may not be strong enough to withstand processing.

Q. Why do my jars not seal properly?

A. The rims of the jars may not have been wiped clean.

A bit of food may have been forced between the rim of the jar and the lid during processing. Lids may not have been centred. There may be a chip on the rim of the jar. New metal lids or rubber rings with glass lids must be used each time. Also, metal screw bands tend to stretch after many uses and do not seal properly. They should be replaced occasionally.

Q. What causes the popping sound when a jar with a metal lid cools?

A. As the jar cools the contents contract and the lid is drawn in. This "pop" is an excellent indication that the jar has a tight seal.

Q. Should chemical preservatives be added to help preserve foods being canned?

A. No. Airtight containers and proper processing are all that are needed to preserve fruits and vegetables. Some preservatives may be harmful.

Q. Is it safe to use home-canned food if the liquid is cloudy?

A. Cloudy liquid may be a sign of spoilage but may also be caused by minerals in hard water or by starch from overripe vegetables. If liquid is cloudy, boil the food 10 minutes. Do not baste or use any food that foams during heating or has an off-odor.

Q. Where is the best place to store canned foods?

A. Store them in a cool, dry place. Since light causes darkening of foods in glass jars, keep these either in a dark storeroom or else wrap them in newspaper or place in cartons.

Father To Sue RCMP

BLUFFTON, Alta. (CP) — The father of a man injured in police cells in Rimbey, Alta., June 7 said Tuesday he plans to bring legal action against RCMP over the incident.

David Rumsey, who farms near this central Alberta community, said he plans to meet with his lawyer Friday to commence legal action.

He said his 22-year-old son Allan is in hospital receiving therapy for a neck injury which partially paralyzed him.

The injury occurred when Allan was restrained by police while held in a cell for being intoxicated, Rumsey said.

A doctor who was called to the cells after the incident described the injury as not serious, but the man was taken to hospital in Edmonton when he had not recovered by the next morning.

FOGGING NO CURE FOR BUGS

WINNIPEG—The city of Winnipeg has produced little evidence to support its claim that fogging helps reduce the mosquito population, a Manitoba government official told the Clean Environment Commission Tuesday.

Dr. W. George Bowen, assistant deputy minister of environmental management, said he has not yet seen any conclusive evidence that fogging is effective against adult mosquitos.

"Before the introduction of a toxic substance into the environment can be justified, it's up to you to produce evidence of the benefit," he told the city's delegation.

Coal Plan Bared

EDMONTON—A coal-mining project which could create a new energy link between Ontario and Alberta was placed before the province's energy resources conservation board Tuesday.

Luscar Ltd. of Edmonton wants to develop a mine on property which holds an estimated 200 million tons of recoverable thermal coal.

The 1,436-acre parcel proposed for the mine was once an important coal-producing centre in the coal branch area about 140 miles west of here.

The proposal calls for initially establishing an open-pit mine capable of producing a minimum of 2.1 million tons of coal annually. The main market for the bituminous steam coal is Ontario Hydro, which hopes to take at least 1.5 million tons annually in 1977.

If the development is permitted by the provincial government it would result in millions of dollars worth of mine construction, railway expansion, Great Lakes shipbuilding and construction of a bulk coal terminal at Thunder Bay.

Luscar estimates that the coal valley project and associated railway equipment will cost about $100 million. A similar expenditure would be required for the bulk terminal and coal-carrying ships.

Facts Missing

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's deputy premier said Tuesday he didn't have all the facts when he approved of his deputy minister's involvement in an export deal.

Dr. Hugh Horner, former agriculture minister, testified before a judicial inquiry that he would not have allowed bull semen owned by Dr. Glen Purnell, former deputy agriculture minister, to be included in a shipment to Brazil if he had known that the price Dr. Purnell was to receive had not been negotiated.

Claim Filed

EDMONTON — The city of Edmonton has filed a statement of claim in Alberta Supreme Court against 14 insurance companies for $482,822 in an effort to recover damages from a 1973 fire at a city Hydro-Electric substation.

The city said in its claim it had coverage with the 14 companies for insurance amounting to $187 million at the time of the Hardisty substation fire, caused by the failure of electrical equipment.

The claim said the fire damaged insured equipment but "the defendant has refused to pay" the amount of damage.

Drake's Remains Hunted

LONDON (CP) — Sir Francis Drake was the hero of Elizabethan days but how he died in the Caribbean, after his adventures for his Queen, still is a murky matter. Now a British expedition has gone to the waters off Panama to learn more about the life and death of this sailer and freebooter of the 16th century.

The expedition is led by a 52-year-old marine archeologist and historian, Sidney Wignall. He aims to explore and excavate British and Spanish ships sunk off Panama and later establish a permanent underwater archeological conservation laboratory — the first of its kind in Central America — at Portobello, on the Caribbean coast of Panama. There are also plans to establish a marie nature reserve at Port Escoces, which Wignall says is one of the most beautiful natural harbors in the world.

It is 379 years since Drake died aboard the Defiance, allegedly from "the bloody flux," or dysentery. But there is a theory that he was poisoned. His body was consigned to the sea outside Portobello harbor in 1596 and hopes of recovering his remains are based on the belief that Drake's coffin was lined with lead.

Wignall, who has been preparing for the expedition for years, has already found many important clues including a chart of Portobello harbor showing where Drake's coffin was put into the sea and the location of several ships that were scuttled in the harbor. Wignall claims to know within 300 yards where Drake's coffin lies.

If the remains are found, an immediate call will go out to Britain for Prof. Ronald Harrison, head of the department of anatomy at University of Liverpool. Prof. Harrison — who is currently studying the 4,000-year-old remains of the Egyptian King Tutankhamen and his family — thinks he would be able to determint the cause of Drake's death.

Accompanying Wignall are eight experts in various fields including surveying, underwater photography, electronics, acoustics, medicine, marine biology and maritime history. A local member of the team will be provided by the Panamanian Institute of National Culture. The expeditiin is the first to receive Panamanian government permission to carry out an archeological search of its waters.

Among vessels Wignall and his team hope to locate are two English craft, the Elizabeth and the Deight — one a barque and the other an ocean-going pinnace — and two or three Spanish frigates.

The expedition will make the first use of a new British remotely-controlled underwater robot which has been tested and proved by the Harwell underwater experimental unit in Britain. The 28-year-old designer, Nick Watterton, is a member of the expedition. His brainchild has "television eyes" which will scan underwater scenes and send pictures to a television screen on board the three-masted schooner Jylland, the operation's floating base.

The expedition will use sophisticated metal detectors and acoustic equipment. Films will be made for the Panamanian government and Wignall plans to write a book about it.

'Killer Ring' Caught

TEHRAN (AP) — Two men accused of killing two United States officers and three Iranians were captured after a one-hour gun battle with security forces, the news agency Pars reported Tuesday. Pars added that documents on the captured men "showed the ring was planning to assassinate more people" but it did not elaborate.

Duck Has Peg Leg

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Irving the Drake is probably the only duckling in Oklahoma that swims, walks and even scratches with the aid of an artificial leg and foot.

Barely out of the egg, Irving swam into the jaws of a large snapping turtle that clamped down on his left foot.

Luckily for Irving, he happened to be hatched on a small lake behind an apartment complex where two men live, work and watch after the fowl inhabiting the water.

Chris Swartz, a young maintenance employee, shot the turtle with his bow and arrow, with a line attached for retrieval.

Ray Parham, head maintenance man, grabbed the white duckling out of the water only to find the bird's foot mangled so badly it was past saving.

Using knowledge acquired over the years from working with animals, Parham amputated the foot below the main joint and stitched up the wound. He kept the youngster in a cage while the leg healed and Parham made sure circulation was restored.

Irving learned to stand on his only foot, but he could not walk well or navigate in the water without travelling in circles.

That was when Parham got the idea to manufacture an artificial foot for the bird.

He thought first of molding a webbed foot to match the other, but dropped that in favor of a rubber tube, formed and splayed at the base to let Irving direct and propel himself through the water.

The foot was attached by bands below and above the joint, with nylon strings holding them together.

Irving stood shakily at first. But he quickly found the leg and foot were stable and began to walk like other ducks.

After a few trial waddles, he learned to use the foot for swimming and can paddle as straight as his peers with two real feet.

He now is beginning to use the artificial leg and foot to scratch and preen.

Uruguay Accused Of Torture

LONDON (Reuter) — The London-based human rights organization Amnesty International has accused the Uruguayan government of systematic arrest and torture of dissidents.

"We express deep concern at infringements during the last month of national and international law with regard to detainees in Uruguay," Amnesty Secretary-General Martin Ennals said in a telegram to Uruguayan President Juan Maria Bordaberry.

Prisoners have suffered "months in detention incommunicado, physical and psychological torture, arbitrary detention and other measures in contradiction with Uruguay's declared intentions," he said.

Ennals also sent a telegram to the president of the Uruguayan Council of State asking what the council has done to protect individuals alleged to have been tortured.

At the same time Amnesty released a survey reporting cases of torture in Uruguay in past months, and said that recently there has been apparent chaos in the system of repression.

"This chaos has led to the immediate arrest of persons granted unconditional release by a judge, to the arrest of relatives when the wanted person has not been found and to arrests on the basis of anonymous denunciations," Amnesty said.

The survey included details of people it alleged have been sent for trial for putting particular emphasis on the words "tremble, tyrants" in the national anthem, and of a detainee said to have jumped from a police station window after seeing a fellow prisoner collapse and die of torture.

Vacancies Near Nil

CALGARY (CP) — The apartment vacancy rate in Calgary now is at less than one per cent, the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation says.

Vacancy rate was 0.9 per cent last month — "in other words, vacancies are virtually nil," said Harvey Zindler, CMHC program manger of lending operations.

Apartment vacancies have been constantly dropping since June, 1971, when the vacancy rate was 10.7 per cent.

Civil War Rakes Sudan

ADDIS ABABA (WP) — Civil war apparently has broken out again in the southern Sudan and more than 10,000 Sudanese refugees already have crossed into southwestern Ethiopia to escape renewed fighting between central government forces and southern secessionist rebels.

Sudanese refugee sources here say the 1972 agreement between the Arab-dominated Khartoum government and Anyanya guerrillas in the South has collapsed completely, and that a new rebel army is being formed to resume a 16-year-old war for the "total independence" of the southern Sudan.

"It is they (the Khartoum government) who are violating the Addis Ababa agreement, not the people of the southern Sudan," said one refugee leader.

"We are determined to fight for our freedom until the last man . . . There won't be any other agreement with the Arabs until the southern Sudan is free."

The first major clash between the southern Sudanese dissidents and the Khartoum government army in three years reportedly occurred March 3 in Anobo, a small town on the Sudanese-Ethiopain border roughly 700 miles southwest of Khartoum.

More than 200 civilians, northern soldiers and southern Anyanya rebels were either killed or executed in the incident, according to the refugees.

In addition, 150 Anyanya troops were disarmed and later executed.

Fighting is going on still, according to refugee leaders, in the region around the towns of Akobo and Malakal, 175 miles to the northeast.

There is considerable tension between the southern Christian population and northern Arabs in the three southern provinces of the Sudan.

However, the extent and seriousness of the fighting remains difficult to determine.

There have been no reports on the situation in the south from the Sudan and the Sudanese government even denies that any southern refugees have fled to neighboring countries, including Ethiopia.

Nor was there any way to confirm immediately the reports of the fighting provided by the refugees.

But judging from the number of Sudanese that have fled into Ethiopia since March and the tales they tell, the Sudan appears plunged again into civil war or on the verge of it.

Renewed fighting could endanger the six-year-old regime of Sudan's president, Gen. Jaafar Nimeri.

Nimeri himself was primarily responsible for negotiating an end to 16 years of guerilla warfare between the central government and the Anyanyas in late February 1972.

A collapse of the peace accord signed in Addis Ababa could seriously undermine Nimeri's prestige and lead to widespread discontent with his moderate regime.

At the very least it appears that the general, who came to power in a military coup in May 1969, has an explosive political situation on his hands.

Refugees from the southern Sudan first began crossing the border into Ethiopia in mid-April, according to Ethiopian officials.

The government so far has registered 4,170 refugees, but local officials in the town of Gambella in southwestern Ethiopia say the number is between 10,000 and 12,000 and is growing daily.

Ethiopia has asked for help from the United Nations to deal with the Sudanese refugee problem. A team of international refugee agency representatives is here studying the problem.

Hearing Into Death

No Saanich Stand On Lot Size Cuts

While developers wait on the sidelines Saanich still hasn't resolved whether to reduce minimum lot requirements in Gordon Head.

In 1974 the council increased minimum lots sizes in that area from 6,000 square feet to 8,400 square feet.

But council dangled a carrot before developers by saying they could sell the smaller size lots if they donated to a parkland fund.

There were no takers.

Instead, on checking with provincial government officials, Saanich discovered its parkland levy could probably be illegal, not permitted under the Municipal Act.

Council's lands, planning and housing committee was told Tuesday the provincial government has no plans to give municipalities such powers.

Acting municipal planner Gil Laurenson cautioned the mayor and aldermen that some developers could be holding back, waiting for them to make a final decision on lot sizes.

After lengthy deliberation the committee decided to toss the whole issue back to council with no recommendation.

In other business Ald. Joe Bourque gave a progress report on regional bikeway plans.

He said a regional bikeway system is being co-ordinated by the Capital Regional District, with seven municipalities and the provincial government taking part.

Bourque said a series of "bike Sundays" is being planned for the end of the summer as a means of testing suggestions from cyclists.

Fire Mop-Ups Continue

Fire hazards in the woods continue to be extremely high as fire fighting crews today mopped up nine small blazes in scattered parts of southern Vancouver Island.

A B.C. Forest Service spokesman said a fire on one-tenth of an acre in the Highland District near Peace Lake caused firefighters some trouble early today and a helicopter with water buckets was despatched to the scene to help contain it.

The blaze on Mount Finlayson, just south of the Malahat, was under control, and 20 men were containing the one-acre fire at Beaver Point in the Ruckle provincial park, Salt Spring Island.

The fire just off the Sooke Highway past Humpback Road is still being mopped up, as well as the blaze near Elk Lake, close to the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain.

Forest fire ranger Barry Mountain said it takes time to extinguish a small fire.

Gov't Action Planned On B.C. Rail Blockade

The provincial government has decided to take positive action in the three-months-old B.C. Rail blockade set up by the Stuart-Trembleur Indian band.

But government sources will not disclose what the plan of action will be.

Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk, who is also new vice-president of B.C. Rail, said Tuesday BCR's board of directors decided Friday to send a letter to the band but the letter has not yet been drafted. He would not indicate what the letter would say.

First news that the government had decided to take action in the dispute came in a lengthy statement today from minister without portfolio for northern affairs Alf Nunweiler on the background of the blockade at Tachie, 40 miles north of Fort St. John.

Nunweiler said "a specific course of action" has been decided on and while he could not detail, "developments would become evident shortly."

"I am still hopeful that this dispute can be settled amicably but prompt action is needed to get the blockade down, the dispute resolved, and to restore the vital transportation service that supports the economy of that region," he said.

The blockade, set up by the Indians in May as part of a continuing battle over compensation for the rail right of way on the reserve, has caused "serious economic hardships" to people located beyond the blockade, said Numweiler.

Nunweiler said a 1969 agreement between BCR and the band would have given the Indians a three-for-one land exchange for the 48 acres needed for right of way. But in 1973 the band council repudiated the original agreement.

The Indians are now demanding a similar land exchange plus $7 million in cash compensation.

"It is the assessment of both the B.C. Railway and the government," said Nunweiler, "that the Stuart-Trembleur had failed to explain why 48 acres taken as a right of way is worth $7 million plus about 1,200 acres exchange lands."

August Problems in Greenhouses

If you have a greenhouse full of growing plants don't plan to take a holiday away from home during August unless you leave another enthusiast in charge.

August is often a changeable month of hot sunshine and cool overcasts and even a shower or two.

With most pot plants and also vegetables in ground beds or bench beds, shading on roof and side glass has been needed for the past week. Leave it on even though a partially overcast day occurs. If applied in streaks, the lime wash will allow 50 percent of the light to enter and all will be well for the plants at this season.

A complete overcast might bring a couple of days of showers or it might be a steady rain for a few hours. With this, the lime wash will be lessened allowing maximum light into the plants.

Now, supposing the rain is followed by another spell of clear skies and sunshine. Only an enthusiast like yourself will think of applying more of the lime shading.

If this is not done, there may be burning of some plants or sudden wilting of seedlings which needed extra attention because of the changed conditions.

When you are on the spot yourself you are aware of temperature changes and sudden wind changes.

You know that a dry wind or high temperature through the greenhouse calls for a water spraying on path, floor and bench to raise the humility and lessen the heat. Not always is more water needed at the roots of the plants if the atmosphere contains moisture.

With few exceptions, this damping down inside a greenhouse must be done before 3 p.m. in August. This gives time for excess moisture to evaporate before further cooling takes place around sundown.

Who else but yourself knows this critical "feel" of a greenhouse needing to be damped down? And who knows the amount of ventilation to be given on days or nights when a notable temperature change occurs? Only another greenhouse enthusiast.

And will that other person (man or woman) awaken in the night with the instant knowledge that something needs attention in your greenhouse when a sudden storm occurs?

You do these things yourself because you have developed the talent with time, but to explain them to another who is activated by only a friendly spirit is impossible from a practical point.

But if you have such a friend, write down a few basic instructions (which plants are to be given water only once while you're away; and the fact you don't wish fertilizer to be given even though a plant looks weak and droopy) and take off for your holiday. Your friend is beyond price. The only return is for you to offer the same good service.

IMPATIENT to swarm into newly-covered mall at Mayfair shopping centre, people surge toward ribbon snipped today at official opening of $6 million improvement by Mayor Peter Pollen. Expansion adds 70,000 square feet to the centre, allowing for 42 shops and multi-level parking garage.

Annex Planned For Union Centre

A planned $234,000 annex to the Victoria Union Centre will provide space for a credit union and additional offices for Victoria's expanding labor movement.

At a meeting Tuesday of the Victoria Building Co-operative Union, the co-op set up to establish a headquarters for trade unions in Victoria, shareholders ratified plans to build the annex on a lot adjacent to the present union centre at 2750 Quadra Street.

The three-storey detached annex will be constructed at the corner of Market and Quadra Streets where the union centre caretaker's residence now stands. The house will be demolished to make room for the expansion.

The annex, designed by architect Liam Cassidy and to be constructed by the Dura Construction Ltd., will provide space for the consolidation of labor unions in town, Victoria Labor Council secretary Larry Ryan said today.

The first floor of the new building will house the Victoria Labor Council Credit Union which now occupies only a small room in the union centre, Ryan said.

Ryan said the building is an "all-union enterprise" with all the money for construction coming from the unions which belong to the co-op. The co-op built the present union centre in 1963.

The architect is now working on the working drawings for the annex and construction is expected to start soon, Ryan said, with an opening date in January, 1976.

Victim Spat Out Medicine

VANCOUVER (CP) — An inquest into the death of Andrew Hein, 59, who died in the Vancouver General Hospital July 5 after being transferred from the city jail, was told Tuesday he twice spat out medicine in his jail cell.

Hein had been charged with the attempted murder of his wife who was slashed with the jagged neck of a broken bottle.

J. O. Richardson, who represented Hein and now represents his family, has said Hein did not have proper clothing while he was in custody and this could have contributed to his death.

Jail nurse Donalda Halifax said Hein twice spat out medication when she tried to give it to him orally.

She said he was emaciated and in poor mental condition when she saw him in the jail.

Hein was throwing objects at other prisoners and was transferred to the hospital at Oakalla, she said.

Other witnesses said Hein was taken to the provincial courthouse from the city jail on the day he was arrested and a judge ordered him transferred to Oakalla.

Staff Sergeant Jack Marshall, the head city jailer, said Hein was then returned to the city jail because his papers were not complete for the Burnaby institution.

He said Hein was shifted several times between the Vancouver jail, the holding centre at the provincial courts building and Burnaby. On June 24 he was examined by a doctor and taken to hospital.

Pathologist T. R. Harmon said Hein had badly diseased lungs and died a natural death from bronchial pneumonia.

Plumbers Chosen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of four unions have voted to be represented by the Plumbers Union in contract discussions with the British Columbia Railway, the unions announced Tuesday.

The B.C. Labor Relations Board ordered the Plumbers Union, Machinists Union-Lodge 681, Local 2027 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and Local 289 of the Firemen and Oilers Union to vote to decide their representative on a council of labor unions.

The other shopcraft union on the council is the 300-member Carmen's Union.

7 Face Deportation

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Seven Brazilians will go before a special inquiry officer for deportation hearings at the end of the week.

Immigration department zone director Clare Schachard said Tuesday the seven men were picked up in Prince George.

He said they apparently have been in Canada for months, and worked in Toronto before coming to B.C.

One of the seven is in custody in Kamloops and the other six will be taken to Kamloops. If the deportation order is granted, they will be shipped to Brazil at the Canadian taxpayers' expense.

Grierson Resigns

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charles Grierson, executive assistant to the president of the B.C. Medical Centre, has submitted his resignation, effective the end of September. He said he was resigning for personal reasons.

Slam Green Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — The largest industrial union in Canada has rejected the federal government's proposed immigration policies contained in its green paper on immigration and population.

Monty Alton, B.C. and Yukon area supervisor for the United Steel Workers of America which has about 180,000 Canadian members, accused the government of seeking scapegoats to cover its own failures in immigration and employment policies.

In a statement released Tuesday, Alton said it is important to place immigration in its proper perspective.

"I think it is appropriate during times of high employment that the labor movement makes sure that injustices are not committed because the government is seeking a scapegoat," he said.

"We reject any system of classification which would have the effect of excluding otherwise acceptable immigrants because of their race or color," the union said.

"We oppose any proposal which would distort the family life of an immigrant by excluding members of his family whom he is prepared to support," it added.

'Progress' in Talks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some progress has been made in the British Columbia Forest dispute but "whether it is great depends on where you are sitting," Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon, special mediator in the dispute, said Tuesday.

The mediator met separately with industry and union representatives Tuesday.

The 13,000 members of the Canadian Paperworkers Union and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada have been on strike since July 18. The International Woodworkers of America have agreed to stay on the job until Mr. Justice Hutcheon brings down his non-binding report, due Saturday.

Union spokesmen said Tuesday there has been little progress in the dispute that has closed the province's 20 pulp mills and many sawmills.

Reg Ginn, PPWC president, said: "We haven't really got down to the nitty gritty and time is running out."

"Right now, it doesn't look as if anything has been accomplished but it may be a little too early to judge," Ginn said. "I know (Mr.) Justice Hutcheon is working hard."

An IWA spokesman said some progress had been made each day "but it's slow."

Chief industry spokesman Don Lanskail said it would not be useful for him to comment on whether progress had been made.

The pulp unions are seeking a general wage increase of $1.50 an hour on a base rate of $5.10. The IWA wants $1 an hour on the same base rate. All three unions want one-year contracts.

GOV'T OFFERING JOBS TO BLIND

Government take-over of kiosks in liquor stores is scheduled for August 1 and 27 blind workers in the stands have been offered jobs within the public service.

Liquor Administration Branch manager Keith Warnes said he's sure all the people will accept government jobs because it means a substantial wage increase as well as the protection and benefits of unionization.

Under the existing system kiosks are operated by the Canadian National Institute of the Blind and the workers are guaranteed a certain return for their labor.

But Warnes said the salaries were low — about $300 a month — in comparison with the $825 a month the public service commission is offering.

CNIB is donating the stands to the government and Warnes said the province hopes to make the kiosks more of a paying proposition by improving and expanding the facilities.

Regular LAB employees will assist the blind workers, he said, and other handicapped people may be hired to work at the stands.

The government take-over was requested by the blind, said Warnes.

U.S. REPORT QUOTES BOB WILLIAMS

CIA Trying to Wreck NDP?

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

U.S. Central Intelligence Agency money is being pumped into B.C. to disrupt the NDP government, according to an American newspaper report quoting Resources Minister Bob Williams.

The June 20 edition of the University of Wisconsin student newspaper The Daily Cardinal quotes Williams as saying in an interview he has "documentary evidence that they (the CIA) have filtered money into right wing opposition groups and the right-wing press in order to de-stabilize our government."

Williams is also quoted as saying that CIA agents have infiltrated the NDP party and tried to bribe party members.

"After what happened in Chile, we are the only socialist government left in the Americas and feel that we are the next target of the CIA," said Williams.

Cardinal staff reporter Edward Handell said today he taped most of the interview with Williams after the B.C. minister spoke to a conference on "state and local alternative policies" in Madison, Wisconsin.

Williams, who is on a business trip in Belgium and could not be reached for confirmation of the statements, attended the June conference alone and members of his staff said today they could not confirm the details of the interview.

Premier Barrett, now vacationing in California, sent word to members of the press that he would not comment on the story which was made public is B.C. today by Social Credit MLA Bob McClelland (Langley).

Provincial secretary Ernie Hall said he would not be surprised if the CIA had infiltrated the province but he did not know anything about the article.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald sounded surprised when he read the statements attributed to Williams, but said he could not comment until he had further information about the article.

Jerry Ambelang, state-news editor of the 43,000-circulation daily Wisconsin State Capital Times, said in a telephone interview today his newspaper covered the alternative policies conference attended by Williams but that the New Democrat minister was not interviewed or quoted.

Ambelang, a U of W graduate who worked on the student paper "a way back," said the campus paper tends to be "quite radical."

"They might be willing to take things out of context and piece them together to get a good story," he said. "I would be cautious . . . students put in what they want to put in."

According to the interview, Williams said the NDP has "discovered infiltrators in our party who have admitted working for American intelligence and our own party members report on being offered bribes to disrupt our meetings and party functions."

"We have presented our evidence to Trudeau and he has agreed to do what he could about it because the Canadian people are a very chauvinist people and any attempt by the CIA or the American imperialist corporations to interfere with any Canadian government will hurt Prime Minister Trudeau."

But NDP president Yvonne Cocke said she knows nothing about CIA infiltration of the

Quebec Grits Facing Charges

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec member of parliament and a member of the Quebec national assembly, both Liberals, have been charged along with six municipal officials following an inquiry last September into municipal corruption.

Antonio Yanakis, 53, MP for the central Quebec riding of Berthier, was charged in sessions court Tuesday with three counts of perjury, corruption, breach of trust and conspiring to defraud the public of $5,990.

Gerard Shanks, 51, member in the national assembly for the Montreal district of St. Henri, was charged with one count of breach of trust and one count of corruption involving payments totalling $1,750 from former town planplanner Roger Gagnon.

The charges follow a report of a closed-door inquiry at which Gagnon was accused of having offered almost $100,000 in bribes to the two politicians and six town officials of East Angus, in the Eastern Townships, and Gatineau, near Hull.

At the time of the alleged offences, Gagnon was employed as an urban planner for the two communities.

Charged with breach of trust in Gatineau, formerly Pointe Gatineau, are town councillors Jean-Marc Cloutier and Jean-Paul Osborne, court clerk Louis Lamarche, assistant treasurer Andre Leblanc and former councillor Jean-Louis Villeneuv.

The accused are to appear before Hull provincial court Judge Jerome Somers Sept. 18.

Alphonse Godbout, mayor of East Angus, was charged July 28 with one count of corruption and one of breach of trust. He is accused of having received $11,700 in alleged bribes from Gagnon.

Godbout was summoned to appear in Sherbrooke sessions court Sept. 17.

Gagnon faces 11 charges of political corruption and fraud and is also accused of defrauding the towns of more than $38,000.

Charges against Yanakis resulted from his testimony at the inquiry, during which he said he was not aware his secretary had cashed and deposited cheques from Gagnon.

He also denied having received money and gifts from the former town planner.

Meanwhile, Premier Robert Bourassa announced in Quebec City Tuesday the suspension of Shanks from the Liberal party and party caucus. The premier said all party privileges would be restored if Shanks is cleared of the charges.

In Ottawa, Health Minister Marc Lalonde, the Quebec lieutenant of the federal Liberal caucus, said Tuesday night any decision of the suspension of Yanakis would be taken by the federal caucus.

Yanakis said Tuesday night Bourassa is behind criminal accusations against him.

Yanakis, 53, said in an interview there is no proof against him and suggested Bourassa "is against the wall."

New Probe Set On Quang Affair

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen Tuesday agreed to investigate what was described in the Commons as "the startling revelation" that immigration officials knew of South Vietnamese Ceneral Dang Van Quang's background and alleged criminal activites when he entered Canada.

MP Derek Blackburn (NDP-Brant) pressed MacEachen for answers after the Ottawa Journal carried a copyright story Tuesday quoting a United States government official as telling immigration officials Quang was waiting to enter Canada last May.

Jack Luehrs, a U.S. Health, education and welfare official, told the newspaper he advised Canada's New Orleans viceconsul Albert Morin of Quang's background 10 days before he was interviewed by Morin at Fort Chaffee.

Morin had informed the press and Canadian officials he was not aware of Quang's criminal background.

Blackburn asked the external affairs minister whether anybody in Ottawa was told to let Quang in regardless of his criminal background.

Meanwhile Quang, says he is the victim of a "polictical campaign" to smear him.

He said in a CBC interview Tuesday night he cannot get "very fair justice" in this country.

He said he has sent a request to the United States government for political asylum in that country but so far has not received an answer.

"I think there is a very well-manipulated . . . political campaign against me from some organizations and from some individuals sympathetic to those organizations.

"They found in me a very ready scapegoat . . . because they could not capture me alive in Saigon. They are pursuing me wherever they can."

Andras said Quang was ordered deported July 7 after an investigation of his past in Vietnam showed he was "guilty of nefarious activities in the drug trade" and that other allegations against him were "well founded."

Immigration officials said last week the immigration appeal board rejected his application to appeal the deportation order because he made the application too late.

Trudeau Cautions Summit On 'Shortlived' Gains

HELSINKI (UPI)—Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau told the European Security Conference summit today any stability it produces will be "short-lived" unless action is taken in other parts of the world.

Trudeau addressed the leaders of the other 34 participating states on the first day of the three-day summit.

He said the final agreement is important because strife in Europe has all too often spread rapidly to other areas.

"Yet in a sense such a belief is arrogant," Trudeau said, speaking in French. "Europe is not the world.

"Whatever stability this conference anticipates in Europe will be short-lived if we do not seize the opportunity now offered to us to create elsewhere the conditions necessary to permit standards of living to be raised, to permit the economies of tropical countries to be improved, stabilized and made sufficient, to ensure that rural development is encouraged and food production is increased, to provide hope for a better future to the hundreds of millions of people outside Europe now existing at the subsistence level."

Trudeau said a major task facing the world is to allow all to share the benefits of nuclear energy, while "eliminating the likelihood of nuclear proliferation."

Trudeau's speech followed a warning to the Soviet Union from British Prime Minister Harold Wilson who stressed that no European nation will have an excuse in the future to intervene in the internal affairs of others.

His statement appeared to be a direct challenge to Moscow's so-called "Brezhnev Doctrine" which claims the right for the Soviet Union to itervene in any east European country — a policy propounded seven years ago by Soviet Communist party general Secretary Leonid Brezhnev after the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The Wilson statement was particularly significant since the security conference is Brezhnev's brain child. He has urged such a conference for years to put the world's stamp of approval on the postwar boundaries that put half of Europe in the Soviet bloc. He has been said to regard the controversial meeting as the crowning achievement of his career.

Trudeau Disputes $8 Over-tax

ST. ADOLPHE d'HAWORD, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is disputing what he claims was an overpayment of $8 in taxes last year on his 632-acre wooded terrain near Seize-Iles lake in the Laurentians.

In a letter to the community's secretary-treasurer, on the prime minister's official stationery, Trudeau dated March 27 and written claimed he had been consistently over-taxed.

The prime minister said the Quebec department of municipal affairs had told him that taxes on his lot should not have exceeded the minimum rate of one per cent.

"Nonetheless, for several years past the tax rate imposed on me has been well in excess of one per cent," he said, adding that it reached the two-per-cent mark this year.

$2 Coffee Forecast Before Winter

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria coffee prices are expected to rise to $1.50 per pound in August from the present rate of about $1.25 and could hit $2 before winter, according to spokesmen for the coffee industry.

Victoria supermarkets are anticipating a run on their coffee shelves before the Canadian price takes off. Prices have already risen 20 cents a pound in New York.

Victoria restaurants will probably stop giving free refills and will raise their price to at least 30 cents, up from a standard price of 25 cents, of the Victoria Restaurant Association.

The problem began July 18 said Gordon Schoor, president when frost destroyed up to 75 per cent of the Brazil coffee crop. The coffee was to have been harvested next spring and come on market in the fall of 1976.

Because of the uncertainty of future supply, the Brazil government has halted all exports of coffee while it takes stock. This could take several weeks.

As a result of the Brazilian action, there will be an immediate shortage of coffee on the world market during August. Brazil produces 33 per cent of the total world supply.

George Beatty of Toronto, public relations manager for General Foods in Canada, told the Times that sharp price increases in coffee are inevitable in August as a result of the Brazil action. General Foods increased its wholesale prices 20 cents a pound in the United States Monday and Canadian increases are expected to be of a similar amount.

Victoria supermarket spokesmen said an increase of 20 cents a pound wholesale would push the retail price up 25 cents a pound to $1.50 a pound in August.

The price increases are expected to come in two stages: the first in August reacting to the move by the Brazil government and the second in autumn after Brazil decides upon its next move.

In Vancouver, spokesmen for two major coffee wholesalers said if the first estimate by Brazil proves accurate and 75 per cent of the coffee crop has been wiped out by frost, the total price increase would be in the order of 50 per cent by winter, pushing retail prices up near the $2 mark.

One official warned consumers against buying bag coffee for storage purposes, pointing out it has a storage life of only about 60 days. Vacuum tin coffee can be stored about 12 months as can instant coffee, provided the seal has not been broken.

Coffee trading on the world market is already at fever pitch as speculators try to corner supplies to take advantage of the shortage.

Wrong Germany On Mail List

BRUSSELS (Guardian) — The Norwegian Defence Ministry for the past eight months has been sending military information to the East German Embassy in Oslo instead the West German, a Ministry official admitted Tuesday.

According to NATO officials here — who confirmed the mistake — the correspondence dealt with NATO information as well as Norwegian defence affairs. The error was discovered when the East Germans returned a package "with regret," they said.

Officials here assume that the correspondence did not deal with highly sensitive material. This would have been sent through more guarded channels.

Too young to race, this youngster uses imagination and driftwood for his own voyage

Leisure, Fun Mark Tsartlip Days

They paddled frantically, the two tykes.

They had their own ideas of what an Indian canoe race should be like.

The chants of 77 warriors (including a few warriorettes) echoing across the waters of beautiful Brentwood Bay didn't bother them. There were more vital matters close at hand. After all the tiny boat was sinking and it was already two feet from the shore!

And further along the sand, as Geronimo of the host Tsartlip Band flashed to victory just ahead of Cowichan's Sweet Daddy in the feature 11-man race over a gruelling five mile course, another small tot tried her best to get in the action on a waterlogged plank.

It was all part of the annual Tsartlip Indian Days last weekend, and the planks and the tiny tub boats had just as big a role as the massive 52-foot canoes. For it was a family affair.

While canoe-maker Manny Cooper of the Tsartlip band toiled barbecuing fresh salmon under the hot sun, jovial portly master-of-ceremonies Samuel Sam (doesn't matter which way you say it, my name's Sam) kept spectators up to date on how much there was available to eat and what was coming up on the program, although no one was quite sure when.

And Samuel's son Gregory Sam, who has been conducting a special summer youth program on the Tsartlip Reserve teaching youngsters swimming and safety in canoeing, kept the events going, whenever he was able to round up the contestants.

And I bumped into Joe Lawrence, who heads the housing program for the Neah Bay, Washington, Makah Tribe which had two canoes entered in the 11-man race.

"We try to make all the Indian celebrations in Canada, although it's a 600-mile round trip for us to come here," he said. "We have a big celebration ourselves on the 27,000-acre Makah Reservation Aug. 21, 22 and 23 and we try to encourage as many Canadian Indians as possible to come down for that."

The canoe racing—as well as the 11-man race there were a women's race, single paddle and double paddle events, and a buckskin (16-and-under boys' race—was the highlight of the Tsartlip Days.

"It's pretty tough, but it's a lot of fun," Greg Sam mused as he looked out over the water and listed to the chants. "I used to race a few years ago but you've got to be fit. It takes two to three hours training every night. As the saying goes 'you pull hard in the race, and you pull even harder the next day when you're practicing.'"

There were other things too, like swimming races for the kids and traditional Indian bone games fo rthe adults.

And there was a delightful kind of timelessness about the whole thing. I guess that today we all worry too much about the clock and precisely

max low

what time something is to be held. And I guess someone has to worry. But sometimes, it's nice not to be hurried.

Down on the beach, Greg Sam's all set to get the women's canoe race going, but they've lost Linda.

And Sam Sam calls for Linda over the public address system and no one seems quite sure where she's gone. But she'll be back, you know. And the race can wait. And you've been there almost three hours and have seen just one race.

Then you ask what time is the next match in the five-a-side soccer tournament and Sam Sam beams and says "Oh yes, that starts at four watch and it's 4:30 already o'clock." But you look at your and there's not even any sign of the ball, let alone anyone to kick it.

But then, if the contestants are having fun and if they're not worried about what's happened to Linda or the soccer ball, why should we be?

Indeed, they were having fun.

As Greg Sam put it:

"No matter what happens, we try to carry on with these days of fun."

And, when all around us we read only of the seriousness of land claims and roadblocks and of trouble . . . then it's kind of nice to relax and have

Faculty Association Angry at Cutoff

By ELEANOR BOYLE
Times Staff

The University of Victoria Faculty Association—which protects the academic rights and freedoms of UVic professors—has been cut in the university's record $28.7 million budget and association president Dave Henn is upset.

"I'm sorry to see the university give us only $1,000 this year and none next year when it gives $6,000 per year to the Faculty Club to subsidize booze and food," Henn said Monday.

"It appears someone has their priorities wrong."

Last year's association budget was $1,700, said Henn, and that figure is being cut to zero over two years.

His comments came after a UVic board of governors meeting where details of the 1975-76 university budget were discussed.

Final figure for university expenses is $28,759,343, up $36,343 from the preliminary budget approved in April, according to bursar Bob McQueen.

Only one board member raised objections at the meeting to the Faculty Association's budget cut, at the same time protesting large increases to UVic's Alumni Association and University Relations department.

Economics professor Izzud-Din Pal cited jumps in the budget of $23,940 to $33,600 for the Alumni Association and of $83,050 to $101,828 for University Relations.

He got little response when he asked for reasons.

"UVic has traditionally considered the Alumni Association an important body," board chairman S. J. Cunliffe later told the Times.

Graduates automatically belong to the group which keeps alumni up to date on UVic affairs and raises money for research projects and scholarships.

The association has about 8,000 members most of whom are not active, and pays director Paul Sutherland $10,000 per year and one other person a full-time salary.

University Relations handles public relations for UVic and employs five persons including director Maurice Cownden whose salary for 1974-75 was $20,675.

Its budget jump will help pay for a tabloid-sized publication planned to replace Cownden's existing weekly newsletter and go to students as well as faculty and staff, he said Monday.

Job of the Faculty Association is protection of the rights and academic freedoms of UVic professors.

"It's not close to being a union, but it's concerned with the professional well-being of faculty," said Henn.

Association members represent professors when they sit with board of governors members and hammer out changes to the Tenure Document when the need arises.

The document lays down terms of professors' contracts with the university and ensures they can work without fear of being fired, said Henn.

Professors are not obliged to join but 70 per cent are signed up and meetings are well-attended, he said.

One association committee recently submitted a brief to the board of governors asking that UVic professors' salaries be brought to par with University of B.C. and Simon Fraser Uiversity salaries.

The request will be considered in next year's budget, the Times was told.

Henn said UVic salaries are below those at other B.C. universities in a substantial number of categories.

"On the raw basis we're the lowest (in the province) in all ranks," philosophy professor Charles Daniels said after the meeting which he also attended.

"You make more money (in a career) if you start out as a high school teacher than as a university teacher," said Daniels.

He said the situation would be slightly bettered if UVic salaries matched those at University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser University.

LIFEGUARD TEAMS PUT THROUGH PACES

Seven and possibly eight lifeguard teams will compete Friday evening and Saturday in the 4th annual Vancouver Island open Lifeguarding Championships.

Organizer Stan Anderson said Tuesday the public is welcome to view the contests, at UVic's McKinnon Pool from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday, at Thetis Lake from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday and at Beaver Lake from 1 to 4 p.m.

Each three-member team will be judged on how it handles a series of simulated emergencies in the water.

Among teams competing will be two from Powell River which finished first and second in a provincial pool competition in Vancouver last weekend. There will be teams from Courtenay, Thetis Lake, two from Saanich and one from Esquimalt and there may be a team from Vancouver as well.

Judges will be Anderson, Jim Mitchell from Vancouver and Steve Beerman from Powell River. Anderson is the Vancouver Island representative for the National Lifeguard Service which trains and certifies lifeguards.

CRITICS GET THE BLAME

Mayor Peter Pollen and Ald. Alf Hood were critical of regional board spending Tuesday but board chairman Jim Campbell pointed out today both were in key board positions but failed to do anything about it.

The region's $7.5 million operating budget, up almost 50 per cent over last year, came under fire when Victoria city council in caucus learned its contribution is up almost 70 per cent.

Both Hood and Pollen, the city's representatives on the board, worried aloud about the board's growth. Pollen said the board is "wandering" and without "specific objectives."

Hood said he wasn't happy with the regional budget and he didn't know where the increases were going to end.

Campbell noted today that both Pollen and Hood are members of a budget committee and Hood is as well a member of an executive finance sub-committee. Both bodies are charged with overhauling the budget before it comes before the board.

Pollen and Hood, as the city's representatives, were deliberately placed by him in "most influential" positions relating to regional budget matters.

Neither made specific mo- budget although both made "wandering" objections to it, said Campbell.

He also noted that the largest increase in regional spending was in the budget for community health services ($2.7 million). Ald. Hood is mittee dealing with such services.

Seven-Year Sentence For Speed Trafficker

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Dennis Grant Laverty was sentenced today to seven years in penitentiary for possession of methamphetamine (speed) for the purpose of trafficking.

Laverty, 24, of 208-3150 Jutland, was convicted last week after a six-day trial on the charge which arose from a police raid June 6, 1974.

County Court Judge Montague Drake, in a brief comment before sentence, said Laverty was close "to this corrupt and nefarious trade."

Methamphetamine is controlled under the Food and Drug Act and the maximum sentence is 10 years. A synthetic white with brown fleck crystal, it is commonly known as speed, splash or crystal.

Laverty took his sentence quietly but outside court his three-year-old son, accompanied by Mrs. Marguerite Laverty, was crying for his father.

Prosecutor Mike Hutchison said speed is "extremely dangerous" and pointed to B.C. court of appeal decisions that sentencing for trafficking must give first consideration to deterrence of others.

"This is not a local cottage industry," he said referring to the speed deal in which five pounds of 74 per cent pure speed was brought to Victoria. Laverty was found to have been in possession of two pounds.

Hutchison said it was a carefully-contrived plan with close connections to the criminal underworld in the east.

He referred to a conviction against Laverty in 1971 for trafficking in LSD in which he was sentenced six months and added "he hasn't learned his lesson."

Defence lawyer Sid Simons of Vancouver said Laverty's father is willing to have his son return to Lloydminster, Sask., to work in the family business.

Laverty had become involved in a situation "that went over his head."

Sgt. George Hawkes of the RCMP told court that two pounds of speed mixed with 15 pounds of dextrose would enable the material to be sold in "papers" for an ultimate street value of $304,640.

Under cross-examination, he said "apparently" the price paid by Laverty to Robert Drainville of Montreal for two pounds was $7,000.

The key witness for the crown turned out to be Drainville, who told court the speed deal was between him and Laverty for delivery of five pounds in Victoria.

Drainville is facing two charges from the same incident but his case has been waived to Montreal.

Defence witness Gordon Harry Okell said the deal was between him and Drainville and Laverty wasn't involved. Judge Drake, in convicting Laverty last week, said he didn't believe Okell.

Western Lottery Draw Party Slated

A mammoth party is planned by the Western Canada Lottery when the preliminary draw is held for the first time in Victoria, Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The event will take place in the Heritage Court area of the Provincial Museum complex.

Bobby Herriot's eight-piece band will be in attendance from 7 p.m. on, there will be free coffee and donuts and the lottery draw will have its own off-shoot lottery when lucky winners will be awarded "door prizes."

Victorians themselves will be able to participate in the drawing of the final 1,900 tickets worth a total of $190,000 in consolation prizes.

Holders of the first eight tickets drawn will have won no immediate money but will participate in the Final Draw, Aug. 9 in Regina when they will share $525,000. The draw will be televised on CTV western network.

Holders of tickets nine through 16 drawn from the monster drum Thursday will not be identified until the final draw when they will be matched with on-air finalists during the telecast.

The mystery "homeviewer" matched with the quarter-millionaire will receive $50,000. Mystery winners matched with the second and third stage finalists will receive $20,000 and $10,000 respectively.

Remaining mystery winners will each receive $5,000.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you give me information on the military march, Colonel Bogey, which was composed in 1917? Did a British composer write it for an American and is this march now known as the Bridge Over the River Kwai and claimed to be by a U.S. citizen? P.W.T.

A. Colonel Bogey was written by Kenneth Alford which was the pen-name for British-er Major C. Ricketts, during the time he was director of the Band of the Royal Marines stationed at Plymouth, England. English composer Malcolm Arnold, who wrote the score for the film, Bridge On the River Kwai, incorporated a setting of the harmonies only of Colonel Bogey. Due to copyright conditions the melody was not played by any instrument but was only whistled by the marchers.

Pollen, Bawlf Clash Over Housing

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

An attempt Tuesday by Ald. Sam Bawlf to initiate city council discussion on the provision of new downtown housing for low-income people led to a lengthy and heated argument between himself and Mayor Peter Pollen.

During the angry series of exchanges at council's caucus meeting, the mayor accused the alderman of "spearheading a one-man crusade to destroy downtown housing," by raising unjustified fears about the fire safety of older hotels and apartments, and Bawlf threatened to resign from council.

The confrontation followed weeks of controversy over council's refusal to release a report from Fire Chief Eric Simmons, listing 25 buildings which would need upgrading to meet the fire safety requirements of the 1970 National Building Code.

Bawlf had consistently urged that the report be made public, specifically for the information of tenants in the buildings concerned. Pollen finally authorized the release of the document, to allay public concern caused by—in his words—the "sensationalism" and "emotionalism" surrounding the matter.

When Bawlf tried to reopen council discussion on the question of new downtown housing at Tuesday's caucus meeting, he noted that the need for a firm policy was becoming more and more apparent with the possibility that some older hotels, unable or unwilling to meet the higher fire standards, would be forced to close up.

Pollen immediately retorted that such comments were a "bunch of gibberish." Bawlf on the one hand was talking about the need for new downtown housing, and on the other creating "an emotional milieu" which would place present downtown housing in jeopardy, said the mayor.

"I am sick and tired of the current destruction of our old downtown housing, through emotionalism injected by thoughtless and insensitive people about the so-called fire traps," Pollen added.

He was backed up by housing committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier, who said Bawlf's attempt to get a housing debate going was "almost a cover-up" for his role in stirring up the firetrap controversy.

"It galls me that we have statements coming out about 1,000 rooms in this city being firetraps . . . then we get into this motherhood discussion about providing housing," said Glazier.

He warned that it would be impossible to replace the present downtown housing stock in its social setting and at the low rents that are now available to elderly bachelors and low-income tenants.

As the argument raged on, Pollen became more personal in his criticisms of Bawlf.

"What gets me is that you seem to be on the side of virginity and chastity in this affair, and I keep finding myself on the side of evil," he said.

"You are spearheading a one-man crusade to destroy old downtown housing. You have added as much emotionalism to this problem as anyone in this community and at the same time you have displaced more people—through your excellent work in restoring old buildings."

His voice raised in anger, Bawlf replied: "If you want to persist in your facetious remarks and saying that I am misdirecting council perhaps I should resign.

"I brought this matter up out of goddam good concern and if you don't like it that's too bloody bad."

The mayor said he was merely trying to dispell the "prevailing myth" that simply because a building doesn't meet current building code standards it is therefore unsafe from the fire risk standpoint.

And he said he couldn't see what more the city could do to encourage either the provincial government or private developers to meet the shortage of low-cost accommodation in the downtown area.

Ald. Alf Hood suggested Glazier, as housing committee chairman, prepare an updated report on the whole subject for council to consider.

Riders Topple Als in Late-Game Thriller

MONTREAL (CP) — For a while Tuesday night, it looked as if Montreal Alouettes would be able to pull off one of those miracle comebacks.

The Alouettes, defending Grey Cup champions, entered the final quarter of their Canadian Football League game against Saskatchewan Roughriders trailing 14-0 and fell behind 17-0 after an early Brian Berg field goal.

Quarterback Sonny Wade, who sat on the bench in the first half, engineered a three-touchdown comeback in the last quarter which culminated with a 27-yard TD pass to Skip Eaman with 1:31 left to give Montreal a 20-17 lead.

But, 22 seconds later, veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster found Rhett Dawson open and the Saskatchewan back slipped away from defender Phil Price to score the game-winning touchdown as the Roughriders topped Montreal 24-20.

The Roughriders now are 2-0 while Montreal, who defeated Hamilton 33-23 last Wednesday, are 1-1. Tonight, Hamilton is at home against Ottawa in an Eastern Conference game.

Tom Campana got the other two Saskatchewan touchdowns in the first half as he snared passes from Lancaster. Berg converted all three Saskatchewan TDs.

Peter Dalla Riva caught two TD passes from Wade in the final 15 minutes and also grabbed a two-point conversion pass after Eaman's TD.

The crowd of 25,393 was quiet for most of the first three quarters, but came to life as Montreal rallied.

"One of the cardinal rules in football is that you don't beat yourself," offered Saskatchewan coach John Payne. "We almost did that tonight with those late fumbles and those penalties.

"It looked like we were losing the impetus."

But Lancaster, expecting Montreal to be in a prevent defence, found Dawson behind the linebackers and, after Price's miscue, Saskatchewan had its 14th win in 15 league games against Montreal.

"It's very seldom that a play like that goes for a touchdown," said Lancaster. "We knew they would be back in a prevent defence, so we sent three receivers down. Rhett ran it just right and came in just behind the linebackers."

It was Dawson's fumble that led to Eaman's lead touchdown and, ironically, it was Price, the man he beat for the game winner, who picked up the ball he dropped.

"We were in a prevent defence on that play," said Als coach Marv Levy. "Dawson caught the ball and slipped away from the defender. We knew they were going to throw the bomb, that was their only chance.

"It's inexcusable to let a thing like that happen, especially when you're expecting them to do it."

The Riders did more passing than some expected, completing 15 of 25 passes for 338 yards.

The Alouettes passed a good deal as well, particularly in the first half when starting quarterback Jimmy Jones seemed to have a particular liking for the long bomb.

The loss snapped Montreal's 16-game home-field winning streak. Their last loss was a 37-20 setback to Saskatchewan on Sept. 16, 1973.

The Roughriders conclude their Eastern swing in Toronto Friday night. Montreal's next contest is at home against Hamilton next Tuesday.

Celebrity Players Command Team Tennis

World Team Tennis has come and gone and may never return. At least it is likely it won't return on a regular schedule as promoter Edgar Rhomberg thought possible when he originally contracted to bring in the Hawaii Leis for three matches here this summer.

Despite the name players who make up many of the teams, it was a bad draw locally, only 1,300 fans showing up for the opener, which should have been the big night, and 1,400 plus for the second night. Tuesday was a similar disaster.

If the non-appearance of John Newcombe of Australia was the over-riding factor to blame for the falling off in ticket sales for the opening-night show, that is understandable, perhaps, but when Newcombe did show up for the second night's matches, the attendance jump wasn't that appreciable. Besides, it would be interesting to know just how many of Monday's fans were first-nighters from Thursday who took advantage of Rhomberg's generous offer of a $2 rebate because of Newcombe's default.

As it was, with Newcombe, Monday's performance was far more entertaining; and nobody can fault the tennis. These are touring pros on one-night stands and, naturally, they must show enough talent to survive in a competitive manner. That's basic.

Newcombe says he believes in the concept of team tennis, but thinks with 11 teams it may be overdone a bit, just as it was in the inaugural year of 1974 when 16 teams started play. And last year, it will be recalled, all 16 teams lost money but still finished the season which is more than can be said for some other professional teams.

Many bills undoubtedly were left unpaid, seven teams subsequently disbanded, others switched elsewhere, some of the big names such as Ken Rosewall, Jimmy Connors and John Alexander opted not to play WTT any more; and the league was off and bumping along on its second season.

Newcombe's Default Honest

If that's a capsule report, things really haven't changed much this season. Crowd totals are down, even in New York where Billie Jean King is the glamor coach. Only 1,200 turned out for a recent match. By comparison, this puts Victoria in the big time, but still won't pay expenses, which is what the game is all about.

Then, of course, who leads World Team Tennis? I can't recall that fact ever being mentioned during the matches here. So is there that much significance and does it really matter who wins? The players are under contract to their respective teams and if there is some sort of bonus arrangement for winning it hasn't been explained. Which, in this book, makes team tennis strictly an exhibition series featuring celebrity players, who naturally command the most respect, and the most money, with the others being on the way up or the way down. And there's nothing wrong with that either, but it must make it tough on the individual promoter trying to rekindle interest for each successive home match.

It was obviously an honest default by Newcombe here because he is suffering from a torn ligament and if it isn't that troublesome now, it is still touchy. "I haven't played since the injury," he admitted, "and I won't be playing singles until the U.S. nationals at Forest Hills (Aug. 27). "It's just too risky until then," Newcombe was alluding to the fact that the extra strain of singles might aggravate his injury and keep him out of the U.S. nationals as it had done at Wimbledon.

Still Not Enough Fans

If he was only playing at three-quarter output here, he still exhibited the class expected of him; and so did Clark Graebner, Margaret Court and the others. And for a booming serve has anyone seen one harder than that displayed by Bob Giltinan of the Cleveland Nets? Which is only of value, of course, when it finds the service court.

Meanwhile, Owen Davidson of the Leis indicated he would be pleased when his team commitment was completed. "I only have seven matches to go," he said here last Thursday, "and then I will be going home to Australia." Now his commitment is three.

"Yes, it is tiring," he added of the schedule which often calls for four or five matches a week.

So maybe Newcombe has a valid point. He would like to see the league reduced to eight teams with play obviously being in selected centres. This would appear to be more workable and perhaps cut down on a lot of unnecessary frills and expenses.

For if there was too much travel, too many teams, and not nearly enough tennis fans in the inaugural season of 1974, the problem hasn't exactly disappeared in this, the second season. And it isn't likely it will ever be solved in Victoria either. Even though right now we are running ahead of New York. How about that, Edgar?

It was a nice try.

Winners Can't Relax

Lanky Australian Steve Docherty is a guy who'd love to have a rest.

But if Steve keeps on winning at tennis, it doesn't look as though he'll ever get time to relax.

The men's singles favorite in the 78th B.C. Open Championships, being played at the Racquet Club of Victoria, recently ended an eight-month world tour playing in big tournaments in New Zealand, Australia, Africa, England and other European countries.

With fellow-Aussie Steve Myers he captured the New Zealand grass-courts doubles title and took the singles crown in the Mombassa International in Kenya.

Then Steve hopped on the six-city Pacific Satellite Circuit and arrived in Victoria the points leader with wins in both Portland and Tacoma.

Docherty remembers.

He came here last time in just about the same position—the tour leader and top seed—but went out in the first round.

"Ah, but that was because we had to play the final of the Vancouver tournament (he was runner-up to American Jerry Van Linge) late Sunday and I had to play a first-round match against a tough player at 8 Monday morning," he said Tuesday.

Vancouver has dropped out of the circuit this year and Docherty had a day's rest in between. He feels that breather makes all the difference.

It seemed to make a difference Tuesday as Docherty, stroking the ball confidently, cruised past American Jeff Smith 6-3, 6-2.

But back to that rest Jerry would love to take.

Well, the 25-year-old, six-foot, five-inch athlete from Newcastle in New South Wales won this tour last year (from American Steve Messmer) by clinching the last tournament in Spokane. And part of the prize is a berth in the main draw in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills for the top two on the Satellite Circuit.

At Forest Hills, Docherty played brilliantly, losing in four tough sets to Vijay Amritraj of India.

"I would just love to take about six weeks off to rest," he laments.

But next week it's the last tournament in Spokane and if Docherty wins the circuit again, then it's off to Forest Hills once more.

And once more he'll have to postpone that rest.

A Carefree Upset

Tennis Stories By Max Low

Relaxed and stroking the ball beautifully with carefree abandon, Victoria's Brenda Cameron pulled off a big surprise Tuesday and became one of only two Canadians left in the 78th B.C. Open tennis tournament.

Brenda hung on through an exciting three-set battle for a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 victory over Connie Pearson of Tilburn, Calif., who is now in her second year on the six-city Pacific Satellite Circuit.

"I was really relaxed and didn't have any pressure on me," Brenda said when she came off.

She joins Lori Barlow of Victoria in the last 16 in the women's singles. Lori defeated Paula Coulter of Denver, Colo., 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 in the first round and then won her second-round match by default.

Sandra Moss of Victoria went out 6-0, 6-0 to American Mary Colville.

Roger Skillings went out 6-4, 6-4 to American Pat Kearney; Neill Coutts was nipped 7-5, 6-3 by American Mike Nissley; Glen Bradsha wwas beaten 6-3, 6-1 by another American, Steve Strasser, and Marty Taylor was put out 6-2, 6-4 by Australian Campbell Robertson.

Top-seeded Steve Docherty of Australia defeated American Jeff Smith 6-3, 6-2; second-ranked Doug King was the only one pushed hard, edging Brian Lieberman 6-2, 6-7, 6-3; third-seeded Jeff Cowan crushed Warren Farmer 6-2, 6-1, and fourth-ranked Mark Joffey downed Tod Cooer 6-3, 6-0.

In the women's singles, little Isa Ortiz the four-foot 10-inch bundle of dynamite from Colombia is going to take some stopping. She breezed past American Debrah Forbush 6-0, 6-0. Second-seeded Claire Schmoyer of Arizona State University beat Carol Coats 6-3, 6-3; third-ranked Molly Hannas blasted Cindy Frank 6-1, 6-0, and fourth-seeded Karen Kennington nipped Joyce Laughlin 7-5, 6-4.

And what of University of California player Eric Mann, who with Eric Larre recently set a world marathon tennis-playing record of 80 hours and five minutes and who was involved in two more marathon matches in Monday's qualifying rounds?

Well, Eric was at it again Tuesday — only this time he went out, losing to Shannon Blackwell of Houston Texas 6-3, 4-6, 6-7 after another desperate struggle lasting almost three hours.

Mousy Finale for Team Tennis

Well, World Team Tennis didn't exactly roar in like a lion last Thursday but it did creep out like a mouse Tuesday night.

The slick, heated-up version of pro tennis caused barely a ripple of interest when only about 1,300 fans turned up at the 5,400-seat Memorial Arena to watch Los Angeles Strings down Hawaii Leis 31-18 Thursday in the WTT debut here.

Australian star John Newcombe, who didn't make it the first night, helped pull in 1,400 Monday night when the Leis defeated Cleveland Nets 29-20, in an excellent contest.

But even the great Newcombe couldn't help matters much Tuesday.

Still recovering from a knee injury that kept him out of this year's Wimbledon championships, Big John played only in one match and lost that when he and fellow-Aussie Owen Davidson were nipped 6-4 by Dennis Ralston and the almost-unknown John Andrews of the San Diego Friars.

And, although the matches were pretty close—there were two tiebreakers—and the result was in doubt until the final mixed doubles, few in the sparse crowd of just over 1,100 seemed to care when the Friars ended up winning 28-26.

In contrast to Monday night's games, the matches evoked very little response from the spectators, who quietly watched the proceedings in a rather bored fashion.

Just as on the other two nights, the best match of the evening was probably the men's doubles although Ralston, a verteran U.S. Davis Cup player and coach, gave a fine display of serving and neat half-volleying to edge Butch Buchholz of the Leis 7-6 on a tiebreaker in the singles.

Margaret Court of Australia overpowered countrywoman Lesley Hunt with some big serves and well-angled volleys, winning 6-2 in the singles, and Mrs. Court and Helen Gourlay were shaded by Miss Hunt and Janet Young 7-6 in the women's doubles.

And in that deciding mixed, Andrews and Bridget Cuypers of South Africa downed Davidson and Miss Gourlay 6-4.

Jauch Surprised By Blue Bombers But Eskimos Win

EDMONTON (CP) — Head coach Ray Jauch of Edmonton Eskimos said his club was lucky and offensive coach Vern Rapp was concerned for the future after the Western Football Conference defending champions escaped with a 28-22 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers Tuesday night.

A cowd of 23,926 watched the Eskimos overcome a dismal start and the loss of flanker-punter Garry Lefebvre in their first game of the season. Rapp said in the dressing room the team must conquer its habit of waiting until the last minute to pull out a victory.

The win came on a 29-yard fouchdown pass from Tom Wilkinson to Larry Highbaugh with less than two minutes remaining.

Highbaugh, normally a cornerback, was in the game only because Lefebvre broke his leg about six inches above the ankle in the fourth quarter.

Winnipeg coach Bud Riley refused to criticize the officials, but it was obvious he was disturbed over a rough play penalty against centre John Bonk two plays before the winning score. The call erased an apparent interception by Gord Paterson on a pass to George McGowan and gave Wilkinson the extra chance he needed.

It was the third touchdown pass for the stumpy Wilkinson, player of the year in the Canadian Football League last season, who completed 16 of 23 passes for a whopping 350 yards. He found Lefebvre wih a perfect sideline pass for an 83-yard score and hit McGowan—his favorite target with six receptions for 105 yards—for a 39-yarder.

Dave Cutler completed Edmonton's scoring with three converts, two field goals and a single on one of the two field goal bids he missed.

All three Winnipeg touchdowns—by quarterback Chuck Ealey, running back Rich Crump and tight end Brian Jack—were long ones.

Crump connected on a 28-yard sweep to the left and Ealey on a 29-yarder that looked almost the same to the crowd. Jack, no speedster, was left alone on the last play of the first quarter and scored on a 51-yard pass-and-run play.

Bob Macoritti kicked three converts and produced a single on a 46-yard punt. All the Blue Bomber scoring except Macoritti's third-quarter punt came in the first quarter.

After that, the veteran Eskimo defence settled down and the offence found the consistency it had been lacking. Nine penalties were called against Edmonton, many to quell promising marches.

Optimists Gain Final

NORTH VANCOUVER — It could be a battle between Vancouver Island teams in Thursday's final of the provincial Babe Ruth all-star baseball tournament for 13-year-olds.

Saanich Evening Optimists wrapped up a berth in the final Tuesday at Mahon Park, squeezing past Kelowna 10-9 for their fourth straight triumph in the double-loss-elimination competition.

Duncan, beaten 6-0 Sunday by the undefeated Optimists, remained in contention by bouncing Coquitlam 11-3 in a loser's bracket game. Duncan and Kelowna were scheduled to clash today to decide which club will face the Optimists in the championship final.

Saanich and Kelowna staged a thrill-packed finish after the Optimists appeared on their way to an easy triumph when they ran up an 8-1 lead, helped by Mike Dean's two-run triple and Randy Wickware's two-run homer, his fourth home run of this year's playoffs.

Kelowna bounced back to score four times in the seventh to knot the count at 8-8 and send the game into an extra inning.

Another run in the top of the eighth frame sent Kelowna out in front, but Saanich wiped out the deficit and grabbed the victory when catcher Darrel Richardson swatted a two-run double.

Mike Cathcart pitched all the way for the Saanich club, which collected nine hits and committed two errors while their rivals wre connecting for 10 hits and making five errors.

AWARDS NIGHT FOR SHAMROCKS

It's awards night for Victoria Shamrocks tonight at Memorial Arena when they meet Coquitlam Adanacs in the final Western Lacrosse Association regular-season game.

Several members of the Shamrocks will be honored for their part in leading the Irish to a second-place finish.

And while the contest won't change any of the standings, it is a preview of one semi-final playoff.

The fourth-place Adanacs and the Shamrocks will open their best-of-five series Aug. 9 in Victoria. The second game will be in Coquitlam Aug. 12 with the third back here Aug. 16. Should a fourth game be neccessary, it will be Aug. 18 in Coquitlam with fifth game here Aug. 20.

First-place New Westminster Salmonbellies and third-place Vancouver Burrards will clash in the other semi-final.

But before the playoffs start, the league will hold its all-star game next Wednesday at Memorial Arena. All proceeds from the contest will go to help players who have lost job pay because of injuries suffered in WLA action.

Wheelchair Donations Sought

Wheelchairs, crutches, canes and other equipment for the disabled are being sought by a group of Vancouver students.

The students are running a project called Equipithon to collect donations of equipment for the handicapped and put it back into working order.

The equipment will be used for the free loan service operated by the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation.

The students have already collected more than 20 wheelchairs, 11 walkers, 22 pairs of crutches and canes, hospital beds and other aids on the Lower Mainland, and are now appealing to Vancouver Island residents for donations.

Any local resident wishing to donate can call Mrs. Jean Curry at Arbutus Crafts, 4353 West Saanich Road, at 479-1665.

The project, which began May 15 and ends in September, is federally funded.

The two-day horse show at Hunt Valley Farm in Saanich, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Mearnes and the now famous jumping mare, The Flying Nun, drew a large number of entries from the Mainland. The weather was perfect, perhaps a little too warm, but the show ran smoothly and quickly.

Many of the competitors that came from the Vancouver area are staying over to compete next weekend at the three-day show at Broadmead Equestrian Centre, Central Saanich Road. Should the weather not co-operate the events will be held in the large covered arena at Broadmead.

A few years ago one of the New England states instituted a new department of recreation. The first effort of this new body was to find out the number of people, amount of money and available areas involved in a list of recreatioal pursuits.

Almost forgotten when the list was assembled, horseback riding was included. Much to the surprise of the government body that received the survey report, this form of recreation was well up to the top of the list with such as golf and boating, both power and sailing. With such information at hand it was obvious that horseback riding should be considered when funds were allocated to improve the availability of suitable riding areas.

A legal battle that lasted nearly five years ended recently in Great Britain when the court of appeal granted the British Horse Society its appeal over a decision of the secretary of state for the environment which upheld a claim by the Kent County Council to the right to close a pathway being used by horseback riders, cyclists, and w alkers to a "footpath" for walkers only. The result of this court battle is that over one thousand miles of paths are saved for "cyclists, riders and ramblers." The British Horse Society concerns itself with all matters pertaining to horses and their users. In Canada we have the Canadian Horse Council, only a few years old, but already making its presence felt by its willingness to champion the rights of horse-people in their efforts to improve their position in Canada.

While on the subject of riding trails and the environment, it was noticed that in a recent report filed following a study of Elk and Beaver Lakes that one recommendation was that all power boats be banned from the Lakes. No mention was made of the sea planes kept on the lakes adjacent to the area from which Central Saanich takes its water.

On a recent hot Sunday when the number of people swimming or boating on the lakes was so great it was impossible to find one more parking space anywhere, the sea planes were taking off and landing as though on an airport runway. Homeowners around the lake should be somewhat apprehensive.

U.S. REPORT QUOTES BOB WILLIAMS

CIA Trying to Wreck NDP?

WILLIAMS

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

U.S. Central Intelligence Agency money is being pumped into B.C. to disrupt the NDP government, according to an American newspaper report quoting Resources Minister Bob Williams.

The June 20 edition of the University of Wisconsin student newspaper The Daily Cardinal quotes Williams as saying in an interview he has "documentary evidence that they (the CIA) have filtered money into right wing opposition groups and the right-wing press in order to de-stabilize our government."

Williams is also quoted as saying that CIA agents have infiltrated the NDP party and tried to bribe party members.

"After what happened in Chile, we are the only socialist government left in the Americas and feel that we are the next target of the CIA," said Williams.

Cardinal staff reporter Edward Handell said today he taped most of the interview with Williams after the B.C. minister spoke to a conference on "state and local alternative policies" in Madison, Wisconsin.

Williams, who is on a business trip in Belgium and could not be reached for confirmation of the statements, attended the June conference alone and members of his staff said today they could not confirm the details of the interview.

Premier Barrett, now vacationing in California, sent word to members of the press that he would not comment on the story which was made public is B.C. today by Social Credit MLA Bob McClelland (Langley).

Provincial secretary Ernie Hall said he would not be surprised if the CIA had infiltrated the province but he did not know anything about the article.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald sounded surprised when he read the statements attributed to Williams, but said he could not comment until he had further information about the article.

Jerry Ambelang, state-news editor of the 43,000-circulation daily Wisconsin State Capital Times, said in a telephone interview today his newspaper covered the alternative policies conference attended by Williams but that the New Democrat minister was not interviewed or quoted.

Ambelang, a U of W graduate who worked on the student paper "a way back," said the campus paper tends to be "quite radical."

"They might be willing to take things out of context and piece them together to get a good story," he said. "I would be cautious . . . students put in what they want to put in."

"We have presented our evidence to Trudeau and he has agreed to do what he could about it because the Canadian people are a very chauvinist people and any attempt by the CIA or the American imperialist corporations to interfere with any Canadian government will hurt Prime Minister Trudeau."

Quebec Grits Facing Charges

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec member of parliament and a member of the Quebec national assembly, both Liberals, have been charged along with six municipal officials following an inquiry last September into municipal corruption.

Antonio Yanakis, 53, MP for the central Quebec riding of Berthier, was charged in sessions court Tuesday with three counts of perjury, corruption, breach of trust and conspiring to defraud the public of $5,990.

Gerard Shanks, 51, member in the national assembly for the Montreal district of St. Henri, was charged with one count of breach of trust and one count of corruption involving payments totalling $1,750 from former town planner Roger Gagnon.

The charges follow a report of a closed-door inquiry at which Gagnon was accused of having offered almost $100,000 in bribes to the two politicians and six town officials of East Angus, in the Eastern Townships, and Gatineau, near Hull.

At the time of the alleged offences, Gagnon was employed as an urban planner for the two communities.

Charged with breach of trust in Gatineau, formerly Pointe Gatineau, are town councillors Jean-Marc Cloutier and Jean-Paul Osborne, court clerk Louis Lamarche, assistant treasurer Andre Leblanc and former councillor Jean-Louis Villeneuve.

The accused are to appear before Hull provincial court Judge Jerome Somers Sept. 18.

Alphonse Godbout, mayor of East Angus, was charged July 28 with one count of corruption and one of breach of trust. He is accused of having received $11,700 in alleged bribes from Gagnon.

Godbout was summoned to appear in Sherbrooke sessions court Sept. 17.

Gagnon faces 11 charges of political corruption and fraud and is also accused of defrauding the towns of more than $38,000.

Charges against Yanakis resulted from his testimony at the inquiry, during which he said he was not aware his secretary had cashed and deposited cheques from Gagnon.

He also denied having received money and gifts from the former town planner.

Meanwhile, Premier Robert Bourassa announced in Quebec City Tuesday the suspension of Shanks from the Liberal party and party caucus. The premier said all party privileges would be restored if Shanks is cleared of the charges.

In Ottawa, Health Minister Marc Lalonde, the Quebec lieutenant of the federal Liberal caucus, said Tuesday night any decision of the suspension of Yanakis would be taken by the federal caucus.

Yanakis said Tuesday night Bourassa is behind criminal accusations against him.

Yanakis said in an interview there is no proof against him and suggested Bourassa "is against the wall."

New Probe Set On Quang Affair

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen Tuesday agreed to investigate what was described in the Commons as "the startling revelation" that immigration officials knew of South Vietnamese General Dang Van Quang's background and alleged criminal activites when he entered Canada.

MP Derek Blackburn (NDP-Brant) pressed MacEachen for answers after the Ottawa Journal carried a copyright story Tuesday quoting a United States government official as telling immigration officials Quang was waiting to enter Canada last May.

Jack Luehrs, a U.S. Health, education and welfare official, told the newspaper he advised Canada's New Orleans vice-consul Albert Morin of Quang's background 10 days before he was interviewed by Morin at Fort Chaffee.

Morin had informed the press and Canadian officials he was not aware of Quang's criminal background.

Blackburn asked the external affairs minister whether anybody in Ottawa was told to let Quang in regardless of his criminal background.

Meanwhile Quang, says he is the victim of a "polictical campaign" to smear him.

He said in a CBC interview Tuesday night he cannot get "very fair justice" in this country.

He said he has sent a request to the United States government for political asylum in that country but so far has had no answer.

"I think there is a very well-manipulated . . . political campaign against me from some organizations and from some individuals sympathetic to those organizations.

"They found in me a very ready scapegoat . . . because they could not capture me alive in Saigon. They are pursuing me wherever they can."

Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Quang was ordered deported July 7 after an investigation of his past in Vietnam showed he was "guilty of nefarious activities in the drug trade" and that other allegations against him were "well founded."

Immigration officials said last week the immigration appeal board rejected his application to appeal the deportation order because he made the application too late.

Trudeau Cautions Summit On 'Shortlived' Gains

HELSINKI (UPI)—Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau told the European Security Conference summit today any stability it produces will be "short-lived" unless action is taken in other parts of the world.

Trudeau addressed the leaders of the other 34 participating states on the first day of the three-day summit.

He said the final agreement is important because strife in Europe has all too often spread rapidly to other areas.

"Yet in a sense such a belief is arrogant," Trudeau said, speaking in French. "Europe is not the world.

"Whatever stability this conference anticipates in Europe will be short-lived if we do not seize the opportunity now offered to us to create elsewhere the conditions necessary to permit standards of living to be raised, to permit the economies of tropical countries to be improved, stabilized and made sufficient, to ensure that rural development is encouraged and food production is increased, to provide hope for a better future to the hundreds of millions of people outside Europe now existing at the subsistence level."

Trudeau said a major task facing the world is to allow all to share the benefits of nuclear energy, while "eliminating the likelihood of nuclear proliferation."

Trudeau's speech followed a warning to the Soviet Union from British Prime Minister Harold Wilson who stressed that no European nation will have an excuse in the future to intervene in the internal affairs of others.

His statement appeared to be a direct challenge to Moscow's so-called "Brezhnev Doctrine" which claims the right for the Soviet Union to intervene in any east European country — a policy propounded seven years ago by Soviet Communist party general Secretary Leonid Brezhnev after the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The Wilson statement was particularly significant since the security conference is Brezhnev's brain child. He has urged such a conference for years to put the world's stamp of approval on the postwar boundaries that put half of Europe in the Soviet bloc. He has been said to regard the controversial meeting as the crowning achievement of his career.

Pierre Disputes $8 Over-tax

ST. ADOLPHE d'HAWORD, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is disputing what he claims was an overpayment of $8 in taxes last year on his 632-acre wooded terrain near Seize-Iles lake in the Laurentians.

In a letter to the community's secretary-treasurer, dated March 27 and written on the prime minister's official stationery, Trudeau claimed he had been consistently over-taxed.

The prime minister said the Quebec department of municipal affairs had told him that taxes on his lot should not have exceeded the minimum rate of one per cent.

"Nonetheless, for several years past the tax rate imposed on me has been well in excess of one per cent," he said, adding that it reached the two-per-cent mark this year.

$2 Coffee Forecast Before Winter

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria coffee prices are expected to rise to $1.50 per pound in August from the present rate of about $1.25 and could hit $2 before winter, according to spokesmen for the coffee industry.

Victoria supermarkets are anticipating a run on their coffee shelves before the Canadian price takes off. Prices have already risen 20 cents a pound in New York.

Victoria restaurants will probably stop giving free refills and will raise their price to at least 30 cents, up from a standard price of 25 cents, said Gordon Schoor, president of the Victoria Restaurant Association.

The problem began July 18 when frost destroyed up to 75 per cent of the Brazil coffee crop. The coffee was to have been harvested next spring and come on market in the fall of 1976.

Because of the uncertainty of future supply, the Brazil government has halted all exports of coffee while it takes stock. This could take several weeks.

As a result of the Brazilian action, there will be an immediate shortage of coffee on the world market during August. Brazil produces 33 per cent of the total world supply.

George Beatty of Toronto, public relations manager for General Foods in Canada, told the Times that sharp price increases in coffee are inevitable in August as a result of the Brazil action. General Foods increased its wholesale prices 20 cents a pound in the United States Monday and Canadian increases are expected to be of a similar amount.

Victoria supermarket spokesmen said an increase of 20 cents a pound wholesale would push the retail price up 25 cents a pound to $1.50 a pound in August.

The price increases are expected to come in two stages: the first in August reacting to the move by the Brazil government and the second in autumn after Brazil decides upon its next move.

In Vancouver, spokesmen for two major coffee wholesalers said if the first estimate by Brazil proves accurate and 75 per cent of the coffee crop has been wiped out by frost, the total price increase would be in the order of 50 per cent by winter, pushing retail prices up near the $2 mark.

One official warned consumers against buying bag coffee for storage purposes, pointing out it has a storage life of only about 60 days. Vacuum tin coffee can be stored about 12 months as can instant coffee, provided the seal has not been broken.

Coffee trading on the world market is already at fever pitch as speculators try to corner supplies to take advantage of the shortage.

Wrong Germany On Mail List

BRUSSELS (Guardian) — The Norwegian Defence Ministry for the past eight months has been sending military information to the East German Embassy in Oslo instead the West German, a Ministry official admitted Tuesday.

According to NATO officials here — who confirmed the mistake — the correspondence dealt with NATO information as well as Norwegian defence affairs. The error was discovered when the East Germans returned a package "with regret," they said.

Officials here assume that the correspondence did not deal with highly sensitive material. This would have been sent through more guarded channels.

'Nancy Nutrition' talks Turkey

We used to think of turkey as a 'Special Occasion' meat—something reserved for Christmas or Thanksgiving. Fortunately, our thinking has changed and wise shoppers are now buying turkey the year 'round.

Turkey is a good buy for a number of reasons. It's an excellent source of protein niacin and phosphorus.

Turkey has a low-fat content, especially the light meat, and for this reason it's lower in calories than most meats.

All B.C. Grown turkey meat is inspected for wholesomeness and graded to standards based on conformation, flesh and fat covering and dressing. The grademark Canada A, B or Utility, is printed on a metal breast tag, a transparent bag or label insert. Turkey must also be graded by age and marked young or mature.

Keep cooked turkey meat refrigerated at all times when it is not being served. It can be stored safely up to 4 days. For longer storage, cooked turkey meat should be removed from the bone, sliced, covered with broth or gravy, packaged in rigid containers and frozen. The leftovers will be of good quality for up to 3 months and can be served in a variety of ways.

For your free copy of an excellent booklet containing lots of ideas and information about turkey, write to the B.C. Turkey Marketing Board, Box 1189, Cloverdale, B.C. and ask for 'Cooking B.C. Grown Turkey.' Tell them 'Nancy sent you'!
